MARSHALL SAYS DEMOCRACY DEPENDS ON AMERICA

BOXCAR SHORTAGE SLOWS INDUSTRY

Rail Spokesmen Think Conditions To Get Worse Before Improving

AGENCIES SEEK SOLUTION TO CRITICAL SITUATION

(By Associated Press)

The worst boxcar shortage in 20 years slowly tightened its throttling grip on American industry Saturday as representatives of the nation's railroads, steel companies, rail car builders and government agencies sought some solution to the critical situation.

The consensus in most quarters was that more new cars are needed to bring any real relief. And railroad spokesmen predicted the situation would get worse before it improves.

Chairman Reed, Republican, Kansas, of a Senate commerce subcommittee, which has been holding hearings on the shortage, called a conference of industry executives and government officials in Washington for next Wednesday in an attempt to work out

YOUNG HEAD OF L. S. U. SOUGHT

Selection Of New President May Be Process Of Several Months

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Louisiana State University authorities today announced policies that would make the selection of a new president for the university a process of several months and would put the emphasis on youth and accomplishment.

J. M. McLemore of Alexandria, chairman of the university board of supervisors and of the special committee on presidential prospects, said no selection probably would be made for four or five months and that no one at present had an "inside track."

The board was impressed, he said, with the importance of selecting some one young enough to give at least ten to 15 years' active service to the institution, and in addition wanted a man outstanding both as an educator and administrator.

It is prepared to appoint such a person from anywhere in the United States, McLemore said, disclosing that the heads of all land grant colleges in the country would be invited to make suggestions.

McLemore also indicated that a qualified candidate might be offered a $5,000 raise above the $15,000 salary, with a residence and other prerequisites, paid L. S. U. presidents in the past. McLemore said he personally would "not let $5,000 stand in the way of getting the man we want."

A faculty committee will be named to collect information on prospects and make recommendations to the board, McLemore said.

Members of the board held an informal meeting today with the Very Rev. Charles E. McAllister, president of the board of regents of the University of Washington and head of the Allied Council of Governing Boards of State Universities and Allied Institutions.

33 COMMUNISTS IN TVA 'CELL' TOLD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A Knoxville, Tenn., woman, who said she formerly was a Communist party member, testified today there were 33 Communists in the Tennessee Valley "cell" in 1939.

Mrs. Roxey Parris told the Senate public works committee she joined the Communists in order to report to the Federal Bureua of Investigation in Knoxville on Communist activities.

She was called as a witness by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tenn., who is opposing the nomination of Gordon R. Clapp to be a member of the TVA board.

Mrs. Parris testified she never saw Clapp at Communist meetings but that "his name was always brought into the meetings."

"I think they kind of wanted to keep 'm in the background," she said.

Mrs. Parris repeated testimony she 've earlier at the Senate atomic en- gy committee hearings on nomina- ion of David E. Lilienthal to head e atomic energy commission. She id her son was refused a job at TVA 1938 but was told by Henry C. Hart hat he would be employed if he would oin the Communist party.

Hart, a former TVA employer, who is to testify later, sat opposite Mrs. Parris as she testified.

Earlier, the committee heard two Tennesseans, A. B. Walthal, of Athens, a farm implement manufacturer, and Joe Wright, of Sweetwater, urge confirmation of Clapp.

51 Dead In Snowstorm

Bitter Winds Toss Up High Drifts And Hamper Travel

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The snowstorm that lashed most of the East and cost 51 lives turned on northern Maine today as thousands of other communities continued to battle through drifts.

Skies were clear over a large part of the blanketed area but in the northeast bitter winds tossed up drifts and hampered road travel.

The storm whipped the eastern area for nearly 24 hours before abating yesterday. Its center swept out over the North Atlantic but the edge of the storm hit northern Maine today and headed for New Brunswick. Forecasters expected eight inches of snow in northern Maine.

Twelve thousand men attacked piles of snow in New York City today. La-Guardia Field reported 662 flights cancelled over a three-day period.

Ships were delayed in reaching New York because of heavy seas. Long distance trains were late as much as an hour or more.

The nation's metropolis had an 11-1/2 inch fall. In some New England and middle Atlantic areas there was as much as 17 inches. Dickinson County, Va., had 27 inches.

Coast guard cutters off the New England coast were busy shepherding small vessels in distress to safe waters.

Numerous industrial plants throughout the east were still hampered by absenteeism because of road and weather conditions. Clear but cold weather was in prospect for most of the area.

Traffic accidents and over-exertion in shoveling snow were responsible for most of the deaths. The toll by states:

KICK-OFF FOR DRIVE PLANNED

Breakfast At Hotel Frances Red Cross Event Friday

This year's official opening of the Red Cross campaign for Ouachita parish will be preceded by a "Kick-off" breakfast at the Frances Hotel on Friday, February 28 at 8 a. m. The announcement is made by George M. Snellings, Jr., general chairman of the 1947 drive to raise $40,000.00 for the Ouachita Parish Red Cross chapter. All persons who have volunteered their services and others who are willing to assist on committees are invited to attend the affair.

Planned as a special feature of the morning will be a talk made by W. W. Jefferson, appointed in September 1946 as manager of the Southeastern area, American Red Cross, who has had wide experience at home and abroad since he joined the organization's staff in 1935.

Prior to his present assignment, Jefferson served as director of the International Cooperation and Service to Insular Chapters Office of Insular and Foreign Operations, American Red Cross.

He served as American Red Cross delegate to the League of Red Cross Societies and was active in assisting the league to meet the problems created by the end of the war. He participated in the preparations for a conference of the board of governors of the League of Red Cross Societies in October 1945 at Geneva, to explore future plans and activities of the league. In November he attended the first conference of the league to be held since 1938. At this meeting, held in Paris, American Red Cross Chairman Basil O'Connor was elected chairman of the board of governors of the league.

Prior to joining the American National Red Cross staff, Jefferson was teacher and coach at the Culpepper, Va., High School for four years and was active in volunteer Red Cross work, serving for a time as chairman of a local chapter in Virginia. His first work on the staff of the national organization was as a general field representative in Pennsylvania and West Virginia. He then became execu-

DISABLED VETERAN GETS $25,000 HOME

NEWBURGH, N. Y., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Tears slid down the gaunt cheeks of the Ex-GI in the wheelchair.

"I wish," he said softly, "they'd do something everywhere for fellows not as lucky as I am."

The key to his $25,000 home was presented today to 24-year-old Leslie Moores, Jr., totally disabled from his waist down by a German machine gun bullet two years ago.

The attractive, six-room bungalow was built by money contributions and the donated labor of his Newburgh neighbors.

The home is equipped with special ramps to make things easier for the crippled ex-private. Hallways and doors were made extra wide.

The veteran, a former employe of the Newburgh News, is married and has an eight-year-old daughter.

BRIEF 'BLACKOUTS' DOWNTOWN TODAY

Lights And Power To Be Off At Intervals During The Afternoon

There are to be four or five short interruptions in city light and power service in the area south of Louisville avenue and north of Texas avenue, from the river to the east city limits, including the business district, this afternoon, W. D. H. Rodriguez, commissioner of public utilities, announced yesterday.

Starting at 1:30 o'clock, the commissioner said, a department crew will "cut into service" the new No. 3 substation at the rear of the old post office building at St. John and Grammont, and No. 4 sub-station in the alley a half-block south of Arkansas avenue, between North Seventh and Eighth streets.

Taken out of commission during the afternoon's operations will be the substations at Ninth and DeSiard streets, and Louisville avenue and Sixth street. The equipment of the latter is to be moved to the 3500 block of Dick Taylor street to create a new south side unit.

Sunday afternoon was chosen for the necessary change-overs, the commissioner explained, because there would be less inconvenience to subscribers during that period. Sunday school and church services will have been concluded when the work is started and hospitals would have only emergency operations.

All motion picture shows are in the affected area but the owners were assured by the commissioner that the few "blackouts" would be brief, lasting "only four or five minutes."

MOLOTOV SENDS SECOND PROTEST

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov has sent a second note to Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Secretary of State, which described as "not convincing" Marshall's explanation of a statement concerning the Soviet Union attributed to Dean Acheson, under-secretary of state, the Moscow radio said tonight.

The radio said Russia's second note, dated Feb. 20, answered Marshall's reply of Feb. 18 to the original Soviet note, which charged that Acheson displayed a "hostile attitude" toward Russia while testifying before the U. S. Senate's Atomic Energy commission earlier this month.

Marshall replied that Acheson spoke "in line of duty" when he described Russia's foreign policy as "agressive and expanding."

"Under our standards," the Secretary of State said in his reply, "a restrained comment on the matter of public policy is not a slander. Therefore I know that on second thought you will not attribute hostility to frankness."

The second Russian note, labeling the reply "not convincing," said that the Soviet government "retained its opinion as expressed in Mr. Molotov's note of Feb. 14."

Marshall's reply to the Molotov protest had explained also that Acheson's statement was not volunteered by the undersecretary, but was in response to questioning by a member of the senate.

QUICK PASSAGE SEEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Speaker Martin, Republican, Massachusetts, expressed conviction today that a ban on portal pay claims will "breeze through" Congress. His opinion was advanced to reporters as other congressmen anticipated an ultimate supreme court test of the measure's constitutionality. The bill is to reach the House floor for action on Thursday. It will provide the first congressional test on labor legislation since the Republican election victories last November.

Jes' Ramblin'

With the wearing strain of successive hope and discouragement, Mrs. Aline Banister, 514 Oak Street, sits near her phone by day and night, awaiting news of her son, Dr. Ray Banister, lost in his plane since December 26 in the depths of a severe Alaskan winter. But motherlike, she ever nourishes in her heart the undying thought that at any time word will come that he is still safe. "Such word may come now at any minute," she declared as her eyes glistened with a new light. "I can only wait and pray!" declared this brave mother as eight weeks have passed with no tidings since Dr. Banister flew with a passenger from Seward, Alaska, en route to Homer, 200 miles away in connection with his hospital duties.

9 I. C. FREIGHT CARS DERAILED

Leave Track In Heart Of Monroe But No Injuries Reported

Nine cars of an east bound Illinois Central freight train were derailed in the heart of Monroe early last night, but none of the cars turned over and no personal injuries were reported as a result of the accident.

Automobile traffic over the crossings at North Third, North Fourth, and North Fifth streets was halted from about 6:30 until 8 o'clock when about 15 cars behind those derailed derailed were removed by a switch engine, thus permitting traffic at the North Third and North Fourth street crossings.

But derailed cars, extending from just east of North Fourth almost to "Five Points," North Sixth, still blocked North Fifth late last night.

The accident did not interfere with the regular railroad schedules for passenger traffic. A passenger passing through Monroe shortly after the accident was routed along one of the sidings past the blocked section of track.

The cause of the derailment was not reported, but the cars were said to have begun leaving the track at the first switch east of North Second street and they were pulled more than two blocks in upright positions before the train halted.

Cars derailed included four box cars, a tank car, and four flat cars.

'LUCKY' LUCIANO HELD IN HAVANA

Former New York Vice Overlord To Be Asked To Leave Country

He was placed in an immigration camp and an authoritative source said he would be asked to leave the country immediately. If he refuses he will be held until April 28, the expiration date of the six-month permit under which he entered Cuba last October. Immigration authorities said the permit would not be renewed.

Benito Herrera, chief of secret police, said he ordered the arrest on the grounds that Luciano's residence in Havana "may cause public disorder." A police investigation was launched after the United States cut off narcotics shipments to Cuba, saying Luciano's presence might lead to diversion of the drugs.

Alfredo Pequeno, the minister of interior, said Luciano was questioned in the ministry's private offices and then taken to Tiscornia Camp, across Havana Bay.

The police trailed Luciano when he left his two-story furnished house in his automobile. He and two bodyguards stopped at a public cafe in Vedado suburb, where police made the arrest. He offered no resistance.

Apparently Luciano had no knowledge he was being sought, for he had promised by telephone to be available for a statement to newspaper men early in the afternoon.

Police said Luciano's bodyguards were two young men hired by him here and were known to be members of a "revolutionary" group. They were not held.

Authorities said that immediately after his arrest Luciano attempted to reach a Havana race track operator by phone. Luciano had been connected with track operations since his arrival here last October, it was reported.

Immigration authorities asserted Luciano entered Cuba by plane from Italy, where he had been living since his pardon last year by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, from a 1936 sentence of 30 to 40 years for pandering.

He was traveling under an Italian passport which gave his occupation as a merchant and his name as Salvatore Lucania, an authority said. He was said also to have passports and

LEBLANC GIVES LEGAL BACKING TO GAS CONSERVATION POLICY

BATON ROUGE, La., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The attorney general of Louisiana today gave legal sanction to a proposal to put teeth into the state's controversial natural gas conservation policy.

Attorney General Fred LeBlanc advised Acting Governor J. Emile Verret that the conservation commissioner had a right to:

1. Officially define as waste "the severance and production of natural gas * * * for shipment and transmission through pipe lines to new markets not now served with Louisiana gas, in new areas, adequately supplied with other fuels, or the expansion of markets as they existed on June 1, 1946, in areas adequately supplied with other fuels."

2. Require producers of natural gas when they applied for their periodic allowables—orders setting the amount they might produce—to disclose the destination planned for the gas.

3. Take this destination into account in setting the allowable.

The Louisiana policy, as applied officially, has been to frown on increased exports of natural gas to areas having an adequate supply of coal for industrial use.

The ruling by the attorney general today did not put into effect the proposed control by means of allowables over the destination of Louisiana natural gas. Acting Governor Verret asked the attorney general whether a proposed order, embodying this principle and prepared by the office of natural gas conservation, would be legal. The attorney general ruled that it would.

Actual issuance of such an order would be up to Conservation Commissioner Joseph L. McHugh, who was traveling in north Louisiana today and could not be reached for comment. The natural gas conservation office, which prepared the proposed order, is a branch of the governor's office, not of the state conservation department.

Disclosure, through the attorney general's opinion, of possible new strategy on the part of the state came while the controversy with the H. L.

U. S. WON'T PUSH ISLAND DEMANDS

Plans To Keep Control Of Jap Areas But Not Urge Approval

RUSSIA, BRITAIN OPPOSE IMMEDIATE TRUSTEESHIP

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—In the face of Russian-British opposition, the United States will not demand immediate acceptance of its plan for placing the Japanese mandated islands in the Pacific under a United Nations strategic trusteeship, informed sources said today.

Instead, American Delegate Warren R. Austin was said to be ready to let the proposal stand once it has officially reached the floor of the security council and gone on the agenda. However, the United States will make it clear that it intends to remain on the islands.

The American request that the vast chain of Marshalls, Carolines and Marianas be designated a strategic area under U. S. administration will go before the council next Wednesday.

Great Britain has already indicated it will renew objections to the plan. London contends that such a step is legally impossible until the Japanese peace treaty has been signed.

Preliminary Russian opposition also centered around the time element.

The United States considers the 623 islands essential to American security. The chains include such wartime bases as Saipan, Tinian, Truk, Eniwetok, Majuro and Kwajalein.

Acceptance of the strategic area proposal would amount to virtual outright annexation. As administering authority, the United States would have rights to erect fortifications, ban foreign planes and close the islands for security reasons.

On another council problem—the selection of a governor for Trieste—the French suggested Pablo de Azcarate y Flores, who was a prewar Spanish ambassador to London. He

2 DESIARD STREET BURGLARS CAUGHT

Captured In Same Block Within 20 Minutes; Clear Other Break-ins

Two burglars were captured in the same block of DeSiard street within a 20-minute period early yesterday morning.

One of them, an eleven-year-old colored boy who came here two weeks ago from Warden, near Delhi, proved by his subsequent confession to be the bungling cracksman who got $2 in pennies and failed to open the safe of the Messina Food store last Wednesday night and who unsuccessfully tried to enter the Miller-Guerriero Hardware, Krauss and Cahn and Montgomery Ward stores Tuesday night.

The other, George Williams, 36, Negro, of 808 1/2 Olive street, claimed he was on his first "job," when Patrolman William Booth caught him as he came out the back door of the Square Deal Shoe Shop, 605 DeSiard, at 1:30 a.m. with $8.70 he had taken from a cash drawer.

Booth had just placed his prisoner in a patrol car bearing Patrolman R. G. May and B. J. McBride when the officers were directed by radio from headquarters to go to the Busy Bee restaurant at 621 DeSiard. There they found Tom Gaines, 50-year-old assistant manager of the colored cafe, holding the little Negro, whom he had run down after seeing him trying to get into the rear of the Grant drug store, next door.

At the parish prison, where they were transferred from city jail after signing confessions, the man and boy burglars joined O. C. Fletcher, 17-year-old Negro of Booker T. Washington addition, who yesterday had added two more house burglaries to the ten he admitted after his arrest Thursday. Reported stolen in the burglaries confessed by Fletcher was a total of $745, but he had only $3.86 on his person when he was arrested

18-YEAR-OLD GIRL MARRIES MAN, 73

CHICAGO, Feb. 22.—(AP)—An 18-year-old Chicago waitress who "doesn't look her age" today became the bride of a 73-year-old retired business man.

The girl, Laverne Anderson, daughter of a street car conductor who is ordained minister without a church, and Cornelius J. Boldt, a widower, were married in a private ceremony, family friends and relatives reported. They gave newsmen no further information.

The girl told reporters before the ceremony "I will have happiness and security and love. That is why I decided to marry him. That and because we belong to the same church.

The couple was reported to have met in a Y. M. C. A. Cafeteria where the girl worked. Boldt's first wife died several years ago.

Calls On U. S. To Give Strong Lead

Top Experts On Foreign Loans Acknowledge American Dollars To Be Sent Abroad To Fight Totalitarianism

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Secretary of State George C. Marshall said tonight that "a strong lead and definite assistance from the United States will be necessary" if "democratic processes in many countries are to resume their functioning."

Speaking at a luncheon of the Princeton National Alumni Association after he had been awarded an honorary degree of doctor of laws by the university, Marshall said "we have had a cessation of hostilities, but we have no genuine peace."

He urged that the United States lend its aid "if the productive facilities of the world are to be restored."

"Now that an immediate peril is not plainly visible, there is a natural tendency to relax and return to business as usual, pleasure as usual," he said.

Marshall said that many of our people are becoming indifferent "to the long-term danger of the nation's security" and generally have the attitude of spectators.

"Spectators of life are not those who will retain their liberty, nor are they likely to contribute to their country's security," he added.

Marshall said he felt that "we are seriously failing in our attitude toward the international problem whose solution will largely determine our future" because there are many "who deplore but few who are willing to act—to act directly or to influence political action."

Calling for a deeper understanding of history "that records the main events of what led to, created and destroyed great civilizations," and urging young people to take part in politics, the secretary of state recalled that:

"Twenty-five years ago the people of this country, and of the world for that matter, had the opportunity to make vital decisions regarding their future welfare. I think we must agree that the negative course of action followed by the United States after the first World War did not achieve order or security and that it had a direct bearing upon the recent war and its endless tragedy."

More than 3,000 persons attended the ceremonies at Princeton University today at which Marshall and 34 other outstanding personalities in the arts, education and public service received honorary degrees.

Among those honored were Robert McLean, Princeton class of 1913, president of the Associated Press and publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin; New Jersey Chancellor A. Dayton Oliphant, and Chester I. Barnard, president of the N. J. Bell Telephone Company, all receiving doctor of laws degrees. Motion Picture Actor James Stewart, 1932, and Jose Ferrer, 1933, actor, producer and director. Both received master of arts degrees.

McLean was cited as "a leader in the continuing struggle for a free press," as "publisher of a great metropolitan daily noted for its editorial independence," and as "head of the world's foremost news gathering organization with the heavy responsibility of collecting and distributing the news of the world with accuracy, responsibility and truth."

AMERICAN DOLLARS WILL FIGHT TOTALITARIANISM

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Top experts on foreign loans and relief now acknowledge after a year of hesitancy, that American dollars will be sent abroad—or held up—to bolster democracy and fight totalitarianism.

It is a distinct shift in policy from the first post-war months in 1945. Then American loans and credits were thought of merely as first-aid to help the world back to peace-time health—with no thought of politics.

For the world at large it is one of the most important shifts of international financial policy that could take place for this reason: American factories and farms are the only ones now able to turn out the tremendous supplies needed by a rebuilding world.

Further, the nations in the greatest immediate need are those with little or no gold or American dollars. In

SHOTGUN USED IN LYNCHING SOUGHT

30 Accused Men, 29 Identified As Taxi Drivers, In Jail

GREENVILLE, S. C., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Officers concentrated their investigation of Monday's lynch slaying of Willie Earle in a search today for the shotgun used to blow a big hole in the head of the 24-year-old Negro, in connection with which 31 Greenville men have been formally charged with murder.

Sheriff R. H. Bearden, spokesman for the investigators, said a portion of gun stock had been found in a chimney and it was believed it might have been from the weapon sought.

Thirty of the accused men, 29 of them identified as taxi drivers, were in jail today. Bearden said the thirty-first, described as a Greenville business man, was out of the city. Twenty-six of those held, the sheriff reported, have signed statements admitting participation in the case.

A possibility that an early trial might be sought was raised by Solicitor Robert T. Ashmore, who said he might ask for a special term of court. The next regular term of criminal court here is set for March 10.

Bearden said he planned to confer with Circuit Judge J. Robert Martin soon about the bonds to be required of the accused. He indicated he would probably suggest that some bonds be lower than others.

The warrants charging the 31 men with murder were sworn out at 6:45 last night, almost exactly four and one-half days after the Negro's knife-and-shot punctured body was found on a lonely roadside near here, and after one of the most intensive man hunts in South Carolina history.

The Greenville and Pickens county sheriff's officers and city police went to work on the case early Monday. Governor J. Storm Thurmand quickly ordered the state constabulary to the scene. Federal Bureau of Investigation officers arrived that afternoon.

Jailor J. Ed Gilstrap, from whom the prisoner was taken from the Little Pickens county jail, reported that several of the men in the pre-dawn mob wore taxicab drivers' caps and that several of their automobiles were taxicabs. So Sheriff R. H. Bearden be-

HARRY K. THAW'S LIFE IN BALANCE

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The colorful, trouble-brimmed life of Harry K. Thaw hung in the balance tonight as his household reported his condition as "very bad" and a medical bulletin stated he was "just holding his own."

While the one-time multi-millionaire playboy, now 76, hovered near death from a heart attack, there was a hint that "some of the good things Mr. Thaw has done and of which the world knows nothing" may be made known.

"He never allowed anyone to want," a household spokesman said. "There was much more to him than the bad things now being brought out all over again."

Much that is known about Thaw was written into the record early in the century following the shooting of Stanford White, nationally known architect, atop the old Madison Square Garden in New York on June 25, 1906.

This sensational event resulted from the alleged relations between White and the former chorus girl, Evelyn Nesbit, before her marriage to Thaw.

Thaw was twice committed to insane asylums after White was killed, and twice was declared sane. He spent nearly a million dollars to prevent commitment the first time, and made a spectacular escape to Canada.

In addition to being tried twice for murder in connection with White's death, Thaw was in the headlines at various times when accused of:

Horsewhipping a boy, Fred Gump, Jr.; breach of promise of marriage by Miss Forrest Walsh; paddling a show girl, Mae O'Neill, with a hair brush, and for numerous damage suits.

In Atlantic City today a feminine voice asked a newspaper office about Thaw's condition, and then sobbed into the telephone that the speaker was the former Evelyn Nesbit, now 61.

19 LEPER PATIENTS GIVEN DISCHARGES

CARVILLE, La., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Nineteen patients who were treated with promin, one of the sulfone drugs, have been discharged from the leprosarium here after 12 consecutive months of negative bacterioscopy, Dr. G.H. Gaget of the U. S. Marine Hospital, announced.

The medical director reported in the hospital's official publication, The Star, that treatment of individual members of the group ranged from one and one-half to five years.

There had been no known relapses, Dr. Faget noted, adding that five of the patients had chosen to remain under observation at the leprosarium. Two other patients treated with diasone, another sulfone drug, were discharged with arrested disease, Dr. Faget said.

"Until faster-acting remedies are discovered, the sulfone drugs must be considered the optimal treatment of leprosy," the medical director concluded.

By 8:15 p. m. they will be ready to raise the curtain on the eagerly awaited stage presentation of the comedy that has "tickled the national funny-bone" since 1939.

The Exchange Club of Monroe has undertaken the sponsorship of this memorable event in order to raise funds for various civic projects. The performance will take place at the Neville High School Auditorium, and tickets are still available at Kaliski Jewelry Store, for those who have not yet purchased them.

Brandon Peters and Alice Thomason (Mrs. Peters) head the company's New York cast, which includes Allen Andrews, Frances Helm, Lee Sanders, Roberta Bellinger, Henry Craig Neslo, David Jones, Eleanor de Vito, Ruth Smith, Helen F. Evans, Neville Westman, and the three brothers, Donald, Richard and David Frank.

By special arrangement with the original producer, Oscar Serlin, the firm of Cargill, Kling and Jones has arranged and managed this particular tour of "Life With Father." Cecil Clovelly has handled the staging, and the setting—a luxurious morning room in a nineteenth century home—was designed after sketches by Karl Steinhauser, staff designer of "House Beautiful" magazine.

The play is based on Clarence Day's best-selling book of the same name, and was written by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse, co-authors of two other recent stage successes, "Arsenic and Old Lace" and "State of the Union."

THE NATION TODAY
By James Marlow

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Organized labor has a hard time defending its jurisdictional strikes.

They're strikes caused by a dispute between two or more unions. Most often they don't involve the boss. He just stands by and suffers.

President Truman wants Congress to ban them. Congress is talking of doing so. Labor leaders dislike them.

C. I. O. President Phillip Murray this week suggested he and A. F. L. President William Green get together to bar them.

Murray made his suggestion at a Senate labor committee hearing. The chairman, Senator Taft, Ohio Republican, took a dim view of the idea.

He said he thought Congress ought to do something about banning jurisdictional strikes. In other words: It was too late for labor to try.

But what could be done if Murray and Green got together? The C. I. O. and A. F. L. are just associations of unions, each of which is independent.

About all Murray and Green could do would be to ask their C. I. O. and A. F. L. unions to promise not to have jurisdictional strikes against one another.

Here is an explanation of the jurisdictional strike:

It's a strike between two or more unions over things like these:

Trying to get workers in a plant to join one union instead of another; one union claiming the right to do work claimed by another.

There are two kinds of jurisdictional disputes:

1. Inter-union. That's between two unions of opposite parent organizations. For example: A C. I. O. union fighting with an A. F. L. union. This occurs frequently.

2. Intra-union. That's between two unions of the same parent organization. For example: Between two A. F. L. or two C. I. O. unions.

A jurisdictional strike almost never occurs between C. I. O. unions. It happens most often between A. F. L. unions. The reasons:

C. I. O. unions are organized by industries. For instance: All steelworkers are members of the steelworkers union, no matter what kind of steel work they do.

So any squabble between groups of steelworkers is settled within the union, since all of them are members of the same union.

But A. F. L. unions are organized by crafts, instead of by industries as in the C. I. O. Which means:

Men doing one kind of work are within one A. F. L. union; men doing another kind are in another A. F. L. union. For example:

In a big plant the carpenters are all in a carpenters union; all the metal workers are in a metal workers union.

Most A. F. L. jurisdictional strikes occur over disputes between the carpenters and the metal workers, and over something like this:

Should this particular job be handled by the carpenters or the metal workers?

The most publicized recent jurisdictional strike was that of the A. F. L. stagehands and carpenters in Hollywood.

They were fighting over the right to build some movie sets, each claiming it should do the job.

But jurisdictional strikes are only a minor part of labor strikes in general.

The government's Bureau of Labor Statistics has gathered figures on jurisdictional strikes, although they're months old.

In the first six months of 1946 there were 2,186 strikes for all reasons, involving 2,996,000 workers.

But only 92 of them were jurisdictional strikes—or 2 per cent of the total—involving only 184,900 workers.

But at the same time:

There were 1,082 strikes—or 84 per cent of the total—involving 2,513,000 workers, caused by disputes between unions and employers over wages and hours.

HEART ATTACK FATAL TO E. E. STRICKLAND

E. E. Strickland, for many years Central Louisiana circulation representative for the Shreveport Times, was reported in Monroe yesterday to have dropped dead of a heart attack at the I. O. O. F. hall in Pineville while attending a lodge meeting Friday night.

Mr. Strickland, who was about 60 years of age, had his headquarters at Alexandria and resided in Pineville. Several Monroe friends were to attend funeral services at Pineville at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

ELECTRICONIC GROUP TO FORM

Monroe Selected For Warfare Company Of U. S. Naval Reserve

Captain Thomas J. Ryan, U. S. N., eighth naval district director of naval reserve at New Orleans, announced that Monroe, La., has been selected among other cities of the district for the formation of an electriconic warfare company of the United States naval reserve.

It is proposed that a naval short wave radio station be established here in connection with other electronic equipment valued at from fifty to one hundred thousand dollars. The object is for the navy to have as reserve units, fully trained personnel at all times in the future. This duty will be on a voluntary basis but all officers and enlisted personnel will receive drill pay for participation. Former naval officers and enlisted men will retain the rank or rate held at discharge and educational programs leading to further promotion, will be formulated. In addition all members of the company will be eligible for a two weeks' training cruise each year aboard a major warship with full pay and allowances.

The proposed company is to be composed of five officers and approximately forty enlisted men. Additional units will be added in accordance with demand. Although former naval men will be given preference, Captain Ryan states that men with communication experience in any branch of the armed services will be considered eligible.

Captain Ryan asks that all former officers and enlisted men interested in such an organization contact Lieutenant Jack M. Knowles at 'phone 760 or 2205-M for further particulars.

OPTIMIST CLUB HAS LUNCHEON

Brotherhood Week Is Observed; Talks Given By Three Men

The Optimist Club observed "Brotherhood Week" at their Friday luncheon at Hotel Frances when President C. C. Bell, Jr., introduced Rabbi F. K. Hirsch who outlined the movement which was initiated in 1910 by Jews, Protestants and Catholics and which is now nation-wide in scope.

The rabbi introduced Everett Burgoyne, representing the Catholic faith; Sackman Marx, the Jewish belief; and former Congressman C. E. McKenzie, representing the Protestant faith.

Mr. Burgoyne said in part that brotherhood is an essential need of the world. Bigotry and intolerance can be combatted by brotherhood. One does not have to change his religion to practice the truth.

Mr. Marx told of war-time experiences, telling how men of all faiths pitched in and constructed a church while in Europe and men of all faiths gathered there to worship. This he said was an exhibition of true brotherhood and afforded a broader understanding of religious affiliations of others. The Germans and Japanese have ideals instilled that are contrary to brotherhood and it will take time to spread the gospel of brotherhood.

Mr. McKenzie said that service clubs bring together men of varied faiths and are an example of essential brotherhood. Brotherhood, he said, is a goal which the entire world should seek to attain.

Bill Reilly, Shreveport, gave a brief resume of a motorboat racing regatta. A committee was named to work out some plan here which will coincide with boys' work activities.

Adjutant Charles Stratford, chairman of the boys' work committee, reported that Junior Optimists have elected officers. He urged that funds be raised to carry on work of the juniors. Dr. William Epstein reported on boxing and said that a substantial sum was realized from a recent boys' bout.

Newly-elected officers of the Junior Optimist Club were guests at the luncheon.

Great Britain, revealing the exceeding gravity of her economic position with promulgation of a drastic program for export production by means of belt-tightening, is attempting to do by persuasion what others have tried through totalitarianism.

"We do not say that whether you like it or not you have got to go into the coal mine, or steel factory, or whatever it may be," says Sir Stafford Cripps in commenting on what the government calls its "working pattern for the nation."

"Instead, we try to induce employers and employes to conform to a pattern of industrial production in order to get the greatest benefits for the nation as a whole."

Export production 40 per cent above the pre-war level for 1947, ultimately 75 per cent above is the goal. Otherwise, says the government statement, "the foundations of our national life" will be at risk.

Labor is asked to give up arrangements which restrict production, prices or employment; to postpone its hopes for shorter hours, increase individual production, hold older workers to their jobs beyond normal retirement, accept continued rationing along with all the British people.

Through this the hope is to attain more coal, more production, more foreign exchange, and reverse conditions which will result this year in a $1,400,000,000 government deficit.

Strict control of imports is planned, presumably holding down on consumer goods in favor of raw materials which can be exported as finished goods.

This is a picture of a nation still at war, with, as Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard put it, an offer to the British people only of "toil, tears and sweat. Blood alone they are spared in these piping days of peace."

Another serious aspect of the problem is that, faced with an unsettled world, the government realizes it must do with a smaller army, both for the sake of expense and to shift manpower into industry.

One of the trickiest items in the program involves importing foreign labor—principally from among the displaced peoples of Europe.

Here we have a country, already short, forced to bring in more mouths to feed in a desperate attempt to relieve and maintain its world trade. And at the same time hundreds of thousands of Britons are reported to be seeking a way out of the homeland, desiring to settle in South Africa, Canada, Australia and the United States. Some have wanted to get away so badly that they have been willing to undertake the hazardous overland trip from Cairo to South Africa.

Here we have a picture of a great people, mobilized first for military and then for economic survival for seven years, fighting against a changing world economic and political system; seeking to preserve the economics of their little island against a movement of industry to the areas which actually produce the raw materials; compromising with the social forces sweeping 46,000,000 tightly-enclosed people, yet fighting, too, against a corporate state, permanent regimentation, totalitarianism, or reduction to a nonentity.

3 MORE ACCUSED OF FIRING TIMBER

Said To Have Started Blazes On Brown Paper Mills' Land

COLUMBIA, La., Feb. 22.—(Special)—Three more men have been charged here in connection with the recent wave of forest fires in the Caldwell-Jackson—Ouachita "corner."

The trio, accused of wilful burning of timber lands, were named by Sheriff G. E. Erskine, of Caldwell parish, as H. W. Furlow, Eli Amerson and Jake Knighton, all of the Mount Pleasant community of Ward 5.

The last two named were arrested by sheriff's deputies today but Furlow was reported to have been out of the parish today and was to be brought in Monday.

Meanwhile, James E. Mixon, chief of the Louisiana forestry commission's fire protection division, charged that at least three-fourths of the fires occurring in the state are the deliberate work of incendiaries, and said that additional arrests are expected.

Mixon estimated that about a quarter-million dollars worth of timber has been destroyed in North Louisiana, chiefly in Bienville, Jackson, Webster and Red River parishes, during the last six weeks.

Six persons now are under arrest in the 8-parish area. Tuesday, Sam, Alford and Leon Cole, father, son and grandson, respectively, were arrested by Sheriff Erskine on warrants charging wilful burning of timber. The Coles are also residents of Ward five.

Following the arrest of the Coles, District Attorney Cameron C. Minard of Caldwell parish said the charges probably would be reduced to "negligent" burning. They are scheduled for arraignment March 10.

Announcement of the charges against the last 3 men arrested was made by Massey H. Anderson, state forester.

Furlow, Anderson said, is charged in connection with a fire on February 17, which destroyed 30 acres of valuable young pine timber on property belonging to the Brown Paper Mill of Monroe.

Amerson and Knighton, the forester said, are charged in connection with a forest fire on February 18, which burned through 25 acres of the mill's timber.

The warrants were sworn out by Forest Ranger Jack Gregory of district 3, with headquarters at Olla, after Gregory completed an investigation.

The latest charges bring to 11 the number filed in connection with the series of fires which have damaged woodlands in all sections of Louisiana.

No new fires have been reported to district four forestry headquarters at Minden.

Island Bases

The United States has made formal request to be appointed administrator under UN trusteeship of the former Japanese-mandated islands in the Pacific, now in American possession. Inasmuch as the security council has several more pressing items on its agenda, such as control of atomic fission, general disarmament and Albania, it will be some time before this request can be considered.

After World War I the mandate system was set up under the League of Nations as a compromise between the former practice of annexing conquered territories and an aspiration for international supervision of dependent populations. The trusteeship provisions of the UN charter, which the United States did much to frame, merely copies League of Nations procedure.

Within the administration at Washington, the offer to UN represents a compromise between the opinion of the armed services, which want to annex the former Japanese mandates, and the opinion of the department of state which, for reasons of international prestige, wants to place them under trusteeship. The islands would remain an "integral part of the United States," however; could be declared strategic areas and, as such, closed from time to time to UN supervision and inspection.

There will be some objection on the ground that this is virtual annexation. These objections will be long and loud in the camp of the commies. The war in the Pacific, in its middle phases, was a battle for bases. These are the bases America won, paid for with American blood. Few will question that the United States, as concerns the welfare of the inhabitants, will make a good trustee. Uncle Sam will pamper, feed and coddle them.

The islands are "the great wall of the Pacific," which separates the continent of Asia from North and South America. If control of them constitutes a minimum of American defense, the reverse is also true—that their possession means potential control of East Asia and its warm water ports.

In developing this vast area, so small in land content but commanding so wide a sweep of ocean, the United States will be undertaking to guard the peace of the Pacific under the auspices and within the framework of the United Nations.

A HELPING HAND

There should be no doubt that humanitarian motives alone were behind President Truman's decision to rush huge quantities of food supplies to Rumania. For the president, the fact that half a million people were reported starving was enough without inquiring too deeply into the causes of the emergency. But in these days even a step as innocuous as feeding the starving has political implications and this is especially true when a nation in the Russian sphere of influence is involved.

The food shortage in Rumania, as in other countries, is largely a natural aftermath of war. But in Rumania's case it has been aggravated by two things. As a former enemy, the country is not eligible for UNRRA supplies. In addition, the Russian military occupation in that country, as elsewhere, has been approximately as beneficial to the countryside as a plague of locusts.

Under these conditions the decision to divert large quantities of food, destined for the United States army to Rumania may be politically wise as well as merciful. If it is not likely to loosen the Communist grip on this Balkan nation, it is at least likely to lead the Rumanians to compare the treatment they get from the United States and Russia.

The helping hand may, of course, be turned against the United States if the Russians use relief supplies paid for with American taxpayers' dollars to further their own political ends, as they have in the past. But this will not occur if there is strict observance of the president's instructions for distribution of the supplies by the Rumanian Red Cross, under American Red Cross supervision, "with guarantees against discrimination on political, racial, religious or social grounds"—though that last stipulation may sound like something picked out of a radio broadcast.

AN IMMIGRANT FLOOD

Legal immigrants are now entering the United States at the rate of 138,000 a year, which is seven times the influx during the thirties. But this is just a handful compared to those entering illegally. Of immigrants coming in without passports, 170,000 are being caught at ports of entry, but it is estimated that 850,000 a year get in undetected.

America is the chief goal for residents of miserable, war-ruined, over-crowded countries. It would require an army to keep those out who have nothing to lose by making the effort to get into the United States. How much these illegal immigrants have contributed to the housing shortage must remain a guess.

The American people look with less favor on large-scale immigration than they formerly did. Too many immigrants in recent years have proved to be unassimilable and, in fact, communistic. That the administration is putting forth only half-hearted efforts to round up aliens illegally here is of course unfortunate.

ACTION ON A PASSIVE RESOLUTION

A Bridgeport, Conn., local of the C. I. O. United Electrical Workers has refused a place on its executive board to a member who, though otherwise qualified, is a member of the Communist party. This sensible, forthright action is an encouraging contrast to the general C. I. O. resolution adopted at the Atlantic City convention which said that the members "resent and reject" Communist interference, and let it go at that.

It is good to see that this passive resolution does not prevent an independent, democratic action by members of local or national unions who do not wish to see their welfare and interests neglected by an officer in favor of promoting Communist doctrine.

Froth with a moderate chuckle content. . . . LOW BRIDGE: Columbia's "Alias Mr. Twilight" (Michael Duane-Trudy Marshall). The kind of screen fare that needs an alias. . . . BEST PERFORMANCE: Macdonald Carey in "Suddenly It's Spring."

There's at least one chuckle in a new story from Canada which reports that Walter de Havilland, the 75-year-old estranged father of Actresses Olivia de Havilland and Joan Fontaine, is seeking a reconciliation with his famous spring-offs. De Havilland says he's been parted from his daughters since his divorce from their mother, way back yonder in 1914. It's too bad that he neglected to consult the girls' press agents about that date before asking them to forget and forgive the past. According to all their publicity, neither Olivia nor Joan had been born in 1914. It looks like somebody already HAS forgotten the past—at least a few years of it!

In one of yesterday's trade papers was a little news item, announcing that Universal-International will spend $850,000 to advertise the picture, "The Egg and I." At first thought an exploitation campaign on that scale doesn't seem surprising; other advertising budget in recent movie history have been as large or even larger. But anyone who has been on the Hollywood sidelines as many years as I have is entitled to one startled gasp. If I remember correctly, "The Miracle Man," one of the greatest pictures of all time, was produced in 1920 for an overall cost of approximately $35,000. It's advertising budget was too negligible to mention. In those days pictures could be produced by men with ideas, as well as by men with millions.

Director Roy del Ruth, according to a Hollywood gossip column, "swears he has 'another Lana Turner' in Marie Castegnaro, whom he discovered in a little theater play." I have the greatest respect for del Ruth's discernment as a star-picker, but I question Miss Castegnaro's ability to emulate Lana's career. There just aren't enough men in Hollywood to go around.

Laraine Day, in bemoaning the fact that picture commitments will prevent her from attending the Brooklyn Dodgers' opening game this season, admitted quite candidly that she knows nothing about baseball. That may be, but it seems to me she's a definite prospect. Few runners in baseball history have shown such speed in getting from first to second.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Sunday School Lesson For March 2
Scripture: John 12:12-50; Mark 11:1-10
By William E. Gilroy, D. D.

"Claims" does not seem quite the word to apply to the sayings of Jesus concerning Himself. The word suggests a self-assertiveness that was in no sense characteristic of the Master or His spirit.

He was confident concerning His mission and His teaching. He was sure that He had come from God, and that He was doing the Father's will. But He claimed no earthly greatness. He said He was among the disciples as one who served, that He had come to minister and not to be ministered unto, and His mission was to give His life a ransom for many.

So the word "claims" is not fully acceptable, though Jesus did assert with clearness His divine nature. His divine mission, and His divine authority. That authority was of the truth inherent in the words He uttered.

He really made no claim except in the truth that He declared, and His divinity was in the completeness with which He did the Father's will "In Him," wrote Paul (Colossians 2:9), "dwelleth all the fullness of the godhead bodily."

The revelation in Christ was of God's spiritual nature. His grace and love toward man, the message of which was the gospel that Jesus proclaimed.

I have never seen any value in speculations concerning the nature of Jesus, beyond that clear fact which His life and teachings, and His own declaration, establish—that He was one with the Father in His mission as the Saviour of men. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father also."

I sat once in a group of ministers where the discussion fell upon the question of the human limitations of Jesus. Obviously, there were limitations. He hungered and was athirst; He slept and He wept; He felt the need of rest and prayer; He was subject to temptation.

The writer of the Book of Hebrews has much to say about the reality of His humanity, in asserting at the same time that it was in that humanity that He revealed divinity, and that in Him God and man were united.

But in that company of ministers was one man who believed that Jesus in His earthly life had such unlimited knowledge and power that, if He had chosen to do so, He could have given to His age electric lights and similar modern inventions.

To me, such an assumption is at once questionable, unnecessary, and distracting. It diverts attention from the uniquely moral and spiritual mission of Jesus.

He did not come into the world to give it new machines and inventions. He came to bear witness unto truth, to give men the message of God's love, and to incarnate in Himself the love that He bade them bear to one another.

His claim upon you and me is that we should love one another, as He has loved us.

IN WASHINGTON

By Peter Edson
(NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Anti-labor forces seeking to push new union regulation legislation through Congress have now succeeded in bringing the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. closer together than they have been at any time since December, 1942.

That is the inescapable conclusion to be drawn from the recent exchange of letters between A. F. of L. President William Green and C. I. O. president Philip Murray. Each has appointed a five-man committee to meet and discuss common action on their current top priority problem—defeat of the more than 50 labor regulation bills now before Congress.

Merger of the A. F. of L. and C. I. O. is probably a long way off.

Leaders of the two movements are too jealous of each other's power for immediate action. Each will want to know exactly what he is going to get out of the deal. Green says the new committees must be prepared to discuss unity before they discuss common action against restrictive legislation. Murray says action against anti-labor laws must be agreed upon before there can be any discussion of unity.

Steps which have brought the two leaders even this close together have all been taken within the last ten weeks. On December 5 Murray called for "unified action by all labor groups against the ferocious attack now being made on organized labor. The A. F. of L. executive council meeting in Miami at the end of January replied by proposing unity with C. I. O. and by naming a five-man committee—including John L. Lewis—to meet with a similar C. I. O. committee.

On February 18, Murray named his five-man committee—including himself—and said they were ready to meet with the A. F. of L. group on 24 hours' notice. The last time Murray and Lewis met was at the president's labor-management conference in the fall of 1945. They said "nuts" to each other and accomplished nothing.

General Strike Possible

If and when they are able to get together and bury the hatchet in the ground instead of each other, the very people who have been able to play one group against the other may have most cause for regret. And the public which has been the chief victim of inter-union warfare may be made to suffer all the more through having to buck solidarity within the American labor movement.

A general strike of American labor—inconceivable under the present divided house setup—would be entirely possible if there were labor unity. There has been labor disunity for more than ten years.

It was in the fall of 1936 that the A. F. of L. expelled ten new industrial unions under the John L. Lewis leadership. The outcasts formed the C. I. O. the next year. Labor Secretary Frances Perkins tried to bring the two factions together.

In March, 1939, President Roosevelt tried without success to make peace. In 1942, under pressure of the war effort, Sidney Hillman tried and failed as peacemaker. Then in December, 1942, James F. Byrnes as director of war mobilization brought the two groups together to make a no-raiding agreement.

The issue had been brought to a head by C. I. O. efforts to organize unions in Henry Kaiser's A. F. of L. shipyards. The agreement was to remain in effect "until labor unity is effected." The deal fell through because of a hidden paragraph which the C. I. O. negotiators insisted on. It was not made public. It declared that "nothing contained in the accepted agreement will conflict with either party's legal rights."

Forget The Past?

It looked innocent enough, and the A. F. of L. negotiators accepted it. Then the C. I. O. revealed that it interpreted "legal rights" to include the right of every workman under the Wagner Act "to bargain through union representatives of his own choosing." In other words, this unpublished paragraph nullified the whole agreement.

The A. F. of L. executive committee broke off all further efforts to work towards labor unity.

During the war, members of the two groups served on the same committees and made a pretense of cooperation without ever mentioning merger.

Now, after five years of armed truce, they are willing to forget the past and try to get together again, because they are faced with a common danger to their very existence.

New York Day By Day

By CHARLES B. DRISCOLL
Title Reg. U. S. Patent Office

NEW YORK—Diary: Durable Burton Holmes, at 77, is one of the most active and successful lecturers in this country. I heard him recently. His voice and enunciation are just as they have been for many generations, and the charm of his speech is such that a travelog is still top-quality merchandise when he does it.

Holmes travels about the country on closely-calculated tours arranged by his able agent, Bim Pond. Often he travels all day and speaks every night. He never seems to get laryngitis, the bugaboo of public speakers.

If you think travel talks are old-fashioned, you ought to try to get a seat in Carnegie Hall when Holmes is billed. Every winter, he fills the place to the roof, and there are long lines waiting to buy.

The hall, by the way, costs $750 for bare rental for the evening. The additional expenses, including small announcements in the newspapers at $1.85 per line, bring the cost of production to $1,350 before the curtain goes up.

Holmes considers Finland about the most beautiful country in the world, with quite the best cuisine. He has eaten in every country on the globe, and many that are no longer on it, and has never had better food than in Finland. In recent years he has been accused of "attacking the administration" for saying this, and casually mentioning the obvious fact that Finland is the only country, besides Ireland and the United States, that makes any attempt to pay its debts.

I can remember when you were "attacking the administration" if you said an ill word of Finland. Well, for that matter, some of us, not so old as the redaubtable Mr. Holmes, can remember when we went to war to guarantee Poland's freedom.

The inevitable movement to discard the silly name, "Avenue of the Americas," imposed upon good old Sixth avenue by La Guardia as a publicity stunt, has begun, and seems to have a fair chance of success. The town has not accepted the awkward new name. I have never met a taxi driver who has ever entered in his record book a call for Avenue of the Americas. I don't know a merchant on the street who doesn't refer to his place as "on Sixth avenue."

La Guardia was involved in three famous name disputes, all staged for his own publicity. He named La Guardia field after himself, refused to name the East Side highway for General MacArthur because, he said, the General had not yet proved himself worthy of that honor, and changed the name of storied Sixth avenue.

But the best publicity stunt of the year was put on for a London singer, when somebody wrote an obviously phony letter to the London Times, complaining that a high note in the singer's rendition of "Madame Butterfly" caused a water glass to explode in his home. The genius who thought up that one can have any publicity job he wants in New York, at his own figure.

It is remindful of an incident, a half century ago, when the New York World got a budding violinist to attempt to crash the Brooklyn bridge with his fiddle. The police stopped the show.

Tilting tournaments, a picturesque custom dating back to colonial times, are still held in South Carolina.

Our Children

THE TEACHERS' BURDEN

Teachers are hard pressed these days, but there is no need for most of the pressure. It is driving good teachers out of schools faster than they can be replaced and the loss is the community's, the children's grievous loss. It is the result of the present notion of going modern in the classroom without spending the money to allow the luxury. The teacher must do the work of three teachers and use one room for the work that should be done in three other rooms. The result is an exhausted, disgusted teacher and a madhouse in the classroom.

This is what I mean. The order goes out: No individual class instruction; all lessons must be given to groups; all children are to be promoted at the end of the term on the basis of age, height and weight; all pupils must be kept actively busy. You try that. Try dividing a class of 30 children—often more—into four or five groups, teach one group and watch the other four while they keep busy at games, coloring pictures, printing words, hammering a doghouse together in the back of the room. Just try this for a day in a primary class under the pressure of a superintendent who never taught a class in this fashion, but who gathered these ideas from a professor who himself never taught such a class.

The basic idea in this program is right. Children should be taught in small groups; they should be taught as individuals; they should have first-hand experiences to put life and meaning into the words they repeat. But this program means that each class of 35 or so needs three rooms, three teachers—the groups circulating in these rooms and with these teachers. Anybody can see why.

But that costs money and the Board of Education, appointed by tax-conscious politicians, are not going to supply it. Educators want to give school children the best there is, and they are only trying to do their duty. But the boards won't spend the money. The teachers therefore, are the victims, caught between the school supervisors and boards.

We are faced with a shortage of teachers throughout the country and the reasons are plain. Some of them I have set down here. There are others. A higher salary won't make a poor teacher a good one but it will make a good instructor feel happier and, therefore, a better teacher. Poverty helps nobody, inspires no one. When we pay teachers adequately, make their working conditions at least possible, treat them as though they were really intelligent about their work, stop forcing impossible classroom conditions upon them, we will get and hold good instructors.

The teachers themselves should speak out and tell the facts as they are!

Bedtime troubles are a common source of worry for parents. Angelo Patri offers helpful advice in curing these problems in his leaflet "Bedtime Trouble," No. P-28.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

O give thanks unto the Lord; for He is good: for His mercy endureth for ever.—Psalms 136:1.

I see not a step before me as I tread on another year;
But I've left the Past in God's keeping —the Future His Mercy shall clear;
And what looks dark in the distance may brighten as I draw near.
—Mary Gardiner Brainard.

Pitching Horseshoes

By Billy Rose

Would you like to make yourself five hundred dollars for writing a thousand words?

Okay. Cook up a hot story with a wow finish, and write it so it can be printed on one page. A dozen national magazines are looking for these "short shorts."

Billy Rose

Before you start spending the five hundred clams, let me warn you it's no cinch. Walter Davenport, hard-hitting editor at Collier's tells me a thousand short shorts are submitted for every one accepted.

He threw in a footnote which intrigued me. There's one old plot, said Walter, that turns up in practically every mail. The characters and build-up may be different, but the finish is always the same.

It's the classic short short. Its trick finish was used in a Noel Coward movie. tI took the top of people's heads off.

If you want to kick this plot around, take it—it's anybody's. Just don't submit it to Collier's.

Three men killed a guard in a South African diamond mine and escaped with a million dollars worth of uncut stones.

In Capetown, they boarded a tramp steamer bound for Liverpool.

Five hundred miles out of Liverpool, the steamer foundered in a gale. The three thieves got away in an open lifeboat. The eldest of them carried the diamonds in a chamois bag tied around his neck.

After drifting a week, they were half dead from hunger, thirst and sun. The youngest of the three was unconscious.

Then a smudge of smoke appeared on the horizon. It was a ship, heading their way. The older man convinced the other thief that a million divided by two was better than a million divided by three.

They dropped their unconscious partner over the side.

The ship came nearer. It was a big luxury liner.

"Let's kneel and thank God," said the man with the diamonds. As his friend knelt, the older man bashed in his head with an empty water cask. Then he slid the body into the sea. A million divided by one was even better than a million divided by two.

The big ship was bearing down on him. He felt the beat of her propellors. She slowed down. Sailors were lowering a boat.

It was too much for him. He fainted.

When he woke, a nurse was leaning over him. The sun was pouring through a porthole. He was under white sheets.

He clutched for the little bag of diamonds. It was there—all his.

"Where are we bound for?" he asked.

"New York," was the reply.

He smiled. New York. Good place to be with a million dollars.

"What ship is this?" he asked.

"S. S. Titanic," said the nurse.

MADISON PARISH'S LIBRARY OBSERVES SECOND BIRTHDAY

Jeff Snyder Central Figure In Observance At Tallulah Monday

By George V. Lofton
(World Staff Correspondent)

TALLULAH, La., Feb. 22.—A modern Madison parish library, envisioned years ago by Jeff Snyder, "first citizen" of the parish, and brought to fulfillment by Mr. Snyder, State Representative Henry C. "Happy" Sevier, Sheriff C. E. Hester and other civic leaders of the community was two years old last Monday and hundreds of persons from the parish and other parts of Northeast Louisiana attended an "open house" at the library building in observance of the occasion.

During the afternoon the building was packed with visitors who inspected the flower-adorned building and browsed through the books which were shelved in the three spacious rooms of the library, and were served punch and cake by the several hostesses.

Mr. Snyder was the central figure during the observance, cutting the big cake which was placed on a long table near the entrance, and receiving the well wishes of his many friends who called during the afternoon. The 88-year-old patriarch of Madison parish thoroughly enjoyed the spotlight.

Mr. Snyder was the moving spirit in the establishment of the library. He possessed a library which is said to have been one of the finest in Louisiana and which contained books which are priceless. There are 750 volumes in Mr. Snyder's collection and he gave these to the new project. As a nucleus from which to start, others became interested in creating a cultural center for the parish and donated valuable books from their collections, additional volumes were purchased, and now there are 7,500 books available in the library.

Early in 1945, the old parish jail building on Highway 80 was bought by the Association of Charities, and was remodeled into an elaborate three-room structure, with stucco exterior, which was equipped with spacious shelves, desks, chairs and tables which provide plenty of space for one of the most unique libraries in the state. The building is 53 feet long and 30 feet wide.

The entire community participated in the observance of the second anniversary of Madison's library. The Town and Country Club prepared the tea table, the Garden Club provided the flowers, the Tallulah Book Club furnished the antiques which added color and charm to the decorations, the American Legion Auxiliary gave the guest book and registered those who called during the afternoon, and the Parent-Teacher Association provided transportation for those who otherwise would not have been able to attend.

Miss Anna Maria Cannaday, parish librarian, was in charge of arrangements and was assisted by Mrs. Ben Jordan and Mrs. R. C. Williamson, who are her aides at the library. Branch librarians who also were present included Mrs. Eva Stubblefield, Warsaw; Mrs. Pratt King, Waverly; Mrs. A. D. Strong, Mounds, and Mrs. R. Burney Long, Delta Point. Also present was Miss Mary W. Harris, head of the extension department, state library division, of Baton Rouge. Mrs. W. F. Patton and members of the board served punch and cake, assisted by Mrs. Helen M. Drew, former assistant librarian.

Members of the board which includes several of Madison parish's civic leaders who first conceived the plan for establishing the library and who were largely responsible for its success are C. F. Hester, W. H. Hughes, R. N. Ware, Jr., A. J. Boswell, H. C. Sevier and R. R. Spigener.

The time required by an average person to act after a signal is given increases from 60 hundredths of a second at age 20-29 to 66 hundredths of a second for ages above 60.

WESLEY R. DAVIS TELLS OF HOLDUP

Auto Dealer Gives Details Of Third Experience With Robbers

The first detailed story of how he was shot and robbed in a hold-up in Grant parish last Wednesday night was related yesterday morning by Wesley R. Davis, 28, operator of the Monroe Motors company, 217 North Second street, following his return from a hospital at Alexandria, where he was attended for a flesh wound in his upper left arm.

It was only because he pretended to be dead that he escaped becoming actually so, Davis said, for he is sure the gunmen would have killed him if he had continued to resist them. The amount he lost in this robbery—the third in which he has been the victim in less than five years—was slightly in excess of $1,550, instead of $1,400, as originally reported from Alexandria.

Here's Davis' story:

"I left Monroe at 7 p. m. Thursday to drive to Alexandria to buy a used car, and I had the money for the deal in my billfold in $100 and $500 bills amounting to $1,400. I had a lot of car trouble on the way. Near Columbia the fan belt got torn up and I stopped for a new one at a garage there. Then it started raining hard and the engine drowned out a couple of times. Shortly after I went through Tullos a 1941 Chevrolet sedan, with white sidewall tires, went past me and, though I couldn't recall overtaking it, the machine went around me twice more in the next 25 miles.

"It was just 11 o'clock when I neared Big creek on the north edge of Pollock and saw the same car sidewise across the pavement at the south end of the bridge, with a man stooping over and looking under it. I thought the machine had broken down and pulled to a stop on the north approach to the bridge, intending to offer help, when a man came from the darkness on either side of my car.

"The one on the left, a little, slender fellow, who looked vaguely familiar to me," jerked open the front door and said, 'All right, Bud, hold it. This is a stickup.'

"I didn't see a gun in his hand and I reached out with my right and shoved him back out of the car. In the same movement I opened the glove compartment and grabbed my snub-nosed .38 Smith & Wesson. I heard the other man trying to open the right rear door and just as I glanced back over my shoulder the fellow on the left shot me.

"I was stunned by the impact as the bullet tore through my left arm, which was still on the steering wheel, and blinded by the flash of powder that burned my face. My revolver dropped from my right hand onto the seat and I slumped down on top of it. I felt my billfold being taken from my left hip pocket. The man on the right came around the car and leaned in and hit me over the right temple with some sort of instrument. I never got a good look at him because of rain on the window glass but he was a big fellow.

"'Well, he's done for,' the big one said, and they turned me over and went through all my pockets, taking about $150 in twenties, tens and fives, and a handful of change, dropping 80 cents of it on the floor. Then, after snatching my car keys from the switch they walked over to their car and drove away to the south towards Alexandria.

"I was so sick with pain I could hardly stand, but decided to try to walk to Pollock to report the holdup and get to a doctor. I noticed the heater was still going and realized they had taken out the keys without turning the switch, and I was able to start the car and drive on to the Indian Inn. State police at Alexandria were notified and I was taken on to the Murrell Clinic there.

"Troopers arrested several suspects Thursday and Friday and brought them in for me to see but I couldn't identify any of them."

Asked if he carried insurance against theft, Davis said regretfully that he did not.

Davis, a native of Portland, Ark., has been in the used car business here since 1942 and a resident of Monroe since 1936. In 1939 while he was in the army and stationed at Camp Beauregard he became Mid-South Golden Gloves featherweight champion, winning the title at Memphis. Before the national finals at Chicago he suffered an attack of illness that resulted in his discharge from service before the start of World War 2.

His first experience with robbers came after he had entered business here four years ago. He had picked up two men in soldier uniform as he was driving to the home of a brother, east of Monroe, and they proceeded to stick him up and take $360. The second occasion was last July when his auto struck a parked machine on South Grand street and, while he lay unconscious on the pavement, someone extracted $2,000 in $100 bills from the glove compartment of his wrecked car.

MILLION KNOTS ARE PORTION OF ESTATE

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A problem of one million knots—left in the hands of the San Diego Trust and Savings Bank along with the rest of the estate of an old navy man—is about to be disposed of.

Robert P. Purrucker, retired chief petty officer who died last fall, spent more than seven years tying the knots, officers of the bank said, because his barber had challenged his ability to tie a million in different designs.

They were tied to form belts, purses, watch fobs and such articles and packed in cases built for them by Purrucker, whose favorite expression was "Knots to you."

A nephew, Raymond B. Shug, Jr., of Los Angeles, arranged with a museum in that city to take the collection, the bank said with relief.

TRIBUTE IS PAID TO WASHINGTON

Patterson Asserts Universal Training Required For Strength

MT. VERNON, Va., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Secretary of War Patterson recalled to the nation today the advice of George Washington to keep the United States so strong that "belligerent nations x x x will not lightly hazard giving us provocation."

Universal military training, Patterson said, is the answer.

Patternson spoke in ceremonies commemorating the 215th anniversary of the birth of Washington.

President Truman, bareheaded in a chilling wind, stood silently as a bugler sounded "taps" at the snow-mantled tomb of George and Martha Washington. When the last note faded away, the President walked into the red brick vault and laid there a wreath of red carnations.

"The perfect example of the soldier and citizen," Patterson called Washington, deploring "our error in neglecting our great leader's advice" to maintain "suitable establishments" necessary for defense.

"We now have another chance to heed Washington's warning and to achieve, in world affairs, the self-determination that he urged," the war secretary continued. "It may be our last chance."

To keep America strong, Patterson urged universal military training—which Mr. Truman also advocates.

"The duty to defend the nation in was is beyond challenge," Patterson said. "The duty to be ready to come to its defense when necessary follows logically.

"In 1797, a flintlock over the mantlepiece, a horn of dry powder and a few days in training might have been enough. To be ready in 1947, thorough training in the use of complex weapons has become basic to the individual soldier. Universal military training will provide that training."

President Truman and his party drove to Mt. Vernon from Washington over roads glazed with snow and ice. The Presidential yacht Williamsburg had preceded them here, anchoring in the Potomac prior to a week-end cruise for Mr. Truman and his staff. A group of Sea Scouts did the honors as the President boarded a launch to take him to the Williamsburg.

Tomorrow afternoon, the President will attend ceremonies at the unveiling of a new statute of Washington in the Washington Cathedral. It is a 7 foot 6 inch marble statue, showing Washington as a worshipper in church, rather than as a general or statesman.

The services at Mt. Vernon, conducted by patriotic organizations, had their counterparts over the nation and in distant spots of the world.

In Shanghai, China, for example, U. S. Ambassador John Leighton Stuart said that the struggle for individual freedom was a summons to every Chinese patriot to be willing, like Washington, to sacrifice all for the larger good.

In Manila, U. S. Ambassador Paul V. McNutt recalled that in building the United States, Washington accepted the help of foreigners such as Lafayette, Kosciusko and von Steuben.

DELHI STRESSES FARMER PROGRAM

Businessmen's Committee Seeking Agent To Direct Project

DELHI, La., Feb. 22.—(Special)—Business men of Delhi are busily engaged in building their oil-rich little community into an important agricultural center as well and are embarking upon a long-range program of farming development.

With funds available for a year's operation now on hand a businessmen's committee is conducting a search for an agricultural agent able to carry out the committee's program. Louisiana and Mississippi agricultural authorities are being consulted for advice in filling the position and the local committee is moving carefully in the selection of a choice. Businessmen here are looking for a man with an understanding of farmers' production and marketing problems and with qualities of leadership that will be needed to develop new farming enterprises.

A sweet potato dehydrator and a cannery are among the projects planned for Delhi.

A considerable acreage of sweet potatoes will be planted in the local area this season under the stimulation of the newly-formed Delhi Agricultural Association which is convinced that this crop is more certain of immediate success than any other. The development of sweet potato production in West Carroll parish under the leadership of Dave Pearce into a million dollar industry is familiar to local citizens who are confident similar success can be attained here.

The Agricultural association is headed by Dr. C. C. Thompson and is actively supported by practically every business house in Delhi. Its formation was the culmination of a movement originated by the Delhi Lions club.

The Association's governing board includes Jodie B. Smith, T. F. Hardy, E. W. Sehon, W. H. Farmer, Dr. Lorenz Teer, W. P. Martin, F. E. Maxwell, J. M. O'Neal, C. C. Cutler, Neal McEachern, Jr., L. T. O'Neal, C. W. Kennedy, George Sumlin and Charles J. Wyly.

AMNESTY ACT IN POLAND ADOPTED

WARSAW, Feb. 22.—(AP)—An amnesty act which is expected to free approximately 25,000 persons from jails and prisons was adopted unanimously by the Polish parliament today.

In addition to those freed when the new law is published early next week in the official Gazette, approximately 20,000 prisoners will have their sentences reduced.

The law also covers an estimated 10,000 members of underground bands who are expected to lay down their arms and accept amnesty and Polish citizens abroad who have been accused of crimes committed in their homeland and who will be permitted to return without prosecution.

Parliament also approved a 14-point declaration of rights of citizens, including freedom of the press, speech and conscience. This, however, is not to become effective until adoption of a new constitution.

DEPUTIES' PEACE PARLEY NEAR END

Only Few Short Steps Taken On Germany, Austria Settlements

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The "Little Peace Conference" of the Four-Power Deputy Foreign Ministers neared an end today with only a few short steps taken down the road to formal peace with Germany and Austria.

The six-week conference adjourns next Tuesday to submit reports to the Council of Foreign Ministers, which will attempt to draw up pacts with Germany and Austria in Moscow next month.

Today the deputies recommended to their chieftains that the Austrian army be restricted to approximately 50,000, an air force of 90 planes but no bombers, and an armored corps of 30 tanks. Former generals of German or Austrian armies would be banned from the new army.

Millions of words have been exchanged here. The net result is that much of the Austrian treaty has been written, and problems connected with the German pact have been explored. That largely fulfills the deputies' assignment.

Some disputed points in the Austrian treaty will be referred to Moscow. By strictest interpretation of instructions to the deputies that does not constitute failure. They were ordered only to "proceed with the preparation of a treaty."

Three main points of disagreement have arisen over Austria:

1. Yugoslavia's claim to a large part of the Austrian province of Carinthia was supported by Russia and opposed by the United States, Britain and France. Western diplomats believed Russia was giving only token support to Yugoslavia and would back down later.

2. Russia sought more of Austria's "German assets" than Britain, France and the U. S. were willing she should have. All agreed that German assets in Austria must be surrendered to the Allies. The problem was how to identify them, and it was a vital one for financially weak Austria.

3. Russia wanted Austria to surrender to any Ally, on demand, any displaced person accused by any one of the Allies of war crimes. The United States asked "substantial evidence" of guilt to be submitted with the demand for extradition.

Other points of disagreement generally were on questions of phrasing.

Deputies for Germany, handling for the more complex problem, had been told to hear the small nations' views on the German peace and to "consider questions of procedure with regard to the preparation of a peace treaty for Germany."

The deputies were still studying procedure, trying to implement their agreement on the principle that small powers should be advised and consulted during the peace making.

Statements from the smaller powers have shown, though in somewhat blurry outline, a measure of agreement on Germany's future governmental system.

Poland, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia favor a centralized German state. White Russia, suggesting the Soviet view, plumped for a governmental system on federal lines, but with a strong central government. Most of the western nations called for a federal Germany. Until the nations define terms, however, there will be no clear picture of any overall agreement or disagreement.

The deputies were unable to agree today on an exact maximum figure for the Austrian army. Russia thought 50,000 would be sufficient, while the United States, France and Britain suggested 55,000.

Banned from ever serving in the new Austrian army would be officers who had received more than two promotions in the German army, and individuals who were German nationals before the annexation of Austria by Germany in 1938, or who belonged to Nazi organizations such as the S. S. or Gestapo.

The deputies recommended that atomic weapons be banned to Austria, as well as research in development of modern weapons.

Feodor Gousev, the Soviet deputy, argued that Austria should be obliged to make all her own weapons for her army. Gen. Mark Clark of the United States objected that such a requirement would make it necessary for Austria to rebuild her armaments industry at the expense of needed civilian manufacturing.

There was indication that the occupying powers would get together on withdrawal of their forces 90 days after the Austrian treaty becomes effective. The Allied Control commission in Vienna would cease functioning about the same time.

IN MOVIELAND

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Let's take a walk down Vine street.

This is the nearest thing Hollywood has to compare with New York's Broadway, or what Broadway was before the invasion of juice bars and penny arcades. It doesn't receive a great deal of publicity because most of the news emanates from the studios, scattered like medieval fortresses all over the country. But more than any other location, Vine street typifies Hollywood. It's only a three-block hike, so let's go.

We start at Yucca street, where Daily Variety's reporters pound out the news of the world's entertainment capital. We pass the El Capitan, home of "blackouts." There, Ken Murray fights the last stand of vaudeville.

We arrive at Hollywood boulevard and Vine, where the red street cars, yellow buses and devil-may-care Los Angeles drivers interweave the bustling pedestrians. Step lively now, or you'll become a statistic. Some gawkers stand on the corner and watch the electric news ribbon flash its staccato rendition of the day's events. But mostly there are housewives tramping to or from a bargain sale, or big, small and medium size operators rushing to close a deal.

Down the street we find a group of oldtime character actors loitering in front of the Brown Derby. They are chewing on the Derby toothpicks (the mint-scented ones) and comparing notes on who looks good in the third. Joe Frisco and Tom D'Andrea, the comics, are also there, exchanging gags. Peter Lind Hayes draws us aside and introduces us to a young mimic, who imitates James Mason, Van Johnson and Robert Walker in a quick sidewalk floor show. "He's terrific, isn't he?" says Peter.

Across the street a bunch of song writers loll in front of the Hotel Plaza. They have written their hit tunes for the year and can rest for a while. Down in front of the CBS playhouse there's another crowd, but younger and louder—if it's Wednesday and Sinatra is in town.

We cross Selma avenue and pass a few night clubs including Tom Breneman's where the pudgy radio man romances with old ladies in the early morning. We have to make our way through the characters who stand in front of the bowling alley bar. Many of them are song pluggers, lying in wait for the singers and band leaders who visit the bar between radio rehearsals. At Vine and Sunset we come to NBC and we might find Jack Benny and Red Skelton in the parking lot, comparing the troubles they have with their writers.

We see others, too—the ulcered executives walking into advertising agencies, fancy cowboys reporting to recording studios, painted dolls and pretty boys hoping vainly for a slice of fame. This, my friend, is the real Hollywood.

'DAD' HOWE IS AGAIN ON MOVE

Aged Traveler Is Returning To Georgia; Had Recent Operation

That "Dad" Howe, 92, roving oldster, formerly of Monroe, has been brought back from the dead in a Lafayette hospital, is narrated in the Savannah, Ga., Morning News. After an operation that was required when he was on an ocean-to-ocean hike, his heart stopped beating, physicians declared. With the application of adrenaline and oxygen this organ then took up its functions.

The aged man is reported to have abandoned his cross-country trip afoot and to have decided to return to Georgia.

Mr. Howe left Monroe suddenly over week-ends last summer and was next heard from in Savannah, Ga., where he announced he would push a cart across the country as he walked from Georgia to California.

When he had got as far on the trip as Lake Charles, he became ill and when taken to a hospital was found to require an immediate operation. Physicians doubted that he could withstand an operation and his heart, as stated, did stop beating but he was revived and is now reported to be on his way back to Georgia.

He makes his expenses by the sale of post cards. In the 1,000 miles he walked from Georgia to South Louisiana he wore out four pairs of shoes and three sets of cart wheels were required.

KID'S LIPS MELT

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 22.—(AP)—If the kids' lips seem to be melting a bit, it's probably bubble gum. A chewing gum manufacturer is marketing gum in the form of a pair of large, red lips. When the "lips" soften, they're ready for chewing. Since both lips come in one piece, they permit only posing—no conversation.

GRIFFITH HEADS TEACHERS' GROUP

Elected Chairman Of Fifth District Classroom Association

D. W. Griffith of the Neville High School faculty was elected chairman of the council of the Fifth district Classroom Teachers Association when the group met February 22 in the educational building of the First Baptist Church. Miss Nora Colvin of Dubach was chosen vice-chairman, and Miss Velma Colvin of Tallulah was made secretary.

The council endorsed nine objectives that they will present to the association of this district at its general meeting scheduled March 8 in Monroe at the First Baptist Church. These provisions comprise:

1. Retention of the teacher tenure law in its present form.

2. Retirement benefits. Three factors regarding retirement were emphasized. They include the plan to have the state continue the annuity for the full length of the teacher's service and to provide retirement following 30 years of service, regardless of age. This was considered feasible as the present system is based on a 60-year-old qualification without consideration of years of service. A third factor in retirement calls for a minimum salary of $100 a month without reservation.

3. Endorsement of federal aid in education without federal control.

4. Adoption of the salary schedule advocated by the National Education Association. Based on training and experience, the N. E. A. plan calls for an annual salary of $2,400 for beginners with a bachelor's degree. It includes an annual increment of $100 for 26 years.

5. Immediate termination of all emergency certificates.

6. Amendment of the Louisiana constitution so as to require the spending of at lease 75 per cent of school maintenance money on teachers' salaries.

7. Better equalization of tax assessments.

8. Organization of Classroom teacher units in every school in the state.

9. Conferences with all candidates for state offices prior to state elections.

The council passed a resolution directed to W. H. Wright, executive-secretary of the L. T. A., in which it voiced disapproval of the proposal made by the executive council of the L. T. A. to have the constitution on which it is now working adopted or rejected in its entirety.

Saturday's group urged that classroom teachers in all systems submit suggestions regarding the revised constitution and submit them to Mr. Wright.

Boyle's Notebook

By Hal Boyle

NORTH MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The only man I know who can make a tiger say "mama" by playing it like an accordian is Capt. Roman Proske, the internationally known wlid animal trainer.

He does it by working a full grown Tiger's jaws back and forth with his bare hands which produces a reluctant "Ma-a-a-a---Ma-a-a-a" from the striped murderer.

Proske also dances with some of his tigers—He says he's the only man in the world who can—but has given up putting his head in their mouths. One clamped shut on his face once, and since then the Captain has specialized in other feats.

"The people didn't appreciate it anyway," he said. "They like flashy acts with the animals running and snarling and a lot of blank pistols being fired."

Son of a staff officer for Emperor Franz Josef, Proske ran away from his Vienna home at 14 to go with a circus. For 34 years now the "big cats"—lions and tigers—have been his love. Stripped, his powerful body looks as if a number of hand grenades had gone off in his pockets. The scars are souvenirs of seven major maulings by his pets, for which he holds no grudges.

The Captain now operates the only Tiger farm in America at his North Miami zoo. He has managed to hand-raise five of seven cubs, a delicate task since they die easily. Zoos and circuses pay him $1,500 for a cub.

Proske says he dislikes most American circus wild animal acts because he believes the trainers control their beasts only through fear and brutality, and because circus audiences appreciate only showy stunts.

"They prod the cats into the ring and they have to prod them out, because they are frightened," he said. "But they should not be afraid. I have found they learn 99 percent faster when they have no fear, and you teach them through their own curiosity.

"They must respect you and understand you. They should never fear you."

The Captain calls animal trainers who crack whips, fire guns and flourish chairs "furniture movers." He works alone in the ring with nothing but a light riding crop. He said it is much more dangerous to work with either tigers or lions alone than to mix them together in a cage.

"When lions and tigers are in a cage together they watch each other instead of looking for a chance to leap at you," he said.

Proske also deflated the use of perches in circus acts, which he said look spectacular to outsiders—but actually are there to make the trainer feel safer.

"Any trainer knows that a tiger or lion can't crouch and leap at him from a small perch because it is physically impossible. When my animals aren't performing, they lie on the ground and wait their turn."

This calls for alertness, Proske said, because the animal can crouch and spring in a fraction of a second.

The Captain has a unique stunt in which he gives fresh meat to two tigers, then forces them to back away while he picks it up and hands it to a third tiger. Audiences only applaud mildly at this feat Proske considers his masterpiece—ten times harder than to teach an animal to leap through a flaming hoop.

"Only a man who understands how difficult it is to take food from a wild animal and give it to another can appreciate this," he said. "And how many people like that are in a circus audience?"

Proske said no fullgrown wild animal could be trusted because "the Creator gave him the hunting instinct and only the Creator can take it away.

"A bear is less to be trusted than a tiger or lion. The cats always give some indication before they spring—They have to bunch the body. But a bear—no. His head always moves back and forth and when he wants you he just sticks out his paw and grabs you.

"But it is only his nature. You cannot blame him. The hardest thing for wild animals to learn? It is to like a human being."

FASHION SHOW TEEN-AGE PLAN

Entertainment Will Be Held In Neville High On Friday

Attractive programs are being prepared for the first public appearance of College Community Service Center, bearing the title, "The Sherrouse Teen-Agers Present 'Spring Fever,' (a spring fashion show)."

This entertainment will be held in Neville High School auditorium next Friday evening, February 28, at 8:00 o'clock, and is said to merit the patronage of the public for a worthy project. Funds derived from the performance will be used solely in connection with operating and maintaining the teen-age recreation program of the community both now and during the summer vacation months.

Boys and girls will model, for local clothing stores, the newest fashions in spring clothes for their age groups, including tiny tot's apparel from ages 3 to 6, and larger children's through the teen-age. This style show will be presented to the accompaniment of lilting tunes appropriate for the occasion, interspersed with a few song and dance numbers such as Huckleberry Finn and other character interpretations.

A grand finale will include Girl Scouts, Brownies and Scout Cubs. See an extraordinarily fine show and help a worthy cause.

2ND FLOOR OF ROOMING HOUSE SWEPT BY FIRE

The interior and practically all the contents of six second-floor rooms of a rooming house operated by Mrs. Lillian Dunn at 2800 DeSiard street were burned Friday midnight by a fire that was reported to have had its start in a davenport in the Dunn apartment.

Answering an alarm telephoned by Mrs. Dunn at 11:40 p. m., companies 1 and 3 used two hose lines to bring the blaze under control.

ADVISES OLD PAIR AGAINST DIVORCE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Superior Judge E. D. Doyle told Frank D. Walz, 78, retired hotel clerk, and his wife, Maude, 68, married for more than 50 years, that it would be "a shame" for them to be divorced and directed them to think it over at least until June 9.

The couple was married in Fountain City, Wis., April 16, 1896, and have a son, Lewis D. Walz, living in Chicago. Walz brought suit for divorce and Mrs. Walz filed a counter-suit, each alleging cruelty.

Judge Doyle said their grievances were "trivial" and added:

"There are too many divorces in this country without people like you joining the line. You have been married long enough to be good examples to younger people. Each of you needs the other. In the ordinary course of events you have not long to live and it would be a shame to end your marriage now."

Organized safety work was begun on American Railroads in 1913, and injuries from accidents among railroad employes are now one-ninth what they were at that time.

MISSION GROUPS TO MEET HERE

Ouachita Valley Baptist Members Will Meet Tuesday

Mrs. L. G. Wilkinson, mission study chairman for the Louisiana Baptist Woman's Missionary Union, invites the missionary societies of the Baptist churches of the Ouachita Valley Association to attend an associational-wide mission study class to be held in the auditorium of the Monroe First Baptist Church on Tuesday, February 25, at 10 a.m.

"Woman's Missionary Union at Work," a book on W. M. U. methods, will be presented in a most unusual and interesting way by the W. M. U. of the Monroe First Baptist Church, Parkview Baptist Church of Monroe, College Place Baptist Church of Monroe, and the First Baptist Church of West Monroe.

For those who have not studied this book which is the latest revised edition of W. M. U. methods, this is an excellent opportunity to become acquainted with the Woman's Missionary Union and the latest methods of organization and study. For those who have studied the book it is hoped that the method of presentation will reveal facts and ideas which perhaps have been overlooked.

Mrs. Eddie Dunn, of the Monroe First Baptist Church, is the associational mission study chairman and is working with Mrs. Wilkinson to make this study class a success.

CALLS ON

consequence their one hope of getting supplies lies in getting American loans—at a time when American policy has shifted to one of "helping our friends."

Off-the-record, top government financial experts will explain the background for the steps which have taken the U. S. along the road to political use of money this way:

Late last summer Czechoslovakia had gained a $50,000,000 credit to buy U. S. army surpluses and was well along in talks with the export-import bank for a $50,000,000 loan.

Suddenly, in October, the loan talks were called off and the unexpended $40,000,000 of credit was suspended.

There was no official explanation. But at the Paris peace conference last summer the Czech delegation voted consistently with the Soviet delegation on several points which Secretary of State Byrnes considered basic tests of Democratic action among nations. And at about the same time Czech newspaper charged the United States with practicing "dollar diplomacy." That charge continues to be made by Soviet newspapers.

The abrupt period put to U. S.-Czech loans shortly afterward caused consternation in Czechoslovakia. Her foreign minister, Jan Masaryk, took occasion at a news conference to protest that his nation wanted relations with both Russia and the west. But the loan talks were not resumed.

Further background. . . .

Poland obtained a $40,000,000 export-import bank loan in April last year before American policy tightened. That still stands, although the Poles have drawn less than $7,000,000 on the account. It was set up for the purchase of coal cars and locomotives, and deliveries on that equipment are slow.

Then, in August, Poland's representative to the United Nations, Oscar Lange, returned here from Warsaw to say that Poland would need further credits, from "$100,000,000 to a half billion, depending on what you can let us have."

No more has been heard of that idea, and no further loan to Poland now seems possible.

During the past half year there has been deep concern here over the manner in which Poland's Communist-dominated provisional government prepared for its elections. The United States government, with Britain and Russia, had pledged at Yalta these elections would be "free and unfettered."

The elections took place January 21, 1947. Reports say the Communist victory was gained not through the "free" choice of the voters, but through terrorism and political arrests—a distinct blow to Democracy.

The cases of Czechoslovakia and Poland involve loans.

American relief to foreign nations also will be managed on the basis of "help to friends." Since 1944 the U. S. has poured $2,700,000,000 into UNRRA relief. That is over. The last shipments will clear next month.

Several nations still fear hunger and pleaded at the recent United Nations assembly in New York for a continued international relief organization. The U. S. opposed it and said hereafter American relief would be distributed only where there are (1) adequate safeguards to prevent political use of food and (2) full publicity that the supplies come from the U. S.

There are informal understandings now that the U. S. will step in to prevent starvation in the Philippines (where there is a democratically elected government) and in Austria, Greece and Italy, where the Democratic forces still have a chance.

This means that Poland, Czechoslovakia, White Russia and the Ukraine (all of which received large UNRRA supplies) will have to look elsewhere.

No loans at all have been made to Russia and Yugoslavia. Last year there was informal talk of a billion-dollar loan to Russia, but the talk died, although Russia can still buy here if she has the cash.

But even that would be partially stopped by a group of House members. These congressmen would like to see the government prohibit sales to Russia of any equipment for the manufacture of mass destruction weapons until she has signed up for international inspection of atomic energy.

SAYS SITUATION OF JEWS DISTRESSING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., declared tonight the situation confronting the 1,500,000 European Jews who survived Hitlerism "is even more distressing than it was a year ago."

The former secretary of the treasury, general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, said in a talk for a gathering of Jewish leaders that:

"The picture of the Jewish survivors today is a tragic recital of statistics. Everywhere, in Poland, in Romania, in Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria, France, Italy—they must be fed and clothed and given the tools to make them once again self-sustaining and productive."

Directing the appeal campaign for $170,000,000 to help the Jews, Morgenthau said that sum "will cover only our minimum needs."

DISCARDED BONE IS PUT IN BONE BANK

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—A "bone bank" that eliminates delay in having to perform simultaneous operations to remove bone from a donor and transplant it in the person needing the extra bone has been established at the George F. Geisinger Memorial Hospital, Danville, Pa.

Dr. Leonard F. Bush, head of the hospital's orthopedic department, told the New York Academy of Medicine's orthopedic section in an address last night that grafting operations already have been performed with the use of bone from the bank. He said the "bone bank" would provide a constant supply of bone for such operations.

Dr. Bush, who has spent considerable time at the New York orthopedic hospital experimenting with human bones which have been kept under deep freeze for extended periods, described one of the operations in which he said a cavity in a two-year-old boy's upper right ear was filled with bone fragments taken from the bank. Previously it would have been necessary to have taken the bone from some other part of the boy's body, he declared.

Under the new plan bones obtained from operations in which extra bone is removed are sterilized and then kept in a deep freeze unit at 10 degrees fahrenheit until needed, Dr. Bush said. Bones will keep indefinitely this way, he added.

LEBLANC

Hunt interests, operators in the Lucky and Lisbon fields, still was up in the air.

Allowables for March and April are due to be promulgated within the next few days and the Hunt interests have asked for 55,500,000 cubic feet daily for Lucky and 15,000,000 daily for Lisbon, to leave the state through the Little Inch and other lines operated by the Tennessee Gas and Transmission Company.

The state has suffered one court setback in a fight to cancel an earlier allowable under which gas from the Lucky field was being supplied to the Little Inch. The first district court in Shreveport ruled that if an allowable were cancelled, there was no restriction on the field. The case is being appealed to the state supreme court.

There was no immediate indication as to what the state's next step might be. The text of the proposed order, which was given legal approbation by the attorney general today, indicates that a hearing would be held in Baton Rouge before it was promulgated.

Acting Governor Verret at his home in New Iberia refrained from comment, saying the text of the order and opinion would speak for themselves.

Leland Richardson, attorney for the national gas conservation office, said that agency considered the attorney general's opinion exactly in line with its conception of the state's policy and the legal basis for it.

The attorney general said in his opinion, in part:

"It is evident that 'waste,' as used in the statute (act 157 of 1940) is not solely physical waste because the statute says that the word, in addition to physical waste, shall also be understood in its ordinary meaning. That ordinary meaning, as stated in Webster, includes a needless or extravagant use, so that the statute is concerned with economic as well as with physical waste. Indeed, the only kind of waste other than physical that we can conceive of is economic waste. The jurisprudence recognizes the right of a state to prevent economic as well as physical waste. * * *

"The Constitution of Louisiana, article VI, section 1, requires the protection and conservation of the natural resources of the state, and directs the Legislature to enact laws to that end. It there expressly makes it the duty of the Legislature 'to prohibit and prevent the waste or any wasteful use' of the state's natural resources and it provides that the commissioner of conservation 'shall have and exercise such authority and power as may be prescribed by law.'

"It will be observed that the constitution not only directs the legislature to invest the power in the commissioner to protect and conserve the state's resources, but it directs the commissioner to exercise all invested power to that end.

"The proposed order is not designed to interfere with interstate commerce. On the contrary, its purpose is to prevent production for a wasteful use. For other uses it may move freely in commerce and for wasteful purposes it never enters commerce. The control of production, both as to quantity and use, is purely a state matter, and the fact that the production may be intended for interstate shipment does not affect the state's power to control the use to which it may be put.

"Section 10 of Act 157 of 1940 authorizes the commissioner to limit the total amount of oil and gas production in the state and to distribute the allowable production among the fields and in turn among the producers if the field allowable is less than the field could produce if no restrictions were imposed.

"We think that the commissioner has authority to issue the proposed order and that, in order to give proper effect to it, it should be followed with another issued pursuant to the provisions of section 10 of Act 157 of 1940. (The section providing for issuance of allowable orders)."

The proposed order, providing for a hearing before it would be promulgated, sets out that its purpose is to prevent waste and depletion of Louisiana natural resources and continues:

"It is hereby ordered by the commissioner of conservation, that the existing markets supplied and serviced by natural gas produced in Louisiana as of June 1, 1946 are adequate, and to further expand said markets would seriously jeopardize the availability of natural gas for such markets for a reasonable length of time; that in order to assure the consumers of natural gas in Louisiana and other areas now depending on Louisiana gas of a reasonable amount of natural gas for a reasonable length of time, the severance and production of natural gas from natural gas reservoirs of the state of Louisiana for shipment and transmission through pipe lines to new markets not now served with Louisiana gas, in new areas, adequately supplied with other fuels, or the expansion of markets as they existed on June 1, 1946, in areas adequately supplied with other fuels, constitute waste, and would threaten with premature exhaustion, extinction and destruction of the common supply and common reservoirs of natural gas, is hereby prohibited.

"It is further ordered that in all nominations for allowables on natural gas wells, the following information shall be specifically set forth: name of the purchaser, name of transporter, and the ultimate destination.

"It is further ordered that no natural gas severed from the soil of Louisiana under an allowable fixed by the department of conservation shall be transported through or sent to a destination other than that named in the nomination, without first obtaining a permit after a hearing, as provided for in Act 157 of 1940."

'WHAT TO DO' FOR VETERANS CHANGES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—During the war, this saying gained circulation among the GIs:

If it moves, salute it.
If it doesn't move, pick it up.
If you can't pick it up, paint it.

The shift to peacetime family concerns, Attorney General Tom Clark told a Veterans of Foreign Wars meeting tonight, has changed the advice to this:

If it cries, change it.
If it's on wheels, buy it.
If it's hollow, rent it.

a plan to obtain 10,000 new boxcars a month.

The railroads have ordered 88,000 cars which still are undelivered. They claim cars are wearing out and being retired at the rate of 2,500 to 4,000 a month. However, only 2,408 cars were produced in January. Under a previous arrangement worked out with steel companies, box car makers and the Civil Production Administration, this output was scheduled to swell to 7,000 cars by April.

However, this is only part of the story. Railroad spokesmen in Chicago said if there was any chance of getting them, a lot more than the 88,000 cars on order would be sought. These sources point to expanding industrial production and a record winter wheat crop harvest expected in the spring and summer as further prospective burdens for the already overtaxed transportation facilities available.

The almost unprecedented demand for steel is the crux of the boxcar shortage. Some railroad sources contend that, at the expense of the rail car makers, the steel mills have concentrated on filling demand for high grade steel for automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines and a mass of other consumer goods. Last year the railroads, which normally take 17 per cent of the nation's steel output, got 7.2 per cent. And the railroads say that their available equipment is old and wearing out much faster than before the war.

Meanwhile, the effects of the boxcar shortage continued to pyramid. From many sections of the country came reports of cuts in manufacturing output and employment, overflowing warehouses, shutdowns of flour mills and drastic curtailment of newspaper advertising space because of a newsprint scarcity.

No estimates were available on the tonnage of freight tied up at warehouses and loading platforms but some cities reported a critical situation.

The Pittsburgh, Pa., Chamber of Commerce estimated the car shortage at 51 per cent of normal for the last half of January, with some firms piling their finished products on the ground because of the lack of additional warehouse space.

In South Dakota, C. J. Anderson, chairman of the Wagner Chamber of Commerce, said "millions" of bushels of that state's corn and grain faced the threat of rot unless boxcars were made available. In an appeal to that state's congressional delegation for early relief, he said one county alone had more than 4,000,000 bushels of corn and 7,000,000 of other grains on the farms with more than half on the ground.

Some flour mills have closed in Ohio and Illinois and others reported production down 40 per cent. The American Steel and Wire company's North Chicago, Ill., plant closed down until Tuesday because of the shortage of tank cars for shipping bottled gas.

Daily newspapers in several cities dropped advertising or reduced the number of pages because of the newsprint shortage.

The Birmingham (Ala.) News and Age-Herald has been limiting advertising space to 60 per cent of normal since Jan. 17 and threatened a further cut unless newsprint shipments approach a normal level. The Washington Star "urgently requested" its advertisers to reduce their space.

Existing or planned space curtailments also were announced by the Detroit (Mich.) News, the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot-Ledger, the Raleigh (N. C.) News and Observer, the Danbury (Conn.) Times and the Miami (Fla.) Herald and Daily News.

Five hundred sawmills in the interior of British Columbia faced the possibility of a prolonged shutdown, making 10,000 workers idle.

SAFETY DEPARTMENT TO EXPAND SERVICES

Agents of the Department of Public Safety will spend two days each week in Farmerville and Columbia until further notice to assist car owners in obtaining drivers licenses, it was announced yesterday by Walker Glenn of the local office.

The additional service will start at Farmerville when an agent will be there on March 3 and 4, and on each Monday and Tuesday thereafter until the work is completed. An agent will be in Columbia on March 6 and 7 and each Thursday and Friday until further notice.

The agents will conduct examinations for drivers and chauffeurs licenses and will give examinations to drivers of passenger automobiles who must undergo such tests.

and the told Chief of Police J. D. Busby that he got less than $25 cash in all of the places he entered.

Booth, beat patrolman in the DeSiard street area where yesterday morning's action was centered, was making his rounds when he saw the Negro man come out of the shoe shop and made the capture at gunpoint. Subsequent investigation revealed Williams had used a crowbar to force the rear door and to break open the money drawer.

The sudden end of the little Warden Negro's brief career of crime in Monroe was related by his captor, over the telephone yesterday forenoon. Gaines said he had come back to the Busy Bee from a colored night club on Adams street at 1:45 a.m. and had stepped into the rear yard when he heard a noise back of the Grant store. He obtained a flashlight from the cafe and on his return saw a boy standing in the yard. Asked what he was doing there the youngster replied evasively, then broke and ran. Gaines caught him as he tried to scramble over a high board fence. Later it was found the bars of the rear door transom had been bent and the glass smashed, and the boy explained he had been about to climb through the opening when Gaines interrupted him.

INFANT'S HEAD IS MUTILATED BY RATS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A four-month-old baby was found dead in his crib today, his head mutilated by rats, but an autopsy report indicated the infant had succumbed before he was attacked by the rodents.

Dr. George A. Denison, city-county health officer, said a partial report on an autopsy showed the child, Lonnie Eugene Mathews, died from apparently natural causes which were not determined immediately.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Mathews, were quoted by Detective C. L. Pierce as saying they placed the infant in his bed in the kitchen about 10:30 last night and retired in the other room. They said they heard no outcry during the night.

he detective said he was told by neighbors that gopher rats "run around the neighborhood like cats."

JES' RAMBLIN'

Little did he realize as he joyfully bid his wife and kiddies goodbye after an unusually enjoyable Christmas party the day before, that he would not be back for an indefinite time.

A blinding snowstorm resulted and he radioed the home airport that he was only five miles out but would have to return as he would be unable to make the trip in the blizzard.

As the mother and other members of the family in Monroe await results of the intensive search that is now in its ninth week, the physician's wife and small children are maintaining a similar nervous, heart-breaking watch in their home in Seward.

Many telephone calls go forth between Seward and Monroe daily to report the progress of the search and a huge sheaf of letters have been exchanged. The past week men walked virtually the entire distance to Homer from Seward but they found no traces of the missing men.

Army planes and bombers have never ceased in their search and the Alaska Fish and Wildlife Commission has assured the family that they will not give up the search. Thirty-six planes were flown from Anchorage the past week and two big bombers added to the fruitless search. Money from the States has poured in as the plight of the men has created undivided attention in Alaska and in many parts of the United States. At last report, $3,400 had been contributed and more comes daily. The Standard Oil Company has generously provided free gas for the entire search.

Mrs. Banister is sure her son was in full control of the plane when it landed, it may be only a mother's intuition, but it is an idea firmly planted in her mind. She relates that men have been lost for three months and have come out alive. Many giant trees are uprooted here and there and with little effort can be made places in which lost travelers can find refuge from the elements. The doctor had a gun and persons lost often live from food supply furnished by rabbits and other small game. He also could shoot bear and deer, found in abundance, his mother maintains.

The spring is slowly breaking in Alaska and one day recently the temperature reported compared favorably with that in the south, a checkup disclosed. And still weary but never flinching, a confident mother in Monroe awaits reassuring word from distant Alaska that all is well with her son and with a smile she asserts, "I can only hope and pray that my boy is still safe and protected by a Divine Providence!"

Sidney Stroud informs that one of his Monroe friends always carries a rabbit's foot in his pocket. "What on earth good is that anyway, did it ever bring you any good luck," he was asked. "You're darn right it did me good. Other day when my wife went into my pockets after money she struck that piece of fur and pulled out her hand screaming 'Oh, I just found a mouse in honey's pocket!' "

A certain lady in Monroe in conversing with a friend admitted her shortcoming, that of absent mindedness. "You know I just today got back a Christmas card I sent out some weeks ago. I had addressed it to my grandfather, forgetful that he died last summer. The postoffice returned it as 'Unable to Deliver.' " "Well, how in the world did you know his address?" innocently asked the friend. She is said not to have as yet received any satisfactory answer.

J. T. (Jimmy) Tolson, assistant superintendent of the Monroe Bus Department, is known as "Pop." This nickname was assigned to him by Shelby Hill and it has stuck every since. Incidentally his birthday is today!

Judge Fred Odom, former member of the Louisiana State Supreme Court, now retired and residing in his native Bastrop, paid Monroe a visit the other day. And when he struck DeSiard Street, he was surrounded by Fred F. Millsaps, Harry G. Frazer, and eight or ten other prominent Monroyans, all so delighted to see him again that they just had to swarm around. And to them all he was the same unassuming, delightfully informal personage that has ever marked his deportment.

Must be we have a little "cherry tree chopper" hereabouts. Someone has taken his little hatchet and leveled off all the luxuriant evergreen trees that formerly adorned the exterior of the Ouachita parish courthouse. Maybe it is all right, but the great, gray building looks quite naked and cold these February days.

Somebody's pet cat, reported by Park avenue residents to be "marooned" and "meowing piteously" on the roof of the municipal waterworks plant, where it had leaped after being chased up a tree by dogs, was the object of a mercy mission by No. 3 fire company at 7:30 p. m. Friday. But, firemen found, the kitty did not require rescuing—only an incentive to get down and about its business.

A 35-foot extension ladder was raised and a fireman, armed with a broom just in case the animal proved vicious, ascended. He was approaching the cat cautiously when it suddenly scampered to the edge of the roof and leaped into space, hurtling to the ground 30 feet below.

Cats are said to always alight on their feet and this one was no exception. "He lit running," said Capt. Jack Blanks, "and streaked away into the darkness."

C. I. O. DRIVE MEETS 'VICIOUS OPPOSITION'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A leader of the C. I. O.'s southern organizational campaign acknowledged today that the drive has met "vicious opposition."

Sherman H. Dalrymple, secretary-treasurer of the union's southern campaign, said the C. I. O. also had been accused of "driving industry out of the south." And added:

"This is not true. We want industry, but we want living standards that will promote industry."

Dalrymple spoke at a C. I. O. meeting designed to promote the union's southern campaign.

Allen S. Haywood, national C. I. O. vice-president, also addressed the group, voicing a plea for more cooperation between management and labor to "make collective bargaining work."

It was learned that Luciano obtained authorization to land in Cuba through the influence of a Cuban senator whose name was not disclosed. The senator was said to have promised the immigration authorities to present Luciano to them, but the arrest occurred before any such step had been taken.

Jose Andreu, minister of health, said he was taking steps to protest against the U. S. ban on narcotic shipments. Pedro Nogueira, chief of sanitation, asserted all narcotics shipments were under control by the government and that the ban was unjustified.

Neighbors said that Luciano lived quietly in his home here with the two bodyguards, a maid and cook.

Luciano was reported to have amassed vast sums of money when he was in his heyday in New York more than 10 years ago. He was engaged in illicit dope traffic, white slavery and gambling, authorities charged. He was familiar at race tracks and sporting events.

Yesterday he swore out warrants charging murder against 31 men and said that 26 of them had signed admissions of having been in the mob. Today Coroner J. O. Turner said an inquest would be held when Bearden and other law enforcement officers have completely finished their investigation.

ORDERED TO SLASH COAL CONSUMPTION

LONDON, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The government ordered gas companies to slash coal consumption 10 per cent for 10 weeks today and announced that restrictions on use of gas on homes similar to those on electricity may be ordered next week.

Some gas plants may be closed altogether, it was announced, as a result of renewed blizzards which have blocked coal supplies to the plants and threaten a breakdown of the gas industry.

Coming on top of the electricity famine, the prospective gas restrictions were disclosed at a news conference by Sir Guy Nottbower, spokesman for the ministry of fuel and power.

He said 40 coal ships were snowbound in Northeast ports and fuel stocks at big gas plants have dwindled to a "very dangerous point." Long lines of coal trains were jammed up behind drifts of fresh snow in the North country and in South Wales. In some sections the new fall was 14 inches deep.

Restoration of electric power on Monday to industries in the Midlands, after a two weeks shut down, also will place a heavier industrial load on gas plants.

The order to gas companies to cut coal consumption by 10 per cent will be effective until May 2. Gas coal stocks, the British gas council said, have dwindled to 11 days' supply. Normally the nation's 1,100 gas plants start the winter with six weeks stock but this winter closed in with only a three weeks backlog on hand.

With many villages isolated, highways and railways blocked and temperatures ranging from 10 to 18 degrees below normal, forecasters offered little hope for an early break in Britain's more than month-long cold wave, worst in half a century.

On the Continent of Europe, however, there was a letup. Temperatures rose several degrees above freezing in Paris and as high as 60 Fahrenheit on the Riveria, although a later drop was forecast.

5 SURPLUS CHAPELS ARE STANDING IDLE

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Five surplus army chapels at Camp Van Dorn are standing idle with no takers.

With March 1 the deadline for receipt of orders, the war assets administration said today that only five requests have been received for 10 chapels on sale at the camp. At other installations, orders have far exceeded the number of churches available.

The chapels sell for $1,250 each, and must be removed from the site and rebuilt at the buyers, expense.

COTTON STATES LEAGUE SHAPES UP FOR SEASON

All Clubs Have Signed Managers For First Post-War Activity

By Charles S. Kerg
(Sports Editor, Greenville Delta Democrat-Times)

GREENVILLE, Miss., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Here in the land where the long staple cotton grows best a Class C baseball circuit, operated intermittently for 45 years and named Cotton States League, will swing into operation for its first post-war season on April 29 and a 130-game pennant chase.

Opening day pairings will send Greenville Bucks to Greenwood to clash with the Chiefs, Clarksdale Ginners to Helena, Ark., to battle the Seaporters and the Hot Springs, Ark., Bathers to El Dorado, Ark., for a duel with the Oilers.

Jim Griffith of El Dorado, serving his first year as president of the Cotton States after many years as a club executive, is selecting umpires and arranging other details for the operation of the league. The circuit closed down after the 1942 season because of the war.

All clubs have named managers. The pilots include Joe Santomauro at Hot Springs, Herschell Bobo at Helena, Jimmie Cookson at El Dorado, Harry Chozen at Greenville, Jim Bivin at Greenwood and Calvin Chapman at Clarksdale.

The Cotton States will play night baseball, with all parks in the league equipped for the nocturnal game. Double headers will be played each Sunday. Saturdays will be off days throughout the league.

It was back in 1902 at Greenville that the Cotton States League was first organized. First members of the four club circuit included Greenville, Natchez, Vicksburg and Baton Rouge, La., and two World Wars, depression and a fever epidemic have been obstacles faced by the league.

More than a year was required and near a dozen meetings before the Cotton States was formed as a six-club circuit this year. Lack of a park site kept Monroe, La., from entering and Pine Bluff, Ark., wanted to enter an eight team league.

Judge Emmet Harty of Greenville, who declined election to the presidency of the Cotton States after directing its reorganization, is serving as the league's vice-president after directing the circuit for several years.

Hot Springs, Greenville and El Dorado are building new parks to enter the league and Greenwood, Helena and Clarksdale are making major repairs to their grandstands.

League headquarters has been moved by President Griffith from Greenville to El Dorado. Ark., where he maintains headquarters in the James Building.

The Jim Griffith attendance trophy to be awarded the city having the largest opening day attendance is expected to spur inaugural day games.

Many of the top stars of the major leagues have been members of the clubs in the Cotton States and the league has always been considered one of the finest producers of talent.

A number of the clubs in the league will work with major and high rated minor clubs. Helena will get players through a hookup with the St. Louis Browns, Greenville will work with the Memphis Chicks of the Southern, Clarksdale with Nashville and the Chicago Cubs. Greenwood, Hot Springs and El Dorado will not have working agreements.

The league season continues to Labor Day and will be followed by a Shaughnessy playoff series.

ARMED TRIUMPHS IN WIDENER 'CAP'

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Calumet Farm's great gelding Armed ran away and hid from five rival horses in the $50,000 Widener Handicap at Hialeah today and moved into third place among the golden runners of the turf with total prize winnings of $459,775.

Never pressed and seemingly held under restraint much of the way by Doug Dodson, the long-tailed beauty nevertheless set a new track record of 2:01 3/5 for the mile and a quarter classic as he loped home a length and a half in front of the Argentine challenger Talon.

The easy triumph for the short-priced favorite, who paid only $2.50 for each $2.00 ticket, netted his proud owner, Warren Wright, a fat $43,900. Tonight Armed's earnings were topped only by those of Whilaway, $561,161, and Stymie, $516,285.

Just beyond the half-mile pole Dodson let his anxious charger out a notch, and he moved swiftly into a lead he never relinquished. At the mile he had opened up a three-length difference.

Talon took a four-length lead over the third horse, Sunshine Stable's Lets Dance. K. A. O'Connor's Statesman was fourth, another four lengths back.

OPELOUSAS OUT AS EVANGY CUTS TO EIGHT CLUBS

Withdrawal Of Lake Charles Results In Ouster Of Ninth Team

NEW IBERIA, La., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The Evangeline League directors, at a meeting here today, reluctantly dropped Opelousas, La., in reframing the league into an eight-team circuit, but expressed hope that Opelousas team could return.

Possibility of continuing Opelousas is contingent upon acceptance of a franchise by Lafayette, La., as a replacement for Lake Charles, which was withdrawing from the planned ten-team circuit.

J. Walter Morris, President of the league, planned to confer with Lafayette baseball interest tonight. He will notify all members of the Lafayette decision by next Tuesday.

No mention was made at today's discussion of the recent baseball scandal in which five Evangeline League players were suspended by the minor league commissioner because of alleged association with gamblers and betting on games.

Morris commented prior to the afternoon session, however, that league officials saw no reason why the circuit should not resume and carry through a successful season, in spite of the scandal investigation.

In other action taken today the league voted to require the posting of a bond of $2,500 in cash or securities by each team, instead of the present $20 in cash.

The new bond must be posted not later than March 5, it was decided.

Motion for increasing the bond by such a large sum was offered by Harvey Owen, President of the Opelousas club, prior to the action taken by the league on dropping his club.

"This business of dropping out is fairly common in this league," and someone always gets hurt," Owen said, pointing out that his club would lose between $4,000 and $5,000 by being shut out now.

Owen said this sum represented money spent on the playing field, grand stand, and other expenses. It was suggested that the money spent by Opelousas be reimbursed through a league assessment, but no action was taken.

It was pointed out that when the league was revived last year after war time suspension, Crowley, Opelousas, Lake Charles and Lafayette had agreed to enter but withdrew their bids before the opening date.

Morris said at the opening of today's meeting that Lake Charles baseball backers had informed the league this year the team must withdraw because of conditions beyond their control.

The league president said it had been reported to him that the Lake Charles club was experiencing financial troubles and difficulty in obtaining rights to the playing field.

The motion to drop Opelousas was made by Art Phelan, owner of the Alexandria club and seconded by L. E. Lapeyrous, President of Houma. It was carried without objection.

After the action had been taken, Owen thanked the league members for the consideration shown his Opelousas team.

The league accepted an invitation from Mayor L. C. Gwin of Natchez to hold the next meeting in that Mississippi city.

It also voted to give 10 percent of the gate receipts from the Evangeline mid-season All-Star game to the Evangeline League Press-Radio Association, which was organized last Sunday at Baton Rouge among press and radio representatives.

The money will be used in the preparation of records for selection of a season-end All-Star team for the

LOYOLA WOLFPACK TRIMS HOWARD CAGERS, 58 TO 32

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Loyola University of the South defeated Howard University of Birmingham, Ala., 58-32, here tonight to mark up Loyola's 16th basketball victory of the season.

Sammy Thombatore and "Red" Hultberg set the Loyola pace, scoring 16 points apiece.

Loyola took an early lead, expanded it to 26-13 at half-time and then continued to roll, with the second team playing most of the last half, to win by a 26 point margin.

High point man for Howard was Dean, Howard center, who made five goals and two free throws for 12 points.

AMATEUR BOXERS MEET AT BASTROP

District A.A.U. Fistic Tournament Is Scheduled For March 15

An Amateur Athletic Union boxing tournament for the northeast district of Louisiana will be held March 15 at the Bastrop High School gymnasium, it was announced here yesterday, and any amateur mittmen in any of the northeast parishes of the state will be eligible for the meet provided they qualify by obtaining A. A. U. membership.

Dr. Jack Rawls, Bastrop, has been named touranment chairman, and other members of the committee in charge are Dr. Bill Epstein, Jack Howard, Mickey Head, and Lawrence Gibbs, all of Monroe.

Trophies will be presented winners in each of eight weight classes ranging from 112 pounds to light heavyweight, and winners will be cligible to participate in the S. A. A. U. tournament at New Orleans the following week.

At present there are only two sanctioned A. A. U. clubs in this area, Monroe and Bastrop, but other individuals from surrounding towns can participate provided they are amateurs and will file application as soon as possible for A. A. U. membership.

There will be no entry fee charges for boys participating in the meet, but a 25-cent fee will be charged each boy, not already an A. A. U. member, for his A. A. U. registration which permits him to compete in all A. A. U. events.

Boys desiring to participate but not holding A. A. U. cards may qualify by writing Dr. Rawls at Bastrop for registration requirements and also forwarding to him the necessary 25-cent fee. Local members of the committee will be able to provide the same service.

The contestants at Bastrop will be required to furnish their own expenses, and must be on hand for the weighing in of fighters on March 15 between 3:30 and 6:30 p. m.

It was reported from Bastrop last night that Norris Ray, winner of the Southern Golden Gloves welterweight crown at New Orleans recently, was leaving there this morning by automobile for Chicago where this week he will appear in the National Golden Gloves tourney.

Ray is being accompanied to Chicago by Dr. Rawls and Talmadge Foreman, the latter to act as Ray's second and also sparring partner in workouts prior to his entry in the national event.

One of Ray's welterweight competitors will be an Oklahoma Indian with a record of 23 straight knockouts. Ray, in thirteen fights, has won knockouts in his last twelve appearances and set a record for quick knockouts in the Southern Golden Gloves when he won his finals match in fifteen seconds of the first round, including the ten seconds it took to count out his opponent. Ray's comment upon learning of the Indian's record was: "Well, I haven't had that many fights yet."

MINIATURE RACERS IN TUNE-UPS TODAY

Miniature automobile racers of Monroe and West Monroe put their little machines through trial runs on their concrete speedway at Lakeside Country Club this afternoon in tune-ups for their March 2 meet which will be held here, it was announced last night.

Several Monroe miniature racer owners have overhauled their cars for faster speeds, and higher marks are expected to be set in today's trials which last from 2 until 5 p. m.

Fastest speed by a local racer on the track here is a 102 miles per hour mark set by John Martin, who, after reworking his car, claims he'll be shooting for 110 today. Fran Brennan, also with a new and reworked car, is also betting heavily on his own car to better Martin's mark.

The Louisiana Miniature race car club at Monroe has been getting many requests from other prospective miniature racers in this section of the country with regard to plans for construction of speedways and other data on cars, it was reported. In order to acquaint these prospects with the facts concerning miniature racing, they are being invited to attend the March 2 meeting which will be strictly for talent of this area. The races, non-sanctioned, will not be on as large a scale as the New Year's race that drew contestants here from throughout the east, midwest, and west.

Almost 40 percent of the land surface of the United States has too little rainfall to permit safe general farming.

MODEL AIRCRAFT CLUB PLANS MEET

Plans for a model aircraft contest and acceptance of a new member highlighted Friday night's meeting of the Monroe Model Aircraft Club.

The proposed contest, open to local boys only, will take place at an early date, according to Jac Combs, president, who presided at the meeting. The new member accepted into the club was George Gabriel.

The membership cards were again discussed and it was decided that an emblem consisting of a circle of red and yellow with a double "M" in the center to represent "Monroe Modlers" would be used. The cards won't be printed until a sponsor has been decided upon.

The club announced it will not be able to fly at its regular place today due to conditions beyond its control.

"The club wishes to thank all the citizens of Monroe and West Monroe for their wonderful interest in model planes," Jac Combs said yesterday, "and hopes that it may soon entertain again on a new field that will be permanent and adequate enough to permit stunting and speeding of the small planes."

EARSHOT BESTS JACK S. L., TAKES HANDICAP PURSE

Helis' Filly Wins By Half Length To Cop Fair Grounds' Richest Stake

By Kris Kreeger

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22.—(AP)—William G. Helis' Earshot won the $25,000 Added New Orleans Handicap today in a driving finish, beating Mrs. J. S. Letellier's Jack S. L. to the wire by half a length.

Veteran Jockey Frank S. Moon brought Helis blue and white silks—the national colors of the owner's native Greece—across the finish in 1:44 4/5, one second off the track record for the mile and sixteenth distance set by Valdina Orphan in 1943.

J. B. Theall's Brown Mogul finished two lengths behind Jack S. L. and five lengths farther back was Theall's topweighted King Dorsett, the pacesetter for half the race.

Earshot, the bettors' second choice to the Theall entry, held back while King Dorsett and Fred Wyse's Air Rate staged a duel around the first turn and into the back stretch.

King Dorsett was away first, lost the lead to Air Rate at the quarter and regained it in the back stretch while Moon held Helis' little chestnut filly back in fourth place.

As the leaders took each other out, Earshot moved up and was second in the turn. Moon booted the Helis filly into the lead in the stretch, as Jack S. L., which had started last and moved steadily upward, came ahead to challenge Earshot all the way to the wire.

Earshot paid $8.20 for $2 to win, $4.20 to place and $2.40 to show. Jack S. L. paid $5.00 for a place ticket and $2.60 to show. The Theall entry paid $2.20 to show.

Behind Dorsett came, in order, Louis Prima's Republican, Air Rate, Mrs. Letellier's Uncle Mac and Eugenio De Sosa Jr.'s Betty's Beau. De Sosa had flown Jockey Fernando Fernandez here from Mexico City to ride in this race, but it helped little.

The day was warm and sunny and the track was fast, and 12,463 paying spectators—the largest Fair Grounds crowd in years—turned out for the richest race of the current 75-day meeting.

The race was worth $19,150 to oil tycoon Helis.

MOBLEY OFFERS PARKER CHANCE AT STATE TITLE

Light-Heavy Crown At Stake Here Thursday; Hickson Meets Marco

Rex Mobley, holder of the Louisiana light heavyweight wrestling championship, makes the second defense of his newly won laurels here Thursday night against the challenge of Allen "Sailor" Parker, Nashville, Tenn., veteran, with a promise of a world's title match with Jack Curtis awaiting the winner.

Promoter Gus Kallio last night announced Curtis had agreed to meet the winner of the Mobley-Parker brawl for the state crown in a world's title match here later. Cutris will be defending his own belt, but will not be able to claim the state crown if he wins the still to be scheduled match.

The Louisiana title was created less than two weeks ago when Mobley climbed to the newly established throne in a four-man tournament. But so far Mobley has not been able to adorn the belt, symbol of his championship.

The title belt, however, has arrived from the engravers at New Orleans and will be presented here Thursday night for the first time, Promoter Kallio said last night.

Last Thursday Mobley first defended his title against "Wild Bill" Canny, but the Kansas villain, always a real toughie in previous matches here, showed very little of his villainous character against Mobley. Their otherwise listless match was finally highlighted, however, by a last minute chair-swinging brawl in which Canny got cracked over the head with a chair, dropped to the canvas and became an easy pin-fall victim for Mobley in the deciding heat.

A newcomer and an old favorite will also be back for the semi-final attraction this week.

Johnny Marco, a New York Italian, comes to Monroe for the first time to meet Billy Hickson, classy young light-heavy from Knoxville, Tenn., in the curtain-raiser at 8 o'clock.

Marco and Hickson will battle over an hour time limit distance with two falls to win. The Mobley-Parker main event will have a 90-minute time limit, also two falls to win.

BAD KNEE MAY MEAN END OF JACK'S BOXING CAREER

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The fight game probably has seen the last of bouncing Beau Jack—and vice versa.

The Bouncing Beau, himself, summed it all up very neatly last night as he lay in his Madison Square Garden dressing room waiting for an ambulance to take him to a hospital with a kneecap that had just been broken for the second time in three months. The knee had given way in the ring as he was being belabored by Tony Janiro, the fancy-boxing youngster out of Youngstown, Ohio, with the result that swift Tony chalked up a four-round technical knockout.

"The hands are good," the Beau grinned weakly, holding up a fist for photographers, "but the knee's bad."

"I missed a hook," he explained, "and felt it give out. The pain was awful, and I fell. I fell on it, I guess, twisting. It was awful."

MONSOON HOME FIRST IN SANTA MARGARITA 'CAP

ARCADIA, Calif., Feb. 22.—(AP)—C. V. Whitney's Monsoon, 13-1 outsider, scored an upset victory today in the $50,000 Santa Margarita Handicap at Santa Anita Park.

Harry Isenberg's Double F. F. was second, with Louis B. Mayer's Be Faithful third.

Monsoon, five-year-old gray mare ridden by Jockey Ralph Neves, was clocked in 1:43 flat for the mile and one-sixteenth. The winner returned $29.10, $14 and $4.90.

A crowd of 58,000 saw the Whitney flier come from midway in the pack to overrun the leaders in the stretch and win by a length and a half.

Six Champions Crowned At Annual North Louisiana Cage Tournament

Oak Ridge, Ogden, Lisbon, Simsboro, Bossier City, Springhill Win

RUSTON, La., Feb. 22.—(Special)—Oak Ridge, Lisbon, Ogden, Springhill, Bossier City, and Simsboro high school basketball teams took top honors in the annual North Louisiana Basketball Rally at Louisiana Tech gymnasium here tonight after fighting through a field of 86 entries in the state's biggest prep school event of the season and one of the largest ever held here.

The champions by classes are:
Class A boys—Bossier City.
Class A girls—Springhill.
Class B boys—Simsboro.
Class B girls—Ogden.
Class C boys—Oak Ridge.
Class C girls—Lisbon.

H. G. Robinson, Homer, president of the North Louisiana Rally Association, made the presentations of trophies at the conclusion of the tournament shortly after 10 o'clock tonight.

In the championship finals Bossier City defeated Harris, 34 to 25, in Class A boys; Springhill stopped Winnsboro, 24 to 17, in Class A girls; Simsboro bested Doyline, 35 to 23, in Class B boys, Ogden, defending state titlists, trimmed Summerfield, 32 to 27, in Class B girls; Oak Ridge came out on top in Class C boys by defeating Dubach, 44 to 22; and Lisbon stopped Forest, 49 to 39, in Class C girls.

In consolation games held this afternoon to determine third place winners, also eligible to participate in the Louisiana state tournament at Baton Rouge, the results were as follows:

Class A, Boys—Rayville won on a forfeit from Springhill. Girls—Bastrop 24, Winnfield 17.

Class B. Boys—Choudrant 48, Oil City 28. Girls—Grayson 26, Columbia 24.

Class B boys—Simsboro stopped Oil City, Gibsland, and Cotton Valley. Doyline advanced over Choudrant, Downsville, and won through the first round on a forfeit from Delhi.

JENA, DRY PRONG WIN

ALEXANDRIA, Feb. 22.—(AP)—Dry Prong High cagers tonight were crowned Class B boys champs of the 26th annual Central Louisiana High School Basketball 'Rally when they nosed out Tioga, 21 to 18, in the first upset in title place.

Tioga led at half time 17 to 16 but Dry Prong took over on Tison's field goal early in the third frame and was never headed thereafter. The Tioga lead was never greater than four points, however. Tison scored 12 points to pace the champs with Howell pacing the losers with 13.

The Jena Giants are the new Class B boys cage champions by virtue of a 26-14 defeat they handed DeQuincy here last night.

The Giants held DeQuincy scoreless in the third quarter to take the lead after DeQuincy had led 12-10 at halftime.

league records, among other things.

This action was taken at request of Sam Tarleton, Opelousas sports writer, who is president of the writers association.

The vote taken on the dropping of Opelousas was an open vote. Owen moved that a secret ballot be taken, but this was opposed by J. Louis Watkins, a director of the Houma club, who said the league "has already suffered from too much sub rosa stuff."

The members of the eight-club circuit are Abbeville, Baton Rouge, Alexandria, Houma, Thibodaux, Hammond and New Iberia, La., and Natchez, Miss.

The moguls of the league are worried by rumors which have been current—but unconfirmed—that the league will not be allowed to participate in organized baseball this year because of the scandal which resulted in some of the players being declared ineligible.

Meanwhile, another tempest which had shaken the league teapot seemed to have boiled down to a mere simmer as W. E. (Babe) Benning, general manager of the Hammond club explained that Pat Harrison of the Houma club has not been signed to play with Hammond but is acting as Benning's agent in signing up new ball players for the Hammond team.

In Mobile, Patterson, identified as newly-named manager of the Hammond club, was quoted as saying he had purchased catcher Johnny George from Montgomery for Hammond and as announcing the signing of ten other players for Hammond.

"It's all a mistake," Benning explained at Hammond. "Pat still belongs to Houma. I'd like to have him but I couldn't make a deal with a Houma player."

He said Patterson claims he has been misunderstood, that he didn't say he was manager of the Hammond team but that he was acting as agent for the manager of the Hammond team.

Benning added, "I'm general manager and playing manager of the Hammond club and I expect to continue in that position for this season."

'PAP' WILLIAMS WILL PLAY WITH MERIDIAN

MERIDIAN, Miss., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Jack O'Connor, general manager of the Peps of the Southeastern League, announces that Fred (Pap) Williams has been signed for the 1947 season.

Williams played first base for the Peps last year and served as manager during the past portion of the season.

The newly-signed player hits hard and had many home runs to the credit side of the ledger. He is employed by the railroad in Meridian and delayed signing until he obtained a leave of absence.

FRNKA SELECTS 'HANK' CRISP AS NEW ASSISTANT

Addition To Wave Staff Formerly Coached Miami Seahawks, At Alabama

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 22.— (AP) — Henry "Hank" Crisp, veteran former line coach at the University of Alabama and 1946 coach of the Miami Seahawks, has been named assistant football coach at Tulane University.

Athletic Director Claude (Monk) Simons announced that Crisp had been recommended this week by Head Coach Henry Frnka of Tulane, and that negotiations were completed this morning.

Crisp will serve in part-time capacity in the spring and fall and will maintain his residence at Tuscaloosa, Ala. He will report to Tulane on Monday to work with the Greenies in spring training.

Crisp starred in his undergraduate days as an athlete at Hampden-Sidney College. He joined the Alabama coaching staff in 1921 under Coach Ken Scott, and coached subsequently under Head Coaches Wallace Wade and Frank Thomas at Alabama.

He was varsity basketball coach at Alabama for 18 years and served as athletic director at Alabama from 1931 to 1940.

At the outbreak of the war, Crisp joined the navy program and became associated with the Athens, Ga., navy pre-flight.

He returned to Alabama in 1945 as line coach, but last year started the season on the coaching staff of the Miami Seahawks professionals. He became head coach of the team at the resignation of Coach Jack Meagher in mid-season.

Crisp's appointment at Tulane is an addition to Frnka's staff and not a replacement.

SAYS INTERESTS TO LIE TO WEST

Gen. MacArthur Says Situation Now Badly Out Of Balance

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—The future interests of the United States, says Gen. Douglas MacArthur, "will lie as much to the west as to the east."

Even now, the situation is "badly out of balance," he added in a letter to Dr. Frank D. Fackenthal, acting president of Columbia University.

The letter was to express regret that he could not attend yesterday's exercises to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree along with the other top military leaders.

"Since the birth of our republic," MacArthur wrote, "our economy for the most part, beyond our domestic needs, has been geared to supply the lanes of commerce leading from our eastern shores, and our national defense largely has been planned against attack upon those shores.

"We now are badly out of balance. We must realize that our American interests, both from the standpoint of national security and economic progress, in future will lie as much to the west as to the east."

Secretary of State George C. Marshall, former army chief of staff, accepted degrees in behalf of himself and the other army leaders before an audience of 650.

Marshall said the nation's immediate future depended largely on "the degree of understanding of what our position is in the world" which is brought to the minds of young men and women by Columbia and other universities.

Admiral Ernest J. King, speaking in behalf of the navy leaders receiving degrees, said:

"The United States of America will enhance its endeavors to create a better world to the extent and in the degree that it is known that it is prepared to deal, and deal promptly, with those men and nations and their governments who obstruct or oppose the world aims and purposes of the United States, and of the United Nations."

Along with Gen. MacArthur, Gen. Henry H. Arnold received a degree in Absentia.

Those who appeared to receive degree were Generals Marshall, Dwight D. Eisenhower, Alexander Vandegrift, Lewis Hershey and Norman Kirk; and Admirals King, Chester W. Nimitz, William F. Halsey and Emory S. Land.

In ancient Rome a man campaigning for office wore a white toga and was called candidatus (clothed in white); whence the English word, candidate.

MUSIAL REMAINS MAJOR HOLDOUT

Greenberg's Signing Leaves Card Aoe Only Big-Name Player Out

NEW YORK, Feb. 22. —(AP)— Stan Musial, the National League's batting champion and most valuable player today was the only outstanding major league baseball player unsigned.

The hard-hitting St. Louis Cardinal first baseman became the lone dissatisfied star following the signing of Hank Greenberg, Hal Newhouser, Spud Chandler and Marty Marion by their respective clubs. The Pittsburgh Pirates, Detroit Tigers, New York Yankees and the Cards.

Musial is sitting tight at the Cards' St. Petersburg, Fla., spring training base reportedly seeking a $30,000 contract which is believed to be $8,000 more than the offer President Sam Breadon of the Cards has tended his star slugger.

Because the Red Birds drew over a million in paid attendance while winning the pennant and world championship last year, Musial believes he should be paid the requested $30,000.

Meanwhile the signing of Greenberg stole the headlines from the rest of the baseball news.

The former home run slugger of the Tigers inked a one-year document in New York for an undisclosed sum which John W. Galbreath, co-owner of the Bucs, said was "more than Hank received last year." Greenberg was reported to have received $55,000 from the Tigers in 1946.

Only a short while ago Greenberg who was sold to the Pirates by Detroit Feb. 9, indicated that he was considering retiring from the game.

MOTORCYCLE RACE MARRED BY 1 DEATH

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 22.—(AP)—A spill on the second lap of the 100-mile novice race which brought death to a Miami, Fla., rider marred the opening today of the American Motorcycle Association's annual meet on the beach and road course here.

P. C. Clark, Miami novice, was injured fatally on the back stretch of the 3.2 mile course in a pile-up of four motorcycles. He died en route to a hospital.

None of the other riders involved in the accident was believed to be seriously injured.

Jack Horn of Rosemead, Calif., won the novice event in the elapsed time of one hour, 21 minutes and 48 seconds, an average of 73.4 miles per hour for the 100-mile race.

Bill Huguley of Miami, Clark's riding partner, finished second, one minute and six seconds behind the winner.

Frank Curry, San Diego, Calif., held a three-mile lead in the novice race with only one lap to go when his motor blew up and forced him to the sidelines.

Included among the first 15 finishers was Dick Baer, Baton Rouge, La., who took eleventh place.

HOGAN HOLDS 3-STROKE LEAD OVER DAI REES IN INTERNATIONAL MATCH

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Benny Hogan took a three-up lead at the end of the first 18 holes of his 36-hole International Golf match with Dai Rees of England, with the final 18 holes for a $5,000 winner-take-all purse to be played tomorrow at the San Diego Country Club.

The American professional champion held a one-up lead at the end of nine holes in today's play before 2,500 galerites. Going into the 18th he had built it up to four, but slipped on the last green to lose the hole.

Hogan's medal score today was 68, four under par for the 36-36-72 layout, and won him $1,000. The little Englishman shot even par for the course.

Tomorrow's low medal will bring another $1,000, and $3,000 goes to the match play winner.

Hogan missed the course competitive record by one stroke in a smooth performance, while Rees, one of England's leading Pros, enjoyed no luck and several tough breaks. Hogan had 33-35-68, Rees 34-38--72.

Rees' balky putter cost him two holes. Twice he missed putts of two feet or less.

PORKERS DEFEAT AGGIES, 71 TO 58

Tall George Kok, Despite Broken Nose, Leads Arkansas To Victory

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 22.—(AP)—The University of Arkansas basketball team defeated Texas A. & M., 71 to 58, here tonight to sweep a two-game series with the Aggies.

The lead see-sawed until after six minutes of the second half when the Razorbacks pulled ahead, 38 to 36, on Center George Kok's field goal. They were never headed thereafter.

Despite a broken nose suffered in Friday night's game with the Aggies, the towering Kok made 22 points to share scoring honors with Forward Alvin Williams.

GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(NEA)—Whirlaway is popularly supposed to be the top money winning horse of all time. He is, among running horses, for the long-tailed Calumet Farm champion won $561,000. But the real champion is a pacer, the mighty Don Patch who ruled the turf 40 years ago. He, according to conservative estimates, grossed more than $750,000, and some of the more enthusiastic Dan Patch fans insist he earned 1,000,000.

Whirlaway did all his money-winning on tracks.

Dan Patch tapped all sources, found the prolific in gold.

Nowhere in history can proponents of the thoroughbred say that men smoked "Whirlaway Cigars" or that kids whooped over hills on "Man o' War Sleds." But they smoked "Dan Patch Stogies" and they rode "Dan Patch Sleds." Cattle munched "Dan Patch Feed." A nation toasted the fame of a crooked-legged pacer which came to an owner for $375.

Dan Messner bid $225 for Dan Patch's dam, spent $150 to have the mare bred to Joe Patchen, which briefly held the world pacing record at 2:01 1/4. Dan Patch beat his sire's time by six seconds. They figure that about 120 yards, maybe more. Even 120 feet would be enough.

Dan Patch won his first race as a four-year-old, defeating two unsung rivals handily. Proponents of the thoroughbred say that time is secondary to the manner in which a race is won. But Messner looked at his stop watch and blinked. There was a lot of one and two-eyed blinking over that race.

At Lafayette, Ind., a pacer, the name of which should be preserved forever, won a heat from Dan Patch, but the judges asked many close and perhaps embarrassing questions of Dan Patch's driver.

Never again was the great horse headed to the wire. He had a mark of 1:59 1/2. Star Pointer's record was 1:59 1/4, but the latter was in retirement at this point, and Dan Patch bestrode the free-for-all pacers as James J. Jeffries bestrode the heavyweight ranks of that day and year.

In 1902 Dan Patch figured in the record transaction for pacers, when Marion Savage, a manufacturer of stock foods, purchased him for $60,000. That marked a turning point in the career of a great race horse, and the world was startled by a new technique in advertising.

Dan Patch munched the food produced by his new owner. He broke records. Not every horse is a Dan Patch, but the food that made the champion invincible might do something for the lesser endowed by nature toilers in the shafts. And so, with advance men out before him, with blatant advertising sheets proclaiming his greatness, Dan Patch toured the country as never a horse has toured it before or since.

He had his private car, special grooms. The story of his life as a champion was available to those who wanted it and hundreds of thousands did.

He broke the record of Star Pointer. In every community sports fans talked of him as they talked of Ty Cobb, and as those of a later era talked of Jack Dempsey and Babe Ruth. They argued over whether another horse ever would be foaled to equal him. In 1906 he performed before 60,000. In 1905, 45,000 raving fanaticos saw him make his record of 1:55 1/4, a mark that stood for 33 years, until Billy Direct did 1:55 in Lexington, Ky., in 1938.

Dan Patch's greatest mile, 1:55, was disallowed because of a technicality. He had gone to the three-quarter in 1:25. Nothing seemed imposible.

In 1909 Dan Patch went home. He was retired to stud, but never produced his like.

This matters little to those who recall his thrilling brushes at the head of the stretch, and his roaring speed for home. To these Dan Patch still is king of them all.

SPORTS ROUND UP

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—(AP)—In case you didn't know it, the war ended Feb. 15—by decree of Happy Chandler . . . . At least, that's the date set by the Baseball commissioner for the end of "duration" regulations. . . . As a result, some minor league club owners who thought they were all fixed for the 1947 season may have to rip their teams apart because rookie rules, suspended due to wartime conditions, are going back into effect. . . . From another angle, the emergency still is going strong. . . . One young hopeful lined up by President Charley Allen of the Durham (Carolina league) Bulls, returned his contract unsigned. He wasn't beefing about his salary (naturally, not to the Bulls) but he insisted that a two-bedroom apartment for the season should be included in the terms.

He Hears Ears

J. B. "Ears" Whitworth, Georgia line coach, has taught his young son that the Sabbath is a day for serious affairs, not for play. . . . so "Ears" was surprised one Sunday when he found the youngster sailing toy boats in the bathtub. Whitworth started to administer a rebuke. . . . "Don't get excited, pop," the kid interrupted. "This isn't a pleasure boat. This is a missionary boat, going to Poland to bring back some big rugged men to make the kind of football players Georgia likes." (P. S.: We don't believe it either, but Scoop Latimer says it's so.)

First flight, who may be the second Whitney filly, to win the Kentucky derby, likes to munch cough drops. . . . At least five small colleges in the Ohio-western Pennsylvania district are resuming baseball this year after long interruptions. Allegheny will have its first team in 33 years. Others are Alliance, Slippery Rock, Youngstown and Waynesburg. . . . Charley Trippi isn't taking any money out of his basketball tour with some other Georgia footballers. His end of the take goes to teammates who weren't offered $100,000 contracts. . . . Guy Lombardo, the bandleader, flies to Miami next week-end to race his gold cup speedboat, Tempo VI, in the Biscayne Bay regatta. . . . When the Philadelphia Warriors' Joe Fulks scored his 1000th point of the basketball season, reports one observer, "the entire audience acted like expectant fathers. They knew it was coming but couldn't be sure of the arrival time."

MAROONS GIVE ATTENTION TO 'B' FOOTBALL TALENT

STATE COLLEGE, Miss., Feb. 22.—(AP)—Mississippi State's 1947 gridiron candidates completed the second week of spring football practice Saturday afternoon with approximately 80 men participating in the workouts.

Progress has been made in conditioning during the initial phases of training and several members of last season's "B" team have been showing up well in the workouts, but it is still a bit too early to predict if any will break into the 1947 starting lineup.

One of the more promising "B" team graduates is James Pittman, a fullback, who played in two varsity games this past season. With the loss of Bob Pillow, the regular fullback last year, Pittman is expected to see a lot of service along with Jim Bailey, who was Pillow's understudy.

MORE PAYMENTS MADE VETERANS

Readjustment Allowances Through Employment Security Listed

BATON ROUGE, Feb. 22.—(Special)—Payments of readjustment allowances to unemployed World War II veterans and unemployment compensation to unemployed non-veterans through the Monroe office of the Louisiana division of employment security showed a marked increase in January as compared to payments made the previous month.

The records of this division show that readjustment allowance payments through this office in January more than doubled payments made in December. Approximately 1,200 unemployed veterans received allowances amounting to $96,903 in January while approximately 600 unemployed veterans received $45,899 in December.

The records also show that 196 new claims for these allowances were filed through this office in January which was an increase over the month of December when the number of new claims was 164.

Monroe ranks fourth in the amount of these payments during this period while New Orleans is first, Alexandria second, Baton Rouge third and Shreveport fifth.

Administrator H. B. Turcan, in commenting on this increase, stated that it was state-wide and that practically all of the local offices had shown an increase during this period. He further stated that there had been a decided increase in new claims filed, which indicated that many veterans who had heretofore not applied for these allowances were now without jobs and making applications for these payments.

Payments of unemployment compensation to unemployed non-veterans through this office increased 82 per cent in January over December. Approximately 500 non-veterans received $23,909, while December payments totalled $13,118 to approximately 375 non-veterans. This is the first month since September that these payments have increased. Mr. Turcan also stated that the increase in unemployment compensation payments during January was general throughout the state.

Monroe ranks fifth in the amount of these payments for this period. New Orleans is first; Shreveport second; Minden third and Baton Rouge fourth.

JOHNSTONS WILL BE WED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel S. Johnston, long residents of Ouachita parish, will observe in quiet manner the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Prairie Road today. It is expected that many of their friends will drop in on them to wish them much happiness in years to come.

On Feb. 23, 1897, Mr. Johnston and Miss Willie Ada Barnett were united in marriage in Winnfield where they resided for five or six years when they removed to Ouachita parish where they have resided ever since and where they have made a large number of friends.

Mrs. Johnston for 25 years of her married life was an ordained Methodist Protestant minister and as an evangelist she held meetings in Louisiana, Texas, Arkansas and Mississippi. Many were converted under her ministry. However, a few years ago she was forced through impaired health to give up active duties in church work.

Mr. Johnston will be 77 years of ago on March 5 and his wife is considerably younger. Both are at this time fairly well considering their ages.

They have one son only who is Ernest Johnston, operator of a taxicab in Monroe, and also a grandson, Earl G. Johnston.

FERRIDAY FIRE IS IN NEGRO SECTION

FERRIDAY, La., Feb. 22.—(Special)—Fire, which threatened to destroy all of the Bucktown (colored section) area of Ferriday, Thursday night was brought under control, after six frame residences had been destroyed and a seventh badly damaged.

Bucktown is located in south Ferriday and contains an estimated forty Negro dwellings.

The blaze started at about 8 p.m. on Tin Can Alley in a two-family residence, tenanted by the families of Floyd Wilson and Cy Henry. It spread quickly, despite there being almost no wind, and had eaten into buildings located on Maryland Street, a block away, before firemen arrived to combat the flames.

The situation looked very serious for a time, and the Natchez fire department was asked to send assistance. Phoenix Company No. 7 answered the call. Firemen had extinguished the blaze about 9:15 p.m.

All families living in the block moved their furnishings into the streets. By 9:30 p.m., most of them who had not been burned out were moving back again.

Of the six houses destroyed at least one was owned by Lee Calhoun, white. Others were the properties of families living in them.

The fire attracted a large crowd of Ferriday people, both white and colored.

UNCLE SAM WILL DONATE CRUISES

Two Week Trips Open To Young Men Entering Naval Reserve

Young Louisianian's by the scores will take cruises to Central America this spring and summer—with all expenses paid. In fact, they will be paid to take trips to Cuba and the Panama Canal Zone. And, officials say, there is room left for others who have not yet applied for reservations aboard United States navy ships.

These two-week trips are open for Louisianian's between 17 and 40 who are qualified for the inactive branch of the naval reserve. To qualify, a man has only to be accepted for the inactive reserve. In this organization, a member will be called to active duty only in case of national emergency. No other strings are attached.

Such membership entitles one to make a training cruise each year, with uniforms furnished and full pay for such time on active duty. A member of the inactive reserve is not forced to take the cruises—he must request them.

Those eligible are men between 17 and 40 who have had no previous military service, as well as former members of the armed forces. Former navy and coast guardsmen may keep the rate held at time of discharge; most others will be seamen first class, which pays $90 a month.

Full information may be obtained from the navy recruiting station in Little Rock, Ark., or from the navy recruiting substation, room 303, Post Office building, Monroe.

ECONOMICS IS LEAGUE'S TOPIC

Women Voters Group To Study Problems Of Government

The Monroe League of Women Voters has announced that it will undertake a community-wide campaign to stimulate citizen thinking about economics which the league considers basic to understanding the problems of government today.

Miss Myrtle Rodgers, league president, announced that quantities of the national publication, "How the Wheels Go ' Round—An Economic Primer," have been distributed to league members for use in discussion groups and meetings and that another publication on the United States tax and fiscal policy called "Uncle Sam's Finances" is expected in a few days.

"The league's challenge for 1947 is to get citizens to understand how government and economics are related," Miss Rodgers said. "The league is pledged to no economic school or philosophy but it has become increasingly aware that the United States must find some common areas of agreement on economic policies if maximum employment and economic adjustment at home and reconstruction and rehabilitation abroad are to be assured.

"Women are often frightened of the word 'economics'," Miss Rodgers added. "For that matter, so are many men! The new pamphlets make the subject easier. Through them we hope to help our members and the public to understand the basic factors involved in economic problems and to try to come to a concensus about solutions. With leagues all over the country turning their energies toward this objective, we hope to make a significant contribution to the national thinking on the subject, and, we hope have some effect on future political decisions on economic questions."

PROGRAM OF CHARMING MUSIC IS PRESENTED IN HOSPITABLE HOME OF MRS. C. B. BRAUN

Two guest artists, Mrs. A. M. Serex, vocalist and Mrs. J. C. Liner, Jr., pianist, contributed immeasurably to a most delightful and worthwhile program arranged by the Review Club for the meeting held in the home of Mrs. C. B. Braun, Monday, February 17. The hostess welcomed the members and guests into her hospitable home made especially attractive by the various artistic arrangements of spring flowers.

The group assembled and welcomed for the meeting sang "America" after which the club president, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, spoke briefly on the principles of Americanism exemplified in the lives of Washington and Lincoln, urging members to rededicate themselves, especially during the observance of American Brotherhood Week, to these great ideals of democracy, incorporating the feeling of brotherhood into everyday living.

Mrs. W. T. Davis, chairman of American Home Department, reiterated the need for lofty ideals of tolerance, friendliness and kindness in building the world of our prayers and visions. In concluding her remarks, she called upon the group to repeat the Club Collect, which is a tract for such unity and peace.

Mrs. Braun, chairman of the department of Legislation, listed for club members, duties that should and must be performed to be good citizens.

The subject of the afternoon's study "The Unchanging British" was developed by reviews of two books by English authors, G. B. Stern's "The Reasonable Shores" and Rumer Godden's "Thus Far and No Further."

Mrs. Rodney Cline interpreted an English family involved in the tensions of war years who are with it all without horror or tragedy. This delineation of family life and character illustrated the abiding and never-changing quality of the British in all situations.

Mrs. E. P. Cudd discussed skillfully and entertainingly the group of semi-essays written by that senstive writer, Rumer Godden, who through the magic of her prose creates the atmosphere of a tea plantation high up in the Himalayas. Although the book is intensely personal and introspective it never-the-less reveals much of the character of the British as refugees, as travelers, as analytical students of the vast problems of India.

Mrs. Z. J. Byrd, chairman of the department of Fine Arts, presented Mrs. Serex who, in keeping with the topic's setting, India, rendered selections from De Libes' Lakme which unfolds the love of a daughter of a Brahmin for a British soldier, the ecstasy of high emotions and the subsequent moving pathos of their parting and her death. The aria, "Pour Quoi", was beautifully done and well received. Rimsky-Korsakoff's opera "Kadko" was also included and from it Mrs. Serex sang "Song of India", which further emphasized the beauty of the land of India.

Listeners were enthralled during the brilliant performance Mrs. Serex was in splendid voice and her dramatic soprano was employed with skill and poignancy. Mrs. Liner ably accompanied the vocalist, displaying her fluent and reliable technique.

During the social hour Mrs. Braun assisted by her daughter Ann, served a delicious dessert course and coffee to the following guests and club members: Mrs. J. B. Cooley, Mrs. A. M. Serex, Mrs. J. C. Liner, Jr., Mrs. F. V. Barnett, Mrs. Z. J. Byrd, Mrs. Rodney Cline, Mrs. S. A. Collins, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. A. S. Huffman, Mrs. A. R. Holloway, Mrs. J. C. Lofton, Mrs. C. V. McGimsey, Mrs. D. M. Moore, Mrs. J. P. Noel, Mrs. H. W. Colbert and Mrs. Sam Smith.

MEMBERS OF MALE QUARTET

The National Male Quartet will be presented by the Civic Music Association in concert this afternoon at the Ouachita Parish School auditorium at 3 o'clock. The program includes numbers from "Oklahoma" and the "Song of Norway." Many of the old time favorites including such beloved songs as Clair de lune by Debussy, "I Love Thee," by Grieg, and "Vienna Life," by Strauss, will be included on the program.

Male Quartet Will Give Concert Today

This afternoon at three o'clock members of the Civic Music association will be privileged to hear ballards born of three centuries of American history when members of the National Male Quartet will appear in concert at the Ouachita Parish High School auditorium.

The four members of the National Male Quartet all enjoy individual eminence in the world of music. Attilio Baggiore and Giulio Gari have more than merely tenor voices in common. They both made their operatic debuts at the Teatro Reale dell 'Opera in Rome. Mr. Baggiore has since sung leading roles with the Chicago Opera Company; Mr. Gari, with the opera companies of the New York City Center, St. Louis and Cincinnati. The careers of the baritone and bass, Vernon Sanders and Bruce MacKay, also run parallel. Both made their operatic debuts with the San Francisco Opera Company, and sang six months of Gilbert and Sullivan repertory in the same city before they headed east. All four singers have established their reputations in the concert halls of the country, and over the airwaves. It is their common love of ensemble music which impels the Messrs. Baggiore, Gari, Sanders, and MacKay, to pool their talents in a joint tour under the auspices of the National Concert and Artists Corporation.

Members Of Junior Charity League Inaugurate Children's Book Program

Members of the Junior Charity League, endeavoring to express the sincere appreciation for the splendid assistance rendered them throughout the year by the citizens of the Twin Cities, have adopted as their project at this time a "Books Bring Adventure" program for school children. Through all the stages of childhood conscientious parents seek to help the child acquire attitudes that will give him a well-balanced, satisfying existence. One of the best allies is in carefully chosen books. Books that give an eternal quality to life, that interpret the teachings of Jesus as workable rules of living, that reveal the essential oneness of the human family, that make the spirit of unselfishness and love and service more important than a big bank account or fame or passing pleasures. The books selected by the Junior Charity League for the children of the Twin Cities will prove to be "bridges to spiritual values," and will play an important part in the shaping of young lives. Books to be dramatized over station KNOE each Saturday afternoon commencing March 1 can be found at the Ouachita Parish Public Libraries in Monroe and West Monroe.

Prominent members of the Monroe Junior Charity League were busily engaged last week in completing plans for the inauguration of their "Books Bring Adventure" program on March 1. To the left, at the top of the page, is seen Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., Mrs. Alston Prophit, and Mrs. Charles Garretson completing plans for the broadcast over station KNOE. To the right, at the top of the page, Mrs. John Duchkar, Mrs. C. B. Flinn and Mrs. Hollis Venable are seen leaving the Conway Memorial Hospital where they visited the children's ward. A portable library for children is maintained at this hospital by the Junior League. Mrs. Stanley Archibald and Mrs. James Harris, lower left, are seen placing books for children on the shelves at the public library.

Confidentially

A letter brimming with interesting facts about the ancient city of Rome was received recently by Mr. and Mrs. William Wood of this city from their daughter, Mrs. M. D. Chapman, who with Major Chapman is living in Leghorn, Italy, where he is stationed with the United States army. The letter is descriptive and contains many facts not found in books. Mrs. Chapman is the former Miss Louise Wood of this city. Her letter follows:

Last Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock Mary Piekliek, her little boy, Robert, Evelyn Manfield, D and I went by train to Rome. This was on the train operated by the army, but an Italian built train. They are different from ours. Instead of seats they have compartments only. It was nice and warm and we were comfortable, also had two fairly good meals as we did not arrive in Rome until 3:45 in the afternoon. It had started snowing here on Sunday and everything was covered. It was very pretty and not too cold.

After we got to Rome we took a bus to the hotel which is one of Rome's biggest and nicest and is now operated by the army. We got our rooms and freshened up a bit and then walked down about three blocks to the American Red Cross who conducts tours of the city. We found that they have two every day from 9:15 til 12:00 and from 2:15 till 5:00 Thursday morning we took the one to the Vatican Museums, and Sistine Chapel. The museums were wonderful. As well as seeing many masterpieces we saw probably the most valuable library and so many manuscripts. One was a letter from Martin Luther. There were so many and I saw so much during the week that I will not be able at this time to tell you all. In the Sistine Chapel is one of the famous works of Michelangelo. This was after he took up painting and the walls and ceilings were done by him at the age of 57. It took him six years to complete. During that time he lived at the Vatican, being a special friend of the Pope at that time. Toward the end of the painting, however, he and his friend had a misunderstanding and for spite he painted part of purgatory. This, however, is not noticeable unless it is pointed out.

On Friday morning we visited the Castle Sant' Angelo. There is a secret passage from here to the Vatican. This is used in case the Pope needs protection as the castle can be completely closed off. In here we saw the prison where St. Peter and St. Paul were held prisoners at one time. There were many more things here that I will have to wait and tell you about. From there we visited the seven hills of Rome and then to the Ardeatine Caves. During the war hand grenades were thrown and 20 Germans were killed. For revenge they took 320 Italians to this cave which they mined beforehand and they were shot from the opening and then the mines were set off. These people are still buried here. They have been identified and their remains placed in wooden coffins that line the cave. It is kept filled with flowers by the families and friends. On each coffin is a picture of the person and something written about him. There were 16 year old boys, brothers, fathers and sons, priests, colonels and generals among them. The colonel who arrested Mussolini was among them. Italy plans to make a monument here, with a marble entrance and marble coffins.

Friday afternoon our tour took us to St. Calixtus Catacombs. Here we saw where St. Peter and St. Paul were buried for a short time. We later saw their tombs. We were given candles to carry into the Catacombs. You walk down under the ground and they show you how people were buried and the different little chapels that they have down there. I have forgotten how old these were, but they go back to before the time of Christ. Then we saw the Circus Maximus, Baths of Caracalla, and the Ancient Appian Way. The old gates of Rome and part of the walls. We walked down through the gate that Jesus walked and to the place that he is supposed to have met Peter leaving Rome (fleeing). There Peter turned and went back to Rome for his own crucifixion. Christ is said to have left His footprint on the pavement while appearing to Peter and a copy of it is in the little church located on the spot. We later saw the original in the Church of St. Sebastian. (I might add that the total length of the Catacombs counting all of the different ones which are said to all run together under the ground is 60 miles).

On the way back we stopped at the Protestant Cemetery where Keats and Shelley are buried. Later we went into the house that they occupied. Then we went to Vatican City and through St. Peter's Cathedral. I stopped and bought two rosaries and had them blest by the Pope in the audience we had with him. I had bought a little shoe for D's charm bracelet which was in the same box so it was blest also.

As you probably know Vatican City is on a hill on the bank of the Tiber river and is separated from Rome by its walls. It consists of 109 acres, and is an independent state. The origin of it goes back to 306 A. D. The Pope never leaves it. The St. Peter church is the largest in the world, and stands on the site of the Circus of Nero which in his held chariot races. Later many Christians were martyred in the Circus. This present church was started in 1506. The architects were Bramante and Michelangelo. The building was completed in 1625. The mosaics in the church are something out of this world. In fact they are in all of the churches in Rome, but these are the most elaborate and very colorful. There is much gold work and silver.

I might add that when we visited the museums there were many things covered in precious jewels. Now back to the church. St. Peter is buried in the tomb under the altar. There is so much to tell about this. You can tell from the pictures how huge and beautiful it all is. Saturday afternoon we took a tour outside of Rome to Tivoli. This is a villa used by the high orders of the senate and church in the old days for a summer home. There is not much left of the villa but the gardens are the things to see. There are between 1800 and 2000 fountains here. The beauty of it takes your breath away.

Among the many statues we saw the she-wolf and the twins. On the way out we were shown many historic points of interest that I wish I could tell you about each, but I see that I just can't. I just saw more than I can remember and could go back and take the same tour and learn so much more.

Sunday we visited the Piazza Navona, Capitoline Museum, Church of Coelia and Mamertine Prison. In the Jesuit Church we saw the carving of the Christ Child in olive wood and completely covered with precious stones. Diamonds, rubies, black diamonds, and every other kind that you can name.

On Saturday night D and I went to the opera "LeTraviata." It was nice and one Sunday night we went to the other one, "La Sonnamula."

The morning tour took us to the Pantheon which was built in 27 B. C. in honor of the seven gods. It is the largest dome in the world. It has the greatest of all Roman doors, being huge bronze ones. I tried to move one side of it but could not. The tombs of Raphael, Victor Emmanuel II, and Umberto I are in here. Near here is the Victor Emmanuel Monument where Italy's unknown soldier of the first World War is buried. Then we saw the Palace of the Buonaparte. Next to the Church of San 'Ondrea della Valle. This is the place which was at one time the site of Pompey's senate where Julius Caesar was assassinated. From here we went to the Church of St. Paul Outside the Walls (The Church of San Paolo fuori le Mura). This is one of the four major churches in Rome (we visited all of them). It dates back to 386 A. D. and contains the tomb of St. Paul who was beheaded about a mile from here. It is believed that when he was beheaded his head bounced or rolled three times and at that time three fountains sprang up. These fountains still flow. This is a beautiful church and had many interesting things to see in it. Next we went to the Trevi Fountain and Pyramid of Caius Cestius and to Piazza Venezia. I can tell you that I was plenty tired after this tour, but it had been inspiring and interesting.

Monday afternoon D and I took a tour to the Borghese Art Gallery where we saw the statue of Moses done by Michelangelo. This is one of his masterpieces. There were many other things here also. Next we visited Santa Maria Maggiore Church. The ceiling of this church is gilded with the first gold brought to Spain from South America. The church was built in 352 A. D. Then we went to the Church of San Pietro in Vincoli. In here are the chains used when St. Peter was a prisoner. These were brought from Jerusalem by the Byzantine Empress Eudoxia and joined to the ones he wore when in the Mamertine Prison in Rome. The two joined are about two yards long. They are in a glass topped bronze case below the altar. I believe this is where the statue of Moses was instead of at the Borghese Art Gallery. I saw so much I guess I have gotten a little confused, but I am sure now it was in this church.

On Tuesday morning, D and I took a tour to the Roman Forum, and the Palatine. Then we went to the Colosseum, and the Trevi Fountain again and to St. John Lateran Church. This was first built in 324 A. D. but was destroyed by fire and later by earthquake. There were something in it however that were in the first church. About the most interesting was the slab of wood that is supposed to be the one on which the last supper was served. It is in a curtained recess above the altar. In a small church near here called the Church of the Holy Stairs we saw the marble stairs (28 steps) that was in the house of Pontius Pilate and that Jesus walked up and down at the time of his trial. They were brought here all in one piece. No one is allowed to ascend them except on their knees. There are three spots on the stairs covered with glass that are said to be Jesus' blood. People were ascending them and saying prayers when we went there.

We visited the Church of the Immaculate Conception. In the bottom of this church is a cemetery where there is nothing but bones. Some of the monks are still clothed in the robes they were buried in.

We went to the Palace where Mussolini had his office and saw the balcony where he made his speeches. We wanted to visit Anzio cemetery, but the weather did not permit. In one of the churches we saw what is left of the cradle that was used to carry Jesus from Jerusalem.

Oh yes, I wanted to tell you about two statues of St. Peter and St. John that are in the Church of St. Paul. They have silver heads and inside are the skulls of these two men.

Wednesday morning we flew back to Pisa. It was a beautiful day and we thoroughly enjoyed the ride. The view of Rome as we were leaving, was quite wonderful. We followed the coast for a way and then went over the mountains which were covered with snow. From there on we flew above the clouds most of the way. It took us only a hour and five minutes to fly home.

Miss Beverly Ringwald, of this city, student at Northwestern State College, Natchitoches, La., was selected queen of the Mardi Gras ball, an event of widespread interest in collegiate circles.

Miss Robinson Is The Bride Of Mr. Willhide

In an impressive ceremony marked by beauty and simplicity, Miss Eleanor Robinson, daughter of Mrs. J. V. Robinson and the late J. V. The vows were exchanged in a double-ring ceremony in the chapel of the First Methodist Church in Sacramento. The chapel was beautifully decorated with candles and white gladiolis.

Miss Mickey Joiner of West Monroe, the bride's attendant, wearing a green suit with brown accessories and corsage of talisman roses. The bride wore a lovely soft blue suit with white accessories and corsage of gardenias.

Mr. Lester Horning of San Bernardino, California, served the groom as best man.

Mrs. R. W. Davis, Ruston, chairman of Roadside Beautificiation, read a letter from Mrs. Olive Cooper, faculty member of Northwestern State College, Natchitoches, which stated that Phi Kappa Gam, a chapter of The Fine Arts League, sponsored by Mrs. Cooper, is building a memorial park dedicated to the late Lt. (jg) Serven Swett, outstanding student of the college who lost his life at sea during World War II. Caring for this memorial park will be the duty of the local Boy and Girl Scouts.

Dr. James S. May, director of Cancer Control for Louisiana, made an instructive talk on "Cancer Control," and requested all clubs to obtain further material on the subject by writing to the American Cancer Society, 238 Saratoga street, New Orleans. Miss Leone Langford, from the health education department at Northwestern State, accompanied Dr. May, and also talked on the subject.

Mrs. C. E. Hester, Tallulah, urged all clubs to write Senator Overton and Senator Ellender, requesting them to support Senate Bill 48, which proposes to give federal aid for the establishment of demonstration libraries in rural areas.

This project of the General Federation of Women's clubs is one that has for its purpose, "Peace Plans Practical." Meaning that by personal contacts with individuals, clubs or families in many of the foreign countries a better understanding between nations will result. Thousands of clubs throughout the U. S. have adopted families in Poland, Sweden, Holland, Italy, France, and Belgium. Before the close of the year contacts will be made in Germany, Japan and Russia.

The program for the afternoon was a continuation of the study of China. Mrs. C. U. Johnson read the paper prepared by Mrs. W. M. Harper on "Forever China" by Robert Payne. She said in part:

"China to Robert Payne is more than a country; it is a way of life, of thought, of feeling. Few Westerners have sensed or pictured its beauty and its people more keenly than this young novelist and scholar. He is not concerned with politics or military strategy, but rather with the lasting traits of China, the brilliant colors of landscape, the self-sufficient pride of the scholars, the youth and incredible fortitude of the soldiers, the thrilling vitality of the peasants and city dwellers, the relentless eagerness of the students and particularly the national sense of beauty.

China, he believes is changing not through the government efforts but because its youth is dreaming new dreams. He believes that there will be a new China not altogether good, since it is losing the beauty of the past, but vigorous, active and alive. The book is a diary, very personal, yet it paints with exquisite beauty, the lights and shadows of what may yet become the most powerful nation of the earth, a land of grief and hardship, but also of vast strength and spiritual resource.

Robert Payne is a young man still in his thirties, a scholar trained at five universities in Great Britain and South Africa. A translator of works in Russian, Danish, German and Chinese; a correspondent who is always in the crucial places at the crucial moment of the war. Payne has seen all sides of life both European and Asiatic. He is professor of English literature and lecturer in naval architecture at Lienta University, Kumming, and has had wonderful opportunity to study the old culture of China.

In speaking of the Chinese schools, Payne says they are the backbone of China as poorly equipped as they are and a few schools as they have. Believes that it is through the schools that China will be saved.

Every page of his diary has something interesting, and he ends with this sentence: "China will last as long as her scholars and her arts endure, she cannot fail. Her roots touch the earth and her spirit is continually in the heavens."

Mrs. Duncan Cook in her discussion of Chinese art said in part: "Chinese art should consider first the architecture, the gardens, sculpture, painting, calligraphy, pottery, bronze, ceramics, jade, lacquer, glass, enamels, jewelry and also textiles and music. Chinese people are very artistic, their art reaches into their most intimate every day lives and is characterized by its impressionistic qualities rather than a strict adherence to actual visiual form. Chinese art is divided into the following periods: Neolithic and Shang. The existence of a Neolithic Age in China has been established by fairly recent excavations which have enormously increased the knowledge about the beginnings of Chinese civilization. The pottery of this age is simple in form and design. The Shang period is chiefly the age of bronze as is the Chou and Chin period. Sculpture as well as other forms of art is found. Buddhism which entered China during the 1st century A. D. had a great affect on Chinese art, particularly sculpture. During the Tang Dynasty that it reach its apex. We have realistic reproduction of this era. Among them being decorated mirrors, jade, and precious stones painstakingly carved in many forms.

It was during this period that calligraphy reached its height. There was also an improvement in the forms of vases and true porcelain appeared. Under the Sung sculpture declined, but painting and especially landscapes attained new heights.

In all the dynasties the influence of aliens and a fresh influx of foreign impulses appeared.

During the Ming Dynasty there was an age of building when many of the walls, bridges and palaces were constructed which constitute the chief architectural features of the China of the 19th and 20th centuries. With their love for the past the Chinese have tended to reproduce the forms of earliest ages.

If art is the expression of the people's soul, and if a civilization can be epitomized in its aesthetic forms then Chinese culture is most varied. The magnificence of its imperial ideal, a single state governing all mankind, is set forth in the imposing walls and impressive palaces of its capitol. The long struggle to defend the prosperous plains from the barbarian is pictured by the Great Wall. The sense of moderation so prized in Confucian Philosophy is made vivid by the repose of well proportioned courts and buildings.

No resume of Chinese art would be complete without some special reference to calligraphy and painting. Considered same branch as expertness in the use of brush pen is basic to both. Calligraphy has been honored by the Chinese perhaps more than any other branch of art. More widespread than painting. In old system of education the noted specimens of calligraphers were reproduced in the form of copy books. Scrolls hung in pairs and bearing inscriptions were hung everywhere. Works have been treasured and carefully preserved as have been great paintings. The Chinese block form of printing has allowed them to be multiplied.

Painting, however, is the pre-eminent art of China! Their ability to create beauty cannot be surpassed. As a branch of handwriting it requires a mastery in manipulation of the brush and modulation of the strokes. Ink is the favorite medium and Chinese ink is a wonderful substance capable of immense range and an extraordinary beauty of tone. In contrast to the western art the Chinese always depict the life of the world outside man—the life of animals, birds and plants."

At the close of this most interesting program, Mrs. Cook exhibited some very beautiful objects of art which Kay Krandall had brought from China. Among them were several beautiful ceremonial skirts in bright shades of blue, red and pink. Then some Buddhas of wood and jade. The beautiful red lacquered bowl with inlaid pearl was admired by all. Many Chinese coins were shown and several sketches on the scrolls.

The hostesses served a delicious salad course with coffee and confections. Those present were: Mrs. Leo Terzia, Mrs. C. U. Johnson, Mrs. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. Duncan Cook, Mrs. Herbert Breard, Mrs. B. M. McKoin, Mrs. Nathan Gaston, Mrs. Ernest Holloway and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale. Mrs. J. B. Kugler was welcomed as a new member at this meeting.

Mrs. Thomas May, Mrs. Leo McStravick, Mrs. Grayson Guthrie entertained at luncheon for Miss Kathleen Myers at La Casa tea room.

A springtime theme was reflected in the wedding ring vases of yellow jonquils placed in the center of the luncheon table.

The place cards, unusually novel, were large yellow and green plastic mixing spoons with jonquils tied with green ribbon. On each ribbon was the name of the guest.

Miss Myers wore on this occasion a brown and blue spring model with brown accessories and was presented with a lovely jonquil corsage by her hostesses.

Miss Myers was given on this occasion a most useful gift—an electric iron.

After a delicious three course meal, a delightful conversational hour was enjoyed by: Mesdames Thomas May, Leo McStravick, Grayson Guthrie, Tennie May, John Myers, B. P. Spear, James McCormick, Floyd Stone, Jr., G. A. Boyd, R. E. McConnell, Walter Rhodes, N. G. Myers, and Miss Myers.

Purely Personal

Hospitality is the sum total of amenities. It is the amenities that make a party tick . . . the little things that are well thought out and well brought out . . . the small considerations, meticulous attention to details. It is these that tip the scales and constitute the public difference between the parties you remember all your life, and the parties you forget on your way home.

One party last week that will always be remembered by those in attendance was given by Mr. and Mrs. George Gunby. Every detail was carefully worked out beforehand and was made up of all the little niceties the guests found so attractive. It was a Mardi Gras party with favors for the guests and a crown of flowers for the "queen," Miss Satchie Naiden for whom the dinner party was given. Her fiance, Mr. Charles Finlayson was privileged to place the crown of flowers on her head. He in turn was crowned "king" by his hostess.

The conspicuous and memorable thing about this party was the fact it was carefully worked out to reflect the Mardi Gras season in gay and colorful manner.

Mrs. Janet Powell reminds one of a bright bird of passage. She follows the sun from one party of the country to another. In the summer it's the cool clime of Michigan, in the spring it's Louisiana and in the winter it's Palm Beach, Florida. Right now she is basking in the warm mellow sunshine of San Juan, Puerto Rico. A card informs us that she is visiting former residents of this city, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hancock, who are now making their home in San Juan. Mrs. Hancock is the former Miss Mary Lee Sullivan.

Mrs. Marion Learned has lived in Monroe for twenty-three years and has traveled extensively, yet she never attended Mardi Gras in New Orleans, so she decided not to let another year go by without witnessing this spectacular event. She accepted the alluring invitation extended by Mrs. Henry Newton Pharr to be her house guest. Mrs. Learned saw Mardi Gras under the most favorable circumstances. She had call outs to the balls of Momus, Mystic Club, Proteus and Comus and viewed the parade from the balcony of the Louisiana club. Mrs. Learned spent a few days at Fairview plantation before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Frazier found life rather irksome motoring back and forth to Monroe from their plantation at Waverly these cold winter days, so they leased a small apartment and are now enjoying life to the fullest. Their son, O. B. Frazier whose marriage to Miss Vyvian Harper takes place about the middle of March is delighted to have his parents in the city and enjoying with him the many pre-nuptial courtesies.

Such wonderful news today about a talented Monroe girl, Miss Julia Kern Liebreich who is studying designing at the St. Louis school of Fine Arts at Washington University. She recently designed a ballet length wedding gown with beaded collar and mitts and a graceful, circular skirt. This model was selected as one of the outstanding designs at the recent show presented for 600 invited guests at the Starlight roof of the Hotel Chase in St. Louis. The newspaper reporter spoke of this gown as possessing a refreshing quality of youthfulness and published a stunning picture of Miss Kern wearing this gown fashioned of off-white Skinner satin. Miss Kern's career is being watched with great interest by friends and admirers in this city who predict an enviable future for her.

Few who sat comfortably in their seats at the recent Style Revue on the Frances hotel terrace sponsored by St. Anne's Circle and St. Matthew's Sodality, realized the tremendous amount of work that went into the presentation. The event, one of the most artistic and certainly the most successful from a financial and attendance standpoint, was placed in the hands of Mrs. Fred Becker. She served as general chairman and was really the power behind the throne. Her excellent ideas were carefully and harmoniously worked out by members of her committee. It was a tremendous undertaking and to Mrs. Becker go the orchids for this month's meritorious achievement.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Harvey Todd and Mrs. Ruth Todd Gibbes, of Shreveport, attending the Myers-Spear wedding, are week-end guests in the home of Mrs. Geo. Hair.

Sketch of Future Auditorium
H. H. Land & Son, Architects

The above sketch is a picture of the future auditorium of Central Baptist Church built of brick and having very modernistic appearance. It will be approximately 140 feet long and 42 feet wide, and should accommodate over 600 people with space for offices and some classrooms. The educational unit will be added to this auditorium in the future. This is a great challenge to Central Church, but the great need of this area necessitates such an undertaking.

OUR PLAN—

- Begin construction as soon as plans are completed.
- Build as we are financially able to pay or finance.
- Build an attractive, yet economical building.
- Use present buildings until future construction of educational unit.
- Raise more funds for building now.
- Easter Sunday — Time to bring in coin banks and offerings.

OUR PLEA—

- Every member give something to this cause.
- Bring or mail in contributions.
- Members urged to get coin banks and fill them.
- Cash bonds and make a liberal financial gift.
- Gifts from merchants and friends will be greatly appreciated, but only members will be solicited.

OUR PRAYER—

- For God's leadership and blessing.
- That God will enable us to build.
- That this building may be to His Glory and Praise.

METHODIST CHURCH IN MER ROUGE IS THE SCENE OF PROMINENT NUPTIAL EVENT

Carrying her grandmother's bridal gown of white satin, Miss Jane Davidson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evans Turpin Davidson of Mer Rouge became the bride of Mr. George Alvin White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jude Roberts White of Bastrop on the 57th wedding anniversary of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Davidson. The impressive double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. Douglas T. Williams at half-after six in the evening, February 4th.

The picturesque little Methodist church of which her grandparents are charter members, was softly illuminated with cathedral tapers flaming high against a background of southern smilax and white gladioli.

Palms intersperced with wrought iron candelabra supporting tall white tapers flanked the altar.

At the nuptial hour, Miss Genevieve White rendered an organ concert. Mr. William H. Huckaby accompanied the two soloists, Mrs. Clare Mayo Clark who sang "At Dawning," and Mrs. Henry T. Peede, who sang "Because."

The wedding party entered to the traditional strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin. The ushers were Mr. John L. Davidson, brother of the bride, Mr. Max Brodnax, Jr., Mr. Benjamin B. Bundy, and Mr. Clinton Bagwell.

The bridesmaids all wore white taffeta gowns which were exact replicas of the gown by the bride's grandmother wore on her wedding day. The tight bodices, long tight sleeves, deep yoke of marquisette ruffled at the throat and full hooped skirts featuring a wide panel of bustles ending in a short train, were reminiscent of a by gone era.

Miss Ernestine Carr of Baton Rouge, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Misses Elaine Bacon, Mary Lou Willey, and Bonnie Jean Ginn of Mer Rouge, Miss Edna Morris of Baton Rouge, and Misses Virginia White, and Virginia Smith of Bastrop. Mrs. Aubrey A. Bowles, aunt of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a handsome model of white satin of the same period as those of the maids. They all carried arm bouquets of white calla lilies. The bride given in marriage by her father wore a beautiful gown of white slipper satin made with a tight bodice fastened in back with self-covered buttons. The deep-off-shoulder-effect yoke was outlined with appliqued lace and embroidered in seed pearls. The leg-o-mutton sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands. The skirt worn over hoops was gracefully draped in front to reveal a ruffled flounce of imported lace. The fullness of the back swept into a court train. Her veil attached to a tiara of real lace extended beyond the train. The bride's only ornament was a diamond sunburst, a heirloom in her father's family, which she wore on a white velvet ribbon around her throat. She carried a bouquet of white orchids.

The bride was met at the altar by the groom and Mr. Gilbert T. White, brother of the groom, who served as best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Davidson wore a draped model of powder blue crepe, a halo hat of pink split carnations and a corsage of pink camellias. Calla lilies and fern with tall white tapers gleaming in their midst banked the mantel. The bride's table, was overlaid with white organdy ruffled cloth caught at intervals with clusters of white camellias. The beautifully embossed cake in the center of the table was encircled by a wreath of white hycinths and Alba Plena Camellias and surrounded by white tapers in silver candelabra. The table was presided over by Mrs. Sydney Fairchild of Baton Rouge, aunt of the bride.

In the dining room, the table was centered with twin hearts of ruffled tulle and small white blossoms. One of the hearts was inscribed with "Jane and Abb" and the date 1947, the other bore the words "Lelia and Lewis" and the date 1890.

Punch and a variety of confections were served. The punch bowls were presided over by Mrs. Will Smith of Bastrop, Mrs. Robert Carr of Baton Rouge, and Mrs. Hugo Davenport. The handsome wedding gifts were on display in the sun parlor adjoining the reception suite. Beautiful music was rendered during the reception by Mrs. Cecil Armstrong, to the pleasure of the occasion. Miss Nancy Smith of Oak Ridge presided over the bride's book. Mrs. John Madison Smith, Misses Dorothy White, Bonnie Marie Windsor, Donna Baion and Norma Jean Evans served.

After the cake was cut by the bride the young couple left on their honeymoon. For traveling the bride wore a suit of dusty rose wool crepe with brown accessories.

Mrs. White, a popular member of the younger set, is attending Louisiana State University and is affiliated with Kappa Kappa Gamma social sorority. The groom is also attending Louisiana State University where he expects to receive a degree in physical education this summer. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

VISITOR FROM PERU

Miss Hortensia Luna, a visitor in Louisiana from Lima, Peru, (center) is seen with Mr. H. L. Sanders, director of agricultural extension and Miss Ellen LeNoir, state home demonstration agent, making plans for Miss Luna's tour of the state including Monroe where she will speak over the radio and attend Home Demonstration and 4-H club meetings.

JUNIOR CHARITY LEAGUE IS RESPONSIBLE FOR CREATING DESIRE FOR BETTER BOOKS

"A child's mind begins its development at an early age and for full, well rounded growth the stimulation of wholesome books and radio programs are necessary. The reading of good books assists a child in becoming a well-integrated personality and the books to be dramatized on BOOKS BRING ADVENTURE measure up to these standards." These were some of the opinions voiced at the round table discussion on the Junior Charity Leagues inauagural program of BOOKS BRING ADVENTURE over KNOE Saturday.

Well qualified to offer their opinions were Miss Frances Flanders, Ouachita Parish Public Library; Rev. Ernest Holloway, First Presbyterian Church; Mr. Everett Burgoyne, St. Matthew's Parochial School; Mrs. Willie Harris, Ouachita Parish juvenile probation officer; Mrs. Louis Slator of the parish school faculty and Mrs. Gordan Cummings, Georgia-Tucker P.-T. A. all of whom are sincerely and actively interested in the development of the mental growth of our children in the right direction.

The members of the Junior Charity League have been working to contact children through schools, scouts, churches and libraries so that these beautifully dramatized transcriptions can be made available to as many children as possible.

In order to stimulate interest, the league is offering a book to the child writing the best fan letter each week about the book dramatized the previous week. This award will be presented to the winner in an interview over the radio at the close of the program. Prizes will be given on the last program of the series to the child sending in the best drawing pertaining to any of the books dramatized over the 13 weeks and to the mother writing the best letter telling why she feels BOOKS BRING ADVENTURE will benefit her child.

The overwhelming response of the parents, schools and organizations to the promotion of this program, has been gratifying to the Junior Charity League members who are continually striving to benefit children. The work of the league has centered on underprivileged children and providing for them necessary clothing, food and medicine and while this work is continued the Junior Charity League is also sponsoring an opportunity to provide necessary and beneficial entertainment for all children.

Beginning March 1st each Saturday at 12:45 on KNOE the following books, each a story of a child from a different part of the world, will be dramatized. These books can be found at the Ouachita Parish Library in Monroe and West Monroe.

MISCHIEF IN FEZ, by Eleanor Hoffman; TRAP LINES NORTH, by Stephen Meador; GIFT OF THE FOREST, by Eloise Lownsbery and H. Lal Singh; CAPTAIN KIDD'S COW, by Phil Strong; THE SINGING TREE, by Kate Seredy; ON THE DARK OF THE MOON, by Don Lang; SMOKY BAY, by Steingumur Arason; STRUGGLE IS OUR BROTHER, by Gregor Felsen; WHEN THE YPHOON BLOWS, by Elizabeth Foreman Lewis; THREE AND A PIGEON, by Kitty Barne, LEVEL LAND, by Dola De Jong; MOCHA THE DJUKA, by Frances Fulerton Neilson; IN CLEAN HAY, by Eric P. Alcohol, as a beverage, has a way of doing destructive things to people. It anaesthetizes the will power and thus renders helpless the very power in the individual by which it should be controlled. This effect on the human body and the resultant effect upon family life has become so evident in recent months, on the highways, in the divorce courts and in the criminal courts, that society is rising up in protest.

It should be hoped that some day we may have become so civilized that simply to educate the people as to dangers and evils will be all that will be necessary. Human beings will then act as they should and with full regard for themselves and others. Until such state of civilization has been achieved there will, of necessity, have to be law and provision by which such law is enforced, to protect the interest of the majority from the selfish performance of the minority.

The above excerpt from an address by the Rev. Herbert H. Parish should be read and observed by those who, for their own selfish and short-lived "pleasure" would disregard the lives and property of others.

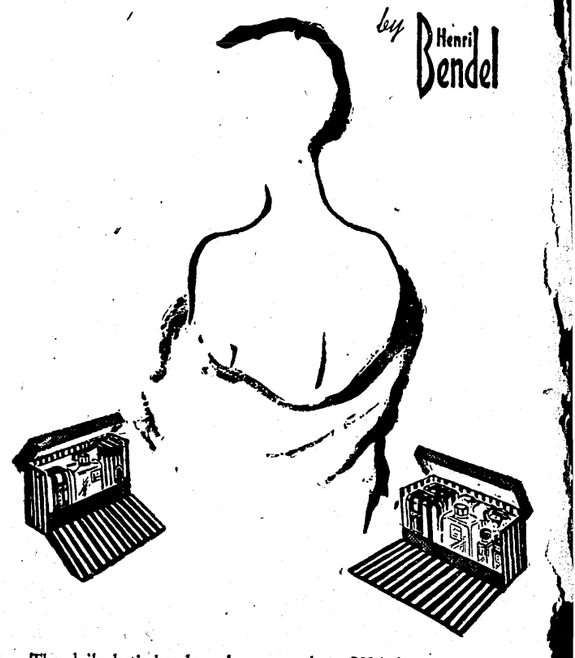
The Woman Who Really Enjoys Her Bath
Invariably Uses The Bath Preparations
by Henri Bendel



The daily bath has long been unwritten USA law. But to get a real "bang" out of it, the smart woman converts a necessity into a delight by adding Bendel Bath Oil or Bath Sachet to scent and soften the water, by lathering with the heavenly Bendel Bath Mitts or famous heavily perfumed Bath Soap, by dusting with Bendel Body Sachet or Dusting Powder, by finishing off with a liberal application of Bendel Eau de Sachet.

Barkdull-Faulk P.-T. A. Members Hear Messages

Mrs. L. O. Bass presided over the Founder's day program at the February meeting of the Barkdull Faulk Parent-Teacher Association on Thursday afternoon. A number of past presidents had graciously consented to appear on the program. Mrs. Bass introduced them to the members and asked each to reminisce a bit about the years during which she had been president, and to read a message from the national president received during that period.

Mrs. Fagan Cox, who is still active in Parent-Teacher work, and holds the office of state vice-president recalled that Mrs. Hugh Bradford had been national president, and spoke warmly of her beauty and personal charm. She then read an inspiring message from Mrs. Bradford, which appeared in the Parent-Teacher magazine during her term of office.

The next past president to be introduced was Mrs. B. S. McRaney, who read the message from Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, national president at the time Mrs .McRaney was presiding over Barkdull Faulk P.-T. A.

Mrs. C. W. Williams, who has been an active member ever since the association was organized, served as president in 1937. She read the message of Mrs. Pettigil, national president at that time.

Mrs. George Varino, a recent past president who is now serving as vice-president, read a war-time message from Mrs. Virginia Kletzer, who retired as national president last year.

Mrs. F. H. Peterson, who is not yet a past president, read the latest message from Mrs. Hastings, successor to Mrs. Kletzer.

Going back 50 years, Mrs. Bass then read a quotation from one of Mrs. Alice Birney's speeches in 1897.

Following the program, members were invited into the school library, for a coffee hour and the cutting of the anniversary cake. Mrs. F. B. Neeley cafeteria manager, made the beautiful embossed cake surmounted with flaming candles, one for each ten years of the 50-year-old organization. The lace-covered table was most attractive with golden daffodils and tall yellow candles. Mrs. Jack Wyatt, wearing a smart black, sequinned afternoon dress, and Miss Annie Laurie Breard in Kelly green, presided at the gleaming silver coffee and tea service. Five charming little girls, wearing clever Valentine hats, passed refreshments and the trays for the silver offering. They were Julia Williams, Patsy Rasbury, Patricia Simmons, Dorothy Morgan, and Julia Faye Williams.

Luncheon For Miss Davidson Lovely Event

One of the loveliest courtesies extended Miss Jane Davidson preceding her marriage was the luncheon given in the private dining room of the La Casa Tea Room in Monroe on Friday, with Mrs. George T. Madison and Mrs. J. A. Davenport, Jr., hostesses.

A low arrangement of white stock and narcissi centered the beautifully appointed table. Seated with the honor guest and hostesses were: Mrs. E. Turpin Davidson, Mrs. H. T. Peede, Mrs. W. T. Smith, Mrs. A. A. Bowles, Mrs. Clare Clark, Misses Elaine Bacon, Genevieve White, Mary Lou Willey, Ernie D. Carr and Mary Moss Madison.

After dinner coffee was served in the living room where a conversational hour was enjoyed. The hostesses presented Miss Davidson with lovely gifts of silver in her chosen pattern.

Preceding the Davidson-White rehearsal on Monday evening, the wedding party was entertained at a lovely buffet supper in the lounge of the Morehouse Parish Country Club with Mrs. W. T. Smith, hostess.

White narcissi, white garzas and stock were used in profusion among white tapers to form a most attractive centerpiece for the long buffet table overlaid with white damask. Silver trays laden with luscious viands were arranged along the length of the board.

Small linen covered tables arranged conveniently about the room were also adorned with fragrant narcissi.

Assisting the hostess were, Mesdames George T. Madison, Hugo Spier, N. T. Dalton, Hunter Patterson, Miss Minnie Barr Boughton, Miss Mary Moss Madison, and Miss Sue Madison.

Guests included the wedding party and Mrs. W. H. Smith, Col. George T. Madison, Mrs. W. S. Stewart of Baton Rouge, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Turpin Davidson, Mrs. Clare Clark, Mrs. Gilbert White and Rev. D. L. Williams.

Miss Davidson took this opportunity to present her attendants with gold ear-bobs, and Mr. White's gifts to his best man and ushers were leather key holders.

Talks on "City Beautification" by Mrs. James A. Noe and Mrs. R. M. Kittenring highlighted the meeting of the Parkview Civic Garden Club in the home of Mrs. Jack Lanier, 709 Georgia.

Officers elected at this time were: Mrs. A. C. Thurman, president; Mrs. E. L. Dozier, vice-president; Mrs. R. D. Alexander, recording secretary; Mrs. Jack Lanier, treasurer; Mrs. Jeff Clark, publicity chairman; Mrs. John Hogan, good-will chairman; and Mrs. John G. Smith, program chairman.

Mrs. Kittenring discussed the history of the cottonwood tree and Mrs. Noe gave a most inspiring talk about beautifying the neutral grounds, landscaping and tree planting; and pointed out the advantages of improving homes and gardens.

Important Meeting Held By Welcome Branch Book Club

The annual business meeting and correlating program on Legislation was enjoyed by members of the Welcome Branch of the Twentieth Century Book Club when they met Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. G. Hicks, 1604 Island Drive. Mrs. E. C. Koonce served as co-hostess.

During the business period, presided over by Mrs. A. S. Gunter, president, several matters of importance were discussed and approved, in addition to routine reports by department chairmen. Highlights of the first business were the naming of the new officers for the coming club year 1947-48, and the announcement of names of several club members honored by appointments to state and district offices. The club officers, as submitted by Mrs. J. D. Petty, nominating chairman, and elected for the year 1947-48 are as follows: Mrs. A. J. Speer, president; Mrs. George Phebus, first vice-president; Mrs. A. E. Porter, second vice-president; Mrs. J. T. Ray, recording secretary; Mrs. E. E. Sissin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. E. J. Whitmen, treasurer; Mrs. Richard Whitehurst, reporter; Mrs. H. V. Collins, historian; Mrs. F. E. Black, parliamentarian.

Announcement was made of the appointment of Mrs. Henson Coon as year book chairman for 1947-48 with Mrs. E. C. Gibson and Mrs. H. D. Holmes serving on this committee. Climaxing the business session was the recognition given members of Welcome Branch by appointments recently made to state and district offices. They comprise the following: State and District chairman of Music, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, State chairman of Poetry and Literature, Mrs. J. R. White, State chairman of "The Clubwomen" magazine, Mrs. H. V. Collins, District chairman of "The Clubwomen", Mrs. Zell Smith, District Chairman of press and publicity, Mrs. T. H. Scott. Mrs. H. V. Collins has also been appointed parliamentarian for the 5th district.

The program period featured a forum presided over by the club parliamentarian, Mrs. George D. Holland, who outlined the forum from the book, "The Business of Being A Clubwoman" by Alice Ames Winter, and conducted the first discussion, saying in part: "Club management is ceasing to be an amateur occupation. With the growth in club life the widening of women's conception of their possible usefulness to themselves, their homes, their communities and their nation demands a new standard and knowledge of the technique of being a club woman, whether it be as a member or an officer. We can no longer conduct our affairs by haphazard ways. Club life is becoming a tremendous force. Almost all the women of power and character in the United States belong to some kind of club. There are millions of club women and thousands of clubs. We must know WHY—HOW—WHEN a club best functions."

Mrs. W. D. McGee, Jr., the second speaker said in part: "Whether a club be large or small, members should be chosen because they need the club to round out their lives and the club needs them to round it out. Never propose a member as means of "paying off" a social obligation. Officers should be chosen because of their ability along executive lines with traits of character comprising fairness, promptness, initiative and the ability to inspire enthusiasm. They should possess a knowledge of club, current and civic affairs and be open-minded to criticism." Mrs. McGee concluded, "To accept an office is a pledge of faithfulness, to group interest, and not to serve a person or small group. Personalities drop as official life begins. When an officer is elected she must realize it is her duty to do teamwork with the other officers."

Mrs. M. R. Hausherr, in speaking of ways to conduct a simple meeting or committee meeting said, "meetings should begin on time. Even in the case of absence or tardiness of very important members. The good presiding officer aims to be on time and saves time where routine business is concerned. She keeps a meeting interesting by seeing that there are no intervals and empty places. She does not attempt to impose her will on the group, wishes every member to feel at ease and welcome to contribute her share in the discussion. At all times she proves herself capable in matters requiring tact, initiative and leadership." Mrs. Holland summed up the forum discussion as follows: "Club ethics in regard to members and officers alike, require enthusiasm and an unlagging interest in duties to be performed. Fill your place and when you have elected an officer, whether you voted for her or not, be loyal to her."

Mrs. H. D. Holmes contributed to the enjoyment of the afternoon by able rendition of a group of piano numbers by American composers. She played "Reveil du Printemps" by Rudolf Friml and "Papillon" by Leslie Loth.

Refreshments were served to the following members and guests: Mrs. F. E. Black, Mrs. Henson Coon, Mrs. J. Norman Coon, Mrs. H. V. Collins, Mrs. J. D. Calhoun, Mrs. A. R. Doughty, Mrs. V. S. Garnett, Mrs. E. C. Gibson, Mrs. A. S. Gunter, Mrs M. R. Hausherr, Mrs. R. R. Griffith, Mrs. J. G. Hicks, Mrs. H. D. Holmes, Mrs E. C. Koonce, Mrs. E. E. Lawson, Mrs. J. E. McConnell, Mrs. J. D. Petty, Mrs. George D. Holland, Mrs. George Phebus, Mrs. A. E. Porter, Mrs. W. D. McGee Jr., Mrs. T. H. Scott, Mrs. Zell Smith, Mrs. C. S. Swain, Mrs. C. T. Shaw, Mrs. Ben Tucker, Mrs. E. P. Jenevein, Mrs. A. C. Warner, Mrs. W. B. Wheelis, Mrs. Richard Whitehurst, Mrs. E. J. Whitman. Guests: Mrs. Rowena Hicks, Mrs. E. W. Sartain and Mrs. J. M. Steele.

The cost of moving a shipment of goods across the Whangpoo river at Shanghai rose in the postwar inflation until it was greater than the cost of moving the same shipment from San Francisco to China.

DOROTHY DIX

Broken Engagements

Affairs Severed Before Marriage Save Post-Ceremony Misery

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: I have gone with a girl for three years. During this time we became engaged. Recently she broke off with me and it took the light out of my life. Since then I have not been able to do a darn thing. I have tried going with other girls, but cannot have a pleasant time. I can't even have any fun when I go out with a bunch of boys. I can't keep my mind on my work.

What do you think of a girl who will go with a fellow for that long and then drop him?

BORED

ANSWER: Well, I wouldn't think you would be bored with all of that trouble on your mind. I should think you have plenty to worry over. There is nothing like a fickle sweetheart to keep a chap on his toes in trying to figure out what she is going to do next and which way the cat is going to jump.

But, see here, son, you know that sometimes a trouble is a blessing in disguise, and the things that happen to us that seem at the time to be a great misfortune turn out to be the very things that make us. And this is particularly true of love affairs, especially boy and girl romances.

WOMEN CHANGE

Apply this to your own case. You have been going with Mary Jane, or whatever her name is, for three years and you were engaged to her. No doubt at first she loved you, but in three years a bobby-soxer grows up and develops into being a woman. Her tastes change in boys just as they do in hats or dresses. She gets emotionally mature just as she does bodily. And, without her intending it or wishing it, she finds that she no longer loves you, and she does the only honest and honorable thing in the circumstances. She breaks off the engagement.

Of course, you are wounded in your heart and in your vanity, but think how much worse you would be hurt if all of this happened after marriage and you found that you had a wife who had ceased to love you. You would have trouble for sure then, and after you had stood if for a little while you would probably get a divorce, and maybe there would be a little child for you to have to give up, and that would be a heartbreak.

I think that any man and woman who find out that they no longer love the person they are engaged to should call the wedding off, even if they are on the very steps of the church.

You can keep yourself from thinking about this girl, who is really doing you a kindness instead of a wrong, if you will only use some will-power. Concentrate on your work. Work is the best remedy for any sort of trouble.

DEAR MISS DIX. I have a sister 20 years old who hates all housework and will never do a lick of it if she can help herself. She is considering marrying a widower who has two children, 8 and 4 years old, and before she does it I want her to realize what a job she is assuming in undertaking to do the cooking, washing and ironing for such a household.

I fear she will be very unhappy.

OLDER SISTER

ANSWER: Unless marriage works some miracle in her that changes her tastes and habits, she certainly will not only be unhappy but tired, and so will her husband and the poor little children. No girl of 20, especially one who is allergic to housework, should marry a man with a ready-made family because she is not fitted for the responsibility she assumes.

Little children are not the pin-feathered angels that they are represented as being in song and story. They are noisy, mischievous, dirty, fighting, howling little bundles of energy that require incessant care and that would try the patience of Job himself. Only a mother's love can make the task of rearing them anything but a life of slavery, and no young girl should undertake it.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a young man recently discharged from the air force. Have obtained a job as boss in a canning factory. I have fallen in love with one of the girls who works there, but I have a wife who has always been good to me, and a small daughter I love very much. Because of this I am unable to decide whether or not to obtain a divorce.

What should I do?

DEAN S.

ANSWER: My advice to you is to can your romance and stick to your good wife and little daughter. You will be happier living with a clean, faithful woman who has been true to you than you will be if you start out, to be a wolf who pursues every skirt that flutters across your path.

AN INVITATION IS EXTENDED PUBLIC TO HEAR LECTURE DELIVERED BY JUDGE KELLY

Judge Camille Kelly, judge of the juvenile court in Memphis, Tenn., will be lecturer at the Winnsboro High School auditorium Monday night at 8 o'clock under the auspices of the P.-T. A. and a cordial invitation is extended the public to attend. Judge Kelly will have a message for every mother and father at this time. She speaks with authority as she is the first woman south of the Mason-Dixon line to hold the office of judge of the juvenile court.

Judge Camille Kelly is a native Tennessean, daughter of Dr. J. F. McGee, who at one time held the chair of surgery at the Memphis Medical College. Her early ambition was to follow in her father's footsteps; accordingly she studied medicine for two years before her marriage to Thomas Fitzgerald Kelly, a prominent Memphis attorney.

She is the mother of three children, Heiskell B. Kelly, an attorney, who served as lieutenant-commander during World War II; Thomas Fitzgerald Kelly (known as Gerald), who as a newspaperman, was formerly with the United Press in Shanghai and at the time of his death in 1939 was connected with the Barta Press in Boston, Mass. Evelynne Camille, her only daughter, died at the age of 12. Howard Hawthorne McGee, writer and poet, was Judge Kelly's brother.

Judge Kelly has always taken an active part in Parent-Teacher Associations, having started her career of public service there. She is a member of many civic and social organizations, as well as legal organizations, both local and national.

Judge Kelly is the author of a book, "A Friend In Court," published by Dodd, Mead & Company in 1942, and she has written many magazine articles. She has spoken on numerous occasions on the various national broadcasting companies; her remarks on "D" day were broadcast over NBC. In the March issue of Cosmopolitan (1944), Mr. Harry T. Brundidge, associate editor, cited her court as an example for the whole country. The American Legion, celebrating American Education week in 1941, sent out a pamphlet written by the judge, entitled "Enriching Family Life"—the only woman contributor among seven men.

She was one of 50 women awarded School of Honor in recognition of outstanding service in judicial field in 1942, by the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She was one of 12 women chosen to speak at the New York Times in 1943 at the New York Times Hall.

In 1943 Judge Kelly was the only woman chosen to speak at the 50th annual convention of the International Association of Chiefs of Police at Detroit, Mich.; also was one of three (the only woman) chosen to make radio addresses over NBC at this meeting.

In April, 1946, three national magazines featured Judge Kelly and her outstanding achievement in dealing with juvenile delinquency—Cosmopolitan, True Detective, and Case and Comment, the Lawyer's Magazine. A condensation of the Cosmopolitan article appeared in the May Readers Digest.

WEDDINGS

A marriage of interest to friends was that of Miss Alpha Louise Andrews, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Andrews and Charles Donald Turnage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Turnage of Vidalia. They were married in a double ring ceremony by Reverend W. A. Sullivan, Baptist minister.

The bride had as her matron of honor, the groom's sister, Mrs. Lucille Turnage. Fred Andrews, Jr., served as best man for the couple.

The bride wore a lovely blue wool crepe suit with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Turnage wore an aqua dress with pink accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Immediately after the ceremony, an informal reception was held.

The living room was attractively decorated in pink gladioli and white lilies. In the dining room the table was overlaid with a beautiful lace cloth cover and at each end was a crystal punch bowl. In the center was a three-tiered wedding cake beautifully embossed.

Mrs. Lucille Turnage and Miss Kay Sanguinetti presided at the punch bowls.

Mr. Turnage is employed by the government engineers and Mrs. Turnage holds a position in the county agent's office. They will make their home in Vidalia.

Out-of-town guests for the wedding were Miss Mildred Stewart of Jonesville, Mrs. H. L. Kingley of Houston, Texas, and Mrs. M. L. McDonald of Crosby, Mississippi.

The average wage rate paid to hired U. S. farm workers in 1946 was $91.40 per month compared with $84 during a comparable period in 1945.

'Nobody's Girl' To Be Presented Tuesday Afternoon

This story is for children only will inform them about the little French orphan girl who appears in the Clare Tree Major Children's Theatre plot "Nobody's Girl", at the Neville High school auditorium on Tuesday, February 25, at 3 o'clock.

Here's the story:

Perrine Paindavoine, a little French orphan girl of some thirteen years of age, promised her mother that when she was left alone she would sell the trailer in which they had lived, and Palikare, their big, beautiful donkey, and with the money would travel to Maraucourt to ask to share the home of her wealthy grandfather, Monsieur Vulfran Paindavoine.

Perraine did as she had promised, except that instead of taking the train to Maraucourt, she decided to walk, saving her money to make sure she could keep herself in food and lodging in Maraucourt until she might find work, in case her grandfather did not want her, or she did not like to live with him. Perrine knew that her grandfather had objected to his son Edmond's marriage to her mother, whom Monsieur Paindavoine had never seen, and whom Perrine had loved so devotedly. He refused to see his son unless Edmond would abandon his wife and child. But now, both Edmond her father, and her beautiful mother were no longer with her. Perhaps her grandfather would want nothing at all to do with her.

It was a difficult journey for the courageous little girl. A woman of whom she tried to buy bread stole her money on the pretext that it was counterfeit. Mostly she slept in barns or burrowed into the hay of the haystacks. Now and then she would be given milk by the farmers, but she would not beg for help. She was almost starving one day when La Rouquerie, the woman who had bought Palikare, found her and fed her goat's milk and bread and goat's milk cheese. At last, ragged and barefoot, she reached Maraucourt. Here she learned that her grandfather owned the large factories in which all of the village worked.

Here, working at the factory, she learned three things: First, her grandfather was blind; second, his nephews and his manager were deceiving him and were trying to get the business into their own hands; third, her grandfather bitterly repented his cruelty to his son and wa strying in every way he could to find him. In order to prevent his nephews from knowing of his search for Edmond, her grandfather had been making inquiries through Monsieur Bendit, one of the men who could write in several languages. Fortunately, Perrine's father had taught his little daughter everything he himself had been educated in. When Monsieur Bendit fell ill, Perrine was called in to write letters in his place. And on a bright, wonderful day, the whole truth was at last uncovered. Perrine was folded close in her grandfather's arms. She had found her true home. The happiness of finding that he was no longer alone, that his little granddaughter loved him, gave the old man strength to face the operation the doctors had been wanting to make on his eyes. Weeks passed, and on the day the bandages were to be removed, all the employees gathered about his house wishing to learn whether the operation had been successful. You can imagine the joy and excitement when the old man stepped out on the balcony and looking over the crowd, called out the names of the men who had served him for many years; and how the excitement swelled and rose when he lifted the little girl they had known as a factory worker and told them that she was his granddaughter and the new heiress to the plant in which they worked.

SHERIFF'S FORCE HAS ACTIVE WEEK

Car Dealer Who Forfeited $1,000 Bond Caught; Other Arrests

Climaxing a particularly busy week of constant investigation and many arrests, Sheriff Milton Coverdale and Deputies Frank X. Cline and W. O. Downing yesterday afternoon announced the re-arrest of W. D. Plunk, 49, former used car dealer and filling station operator of West Monroe, who had been sought since last September when he disappeared and forfeited a $1,000 cash bond he had posted for his release on a fugitive warrant.

Plunk, who was said to have hidden out in New Orleans after leaving here, was picked up when he reappeared in West Monroe. He was arrested originally at the request of the police department at Memphis, Tenn., where he was charged with giving a bad check for $900 in a used car deal. Although he is under other charges here, the prisoner will be turned over to Memphis and M. A. Hines, chief of detectives of that city, is to come for him next week.

Otis McIntosh, who lives west of West Monroe, accused Plunk of the theft of a car valued at $700, last September, and the sheriff's department at Ruston has filed a detainer on the prisoner here, alleging he gave a bad check in a car deal there.

Dennis Johnson, 22, Negro, of 1004 Oak street, arrested last week and charged with forgery in three counts, pleaded guilty before Judge Gladney in criminal district court and is awaiting sentence. He was said to have passed two checks for $32.57 each and one for $25.90, all drawn against the account of the Swayze dairy, where he formerly was employed.

A neighborhood quarrel was reported as the cause of a surety of the peace proceedings filed by Mrs. Paul Correro against Mrs. Bert B. Cole of 3109 Polk street. Mrs. Cole was arrested and released on bond to await an airing of the trouble in court.

Edward Warren, 30, Negro, of 1908 Flynn street, charged with firing the shot that wounded two other Negroes in the Booker T. Washington addition last Saturday night, was traced to Tensas parish and arrested. The bullet passed through fingers of Charles Carter and Julius Baker before entering the latter's left chest. Baker was reported recovering at Charity hospital Saturday.

J. W. Stiles, 35, of West Monroe, was released on bond following his arrest on a warrant charging him with failure to support his three children.

Hayward Harris of Swartz, also charged with non-support, was freed under $250 bond, and Alfred Johnson, Negro, who lives near the Ouachita-Richland parish line, posted $400 for his release on surety of the peace and assault charges, filed by his wife, Mattie.

MEDICAL BILL'S DANGERS SHOWN

Dr. Rizzo Brands 'Socialized Medicine' Menace If Once Enacted

The regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus held Thursday night was well-attended by the members of the order. Highlighting the meeting was the talk given by Dr. F. P. Rizzo, prominent physician, who discussed the subject, "Socialized Medicine."

The speaker told the assemblage that socialized medicine is not anything new, it having been tried and used in many of the European countries in the past and in every instance where it had been in use, the practice of medicine had degenerated to a very low level. He continued by comparing the training of the doctors in years gone by and brought out the fact that then, a doctor was not considered to be a finished professional physician until he had visited one of the renowned clinics of Europe; today, he stated, in America, we have the finest of training centers and the wealthy and royalty of foreign lands come to our country for training and medical attention. This change, he emphasized has been brought about because of the "Socialized Medicine" policies of the old world.

"How would you like to have some government official tell you what doctor must treat you, regardless of his qualification, your likes or dislikes for him?" asked Dr. Rizzo. "Yet under the proposed bill that has been offered in Congress, that is what would happen. You would not only be told by whom you must be treated, but how, and this how by the doctor referring to a manual published by these bureaucrats wherein the doctor is told how to treat, what to prescribe and in what dosage regardless of the effectiveness of the treatment, the lowest cost being given preference."

The speaker related some of his personal experiences during the war, he having served for a time as state medical director for the selective service for the state of Louisiana and later was sent to the European theater of operations where he was in contact with front-line casualties.

Dr. Rizzo concluded his remarks by stating that it is the duty of everyone in all stations of live to better acquaint themselves with the provisions of this proposed legislation and to do everything in their power to prevent its passage when it comes up in Congress again.

Dr. Rizzo is a prominent physician of Monroe, and is a member of the Ouachita Parish Medical Society. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus and has served this council as its grand knight in the past.

Seven States Represented In Shreveport Friday Night

The members, together with their wives, enjoyed a delicious steak banquet.

The following delegation from the Monroe Camp of Gideons was present in the Friday night meeting: Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Ringwald, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Jones, Rev. C. S. Cadwallader, F. K. Litton, F. H. DRIVER ARRESTED FOR RUSTON POLICE

Supplied by Ruston police with the license number of a car they said had proceeded east on U. S. 80 after being involved in an accident there, state troopers stopped the vehicle at the west edge of West Monroe on U. S. 80 at 12:45 a.m. yesterday and arrested the driver. He identified himself as Warren O. Blackman, 48, of 1825 Bush Avenue, Alexandria.

The prisoner was returned to Ruston, where he was to be booked on hit-and-run charges.

OIL PROSPECTORS' TRIAL DATE FIXED

Arkansas Co. And 7 Employes Fail To Get Charges Quashed

RAYVILLE, Feb. 22.—(Special)—Defense attorneys for the Arkansas Fuel Oil Company and seven employees and associates of the company, made co-defendants in a criminal action charging illegal prospecting on private and public lands in Richland parish, have fired volley after volley at the grand jury indictment in an effort to quash it but thus far, outside of a little amending here and a little deletion there, the indictment still stands. Judge Carey J. Ellis so ruled in district court at Rayville Friday.

The state contends, after once amending the original indictment, that these defendants "did then and there unlawfully prospect by means of mechanical devices and otherwise for oil, gas and other minerals on public highways regularly maintained by the Louisiana Highway Commission and on public highways which run through, over, across and upon the lands and property of George B. Franklin, without proper permit, consent and authority so to do."

Defense attorneys Friday filed a motion to quash the amended indictment and argued that such amended indictment "does not charge any offense known to or denounced by any law of the state of Louisiana; that it contains nothing more than a conclusion of law and conclusions of the grand jury, and does not allege all of the necessary facts as required by Article 227 of the Code of Criminal procedure."

In the course of argument defense counsel stressed that a person charged with an offense is presumed to be innocent until proved guilty, and that it is not the business of the accused party to come into court and plead with the district attorney to inform him of the charge against him. Despite these pleas, however, Judge Ellis overruled the motion except to order the district attorney to delete two words "and otherwise" from the amended indictment.

Defense counsel then filed a plea of demurrer which was also overruled by the court, and the case regularly fixed for trial on Tuesday, April 22.

W. H. Thompson, of Monroe, George Conger and H. C. Walker, Jr., Shreveport, and W. D. Cotton, of Rayville, represent the defense, while Warren Hunt, of Rayville, is assisting District Attorney J. Vernon Sims with the prosecution.

Story With No End...

On they march: the unending lines of veterans requiring the assistance of trained workers, field directors, Home Service workers, volunteers and crafts instructors who stand ready to serve them through the Red Cross.

New chapters are written in the lives of members of our armed forces who need the friendly advice of field directors; in the memories of families worried about boys far from home. Recreation workers encourage hobbies, plan entertainment. Hospitalized men are stimulated by parties and fun. And the navy ashore is also served by the Red Cross recreation program.

And for a sequel—disaster relief necessitated by hurricane, tornado, fire, earthquake, explosion, epidemic or flood follows through from on-the-spot aid to all forms of rehabilitation.

That is the brief outline of what the Red Cross stands ready to do for you. That is why your Red Cross needs your support as a friend and neighbor... and possibly some day a beneficiary of its great program of mercy and service.

Tarzan

by EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

WHILE TARZAN AND OM-AT HELPED THE FORMER PRISONERS FIGHT FOR FREEDOM, THE SCOURGE KIDNAPPED JANE. NOT A MOMENT TOO SOON, THEY STARTED IN PURSUIT.

THROUGH A STRANGE, MENTAL QUIRK, THE MASTERMIND OF A PLOT FOR WORLD POWER STAKED HIS LIFE ON A GAMBLE TO STEAL ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE, THE WOMAN HE WANTED FOR HIS OWN.

TARZAN'S HEART BEAT WITH TERRIFIC ANXIETY AS HE RACED UP THE STAIRS. HE FEARED THAT THE SCOURGE'S TWISTED BRAIN MIGHT HAVE A PLAN TO HARM HIS BELOVED MATE.

THEY STOPPED ABRUPTLY AT THE HEAD OF THE WINDING STAIRWAY AND LOOKED THROUGH AN OPENING. TARZAN GASPED. "WILL I BE TOO LATE?"

BEFORE THEM WAS A LEVEL AREA ON THE CRATER'S RIM, A SMALL LANDING FIELD..AND ON THE FAR SIDE STOOD A HELICOPTER IN READINESS FOR FLIGHT.

HURRIEDLY, THE SCOURGE PUSHED THE STRUGGLING WOMAN INTO THE SHIP, STRIKING HER HEAD AGAINST THE DOORWAY. HE FACED HIS PURSUERS.

AS TARZAN RUSHED TO HER RESCUE, JANE BECAME UNCONSCIOUS. THE SCOURGE LEVELED HIS AUTOMATIC AT THE ON-RUSHING MEN AND FIRED.

THE APE-MAN HEARD THE THUD OF A BULLET STRIKING FLESH AND SAW THE FAITHFUL OM-AT PITCH FORWARD. HEEDLESS OF THE SCREAMING BULLETS, HE STOPPED.

HAD THE SCOURGE KILLED HIS FRIEND? OM-AT'S FACE HELD THE PALLOR OF DEATH. TARZAN FORGOT HIS OWN DANGER AS HOT ANGER CONSUMED HIM.

TARZAN REALIZED THERE WAS NOTHING HE COULD DO FOR HIS FALLEN COMRADE. JANE WAS IN AWFUL DANGER. IN A FEW SECONDS HE WOULD BE TOO LATE.

THE HELICOPTER'S MOTOR ROARED. WHEN HE STOOD UP, THE SHIP WAS OFF THE GROUND. THEN TARZAN DASHED TOWARD IT IN DESPERATION, WITH NO PLAN OF ACTION IN MIND.
